New Strikes In Michigan Loom as Auto Workers Vote

Employes in 2 Fisher Plants Balloting on Walkout.

200 Chrysler Men Are Already Out

Aluminum Unions Weigh Extending Tie-Up to 5 More Plants.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 20.—Strike votes under way in United Automobile Workers' local unions tonight indicated possible spread of labor disputes in Michigan automotive plants, marked earlier this week by picket-line collection of dues.

Approximately 200 employes of two departments in the Plymouth division of Chrysler Corporation, protesting against laying off of a union steward, remained away from work when an afternoon shift reported today. Plymouth officials and an U. A. W. bargaining committee were discussing the complaints. Other departments were not affected.

Union employes of Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation, three Detroit plants of which have been closed by strikes, were meeting tonight to consider extending the strike to five other factories of the firm here.

Strike Vote Held.

At Flint, Mich., where employes of Fisher Body Plant No. 1 and of the Buick Motor Co. prepared to return to work tomorrow morning, union members of Buick and Chevrolet plants started balloting on a strike call which would require approval of the U. A. W. international council before being effective. The union has charged discrimination in placing of demoted foremen and office workers in production jobs. Foremen are not eligible for union membership under the U. A. W.-G. M. agreement.

Any picket lines formed at Detroit plants to enforce collection of union dues will be broken up, Police Commissioner Heinrich A. Pickert announced today. Flint police were ordered on duty to prevent molestation of workers entering plants tomorrow.

Police Break Picket Line.

The only strike clash today occurred at the Michigan Steel Castings Co. here when a 25-man picket line led by a man in football headgear was broken by 16 policemen swinging nightsticks.

Another U. A. W. strike in Detroit affected 500 employes of the Detroit Moulding Corporation. In addition, members of the C. I. O.-affiliated Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers Union were on strike at the American Brass Co., which notified 750 workers yesterday it was closing indefinitely.

Despite Pickerts order, Emile Mazey, president of the U. A. W.'s Briggs Local, announced it would conduct a "button check" at the Vernor Highway plant of the Briggs Co. Thursday morning.

Union officials announced a dispute that caused a two-day "slowdown" at plants of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co., was settled.

Fair and cooler weather was predicted for today, despite a downpour of rain shortly after midnight.

SEC Will Call Lamont, Anderson and Dickey for Testimony.

The Securities and Exchange Commission decided yesterday to call three more partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. as witnesses in its inquiry into the failure of Richard Whitney & Co.

A SEC attache disclosed that Thomas W. Lamont, Arthur M. Anderson and Charles D. Dickey will be summoned to testify next week either in New York or Washington.

George Whitney, a member of the Morgan firm, testified Tuesday he obtained a loan of $1,082,000 from Lamont to help his brother restore securities and cash to the New York Stock Exchange gratuity fund. The loan was repaid, Whitney said.

Francis Bartow, also a Morgan partner, related yesterday that he had told Anderson and Dickey about Richard Whitney's financial troubles on March 6.

D. A. R. Today To Hear Talk By Roosevelt

Election Also Highlight; Speaker Warns Against Extravagance.

The Post Club Editor.

The Forty-seventh Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution will reach its climax today with the visit of President Roosevelt—who will bring greetings for the first time in his Administration—election of officers and a program illustrating the society's "accent on youth." The President is scheduled to arrive at 4 p. m.

George E. Sokolsky, writer and student of international affairs, addressing last night's session, told the Daughters they failed in their duty as citizens when they tolerated extravagance in Government they would not tolerate in their own homes and when they permitted the choice of representatives in Government without regard to their fitness for office and personal integrity.

He warned them not to be taken in by propaganda. "Have you been faithful to your pledge to uphold the ideals on which the country was founded?" he asked. "Have you judged each public speaker, speech and article by the yardstick of its worth on this basis?"

Freedom Not Gift of God.

Freedom, he said, was not the gift of God to any people but had to be wrung from governments. He contrasted conditions here with those of other countries of the world and pointed out that people in all walks of life—in any bracket of society—were better off, had more comfort, luxury and chance for advancement than those in corresponding brackets in other lands.

Following his address, Representative Sol Bloom, chairman of the Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission, presented to Mrs. William A. Becker, the president general, a Shanghai (Thursday), April 21. China's defenders of Shantung Province stood fast under heavy pounding of Japanese heavy guns today, hoping to force their outnumbered attackers into hand-to-hand combat.

Japan's second Central China offensive against the Chinese legions that thwarted the first opened with an artillery and air bombardment of the Lini sector.

Chinese admitted their situation there was critical and that defense positions were shattered by tons of high explosives. They denied Japanese assertions that Lini itself had fallen.

Japanese attacking Lini were striving to relieve pressure on the Japanese garrison besieged at Yihsien, 40 miles to the southwest. Their offensive also was pointed at Suchow, 90 miles to the southwest, main eastern junction city on the Lunghai Railroad, which runs through the unconquered heart of Central China.

Lini itself, Chinese insisted, remains in their hands. They said that thus far Japanese had achieved nothing more than a brief entry through a breach in the city walls near the north gate.

At one point, Chinese reports stated, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's troops drove a wedge between two of three Japanese columns converging on the city, with both sides suffering heavy losses.

Japanese were attempting to wipe out the stain of their defeat at Taierhchwang, where the earlier Shantung offensive was stalled. Chinese tried to force the invaders into the same hand-to-hand fighting which gave the former the advantage at Taierhchwang.

From the west came Chinese reports that Chiang's staff was considering a general counter-offensive against thinly held Japanese lines in Shansi and northern Honan provinces.

Jefferson Gets a Marcel Wave On Proposed New U. S. Nickel

By the Associated Press.

A new nickel was born yesterday.

Art judges peered at 390 plaster models, showing Thomas Jefferson on one side and his Monticello home on the other, and picked a winner to supplant the Indian-buffalo design. It may be a day or two until the winning artist is disclosed, however.

Jefferson, third President and author of the Declaration of Independence, never looked like so many different people as he did yesterday. The models depicted him as everything from a coarse barbarian to a royal dandy. The facial features varied from skinny to the triple-chin type. On a few casts, Jefferson scowled. He smiled on none, usually wearing a calm expression.

On some models, Jefferson wore his hair in a typical colonial pigtail. On others, he had bobbed and even marcelled hair.

In a majority of cases only Jefferson's head was suggested, but in many models his shoulders and torso appeared as well.

In violation of rules for the contest, some artists substituted the Liberty Bell and even an ear of corn for the house.

The new Jefferson nickel will enter circulation some time this fall, the present buffalo nickel having served its minimum statutory life of 25 years.

British Mission Sails.

By the United Press.

London, April 20.—Ten British air ministry experts, acting under "secret and confidential" plans of Defense Co-ordination Minister Sir Thomas Inskip, sailed for the United States today to discuss the purchase of American fighting planes.

The experts will remain six weeks in the United States investigating the possibility of large-scale purchases of warplanes for the royal air force to offset "deficiencies" in aviation construction under the huge British rearmament program.

Negotiations for the purchase of fighting planes in the United States was generally understood to have started several weeks ago, and it was said that the ten air ministry representatives would seek to remove several stumbling blocks, particularly regulations prohibiting United States manufacturers from selling for export any planes of less than two years' service.

The necessity for Britain to seek further supplies of war materials abroad, including fighting planes, was outlined simultaneously in a "secret and confidential" document Inskip distributed to employers and unions of the arms industry urging their co-operation in accelerating the pace of British defense.

The appeal was accompanied by a new wave of spy hysteria.

The Evening Star, carrying banner lines, "Spies Pouring into Britain," said espionage activities were increasing sharply and that foreign agents had swarmed into Britain from throughout the world since the start of the government's $10,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000 arms program.

The Evening Star's spy scare story said British defense intelligence appropriations had been doubled in the past 24 months.

$40,000,000 Housing Approved; Patronage War Flares on Relief

Project Sought For Each District

New Deal Plans Loans to Utility Foes to Speed Recovery Plan.

By Robert C. Albright.

Patronage troubles broke in the wake of the Administration's vast spending-lending program yesterday when Democratic members of the House discovered the $25,000,000 set aside for new Federal buildings will not provide projects enough for each district.

Demanding an increase to $60,000,000 to provide a new postoffice structure or other construction in every Democratic member's territory, buildings bloc members yesterday sought the ear of the House Appropriations Committee. They will be given a hearing Monday.

Utilities Promised Aid.

At the same time, Chairman Wilburn Cartwright, of the House Roads Committee, asked right of way ahead of the spending program for his $484,000,000 highway authorization bill for the fiscal years 1940 and 1941. Roads bloc members already have received $101,500,000 additional for highways in the pending Agriculture Department bill, in advance action on the President's recommendations.

Meanwhile, the utilities industry, long at war with the Administration, received unexpected promises of aid in the new recovery program. Following White House conferences with Chairman Jesse Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Chairman William O. Douglas, of the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was indicated large and small utilities may be helped by RFC loans along with other business enterprises, and some restrictions may be lifted on utilities securities issuance.

Relief Report Asks Repeal Of Profit Tax

Stringent Modification of Capital Gains Levy Also Is Urged in Bill.

By Sidney Olson.

The Senate Unemployment and Relief Committee, after a seven-month study of the Nation's economic sickness, yesterday wrote out as a prescription a recommendation for prompt repeal of the undivided profits tax and stringent modification of the capital gains tax.

The committee's preliminary report called for swift enactment of the Senate tax bill, which proposes such changes, on the basis that witnesses representing major industries were unanimously in favor of modification of these taxes at this time as a major hypodermic to ailing business.

Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, relief committee chairman, is a close friend and adherent of Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, who shepherded the tax bill through the Senate. Harrison voted for the Government reorganization bill, which was in Byrnes' charge, and Byrnes voted for the tax bill, in Harrison's charge.

House leaders yesterday still stood pat and with confident smiles, on their version of the deadlocked tax bill, basing their confidence on the theory the Senate conferees will weaken as time goes on. They said

Architects Adopt Cheap Home Plan

By William V. Nessly.

Rehousing was presented as a multibillion-dollar spearhead for the national recovery drive in a series of imposing developments yesterday.

With executive and legislative departments concentrating on efforts to smash the business slump, determination to contribute to that end through providing proper shelter for ill-housed millions was reflected in these activities:

The first money started flowing from the United States Housing Authority for slum clearance and low-rent housing projects previously approved, as President Roosevelt announced acceptance of six more such undertakings to cost some $40,728,825.

The American Institute of Architects approved a report proposing construction of 2,000,000 homes, costing $2,500 each, for low-income families. The architects were told the steadily increasing supply of savings is ample "to provide for a major housing boom.

Nathan Straus, housing administrator, announced a ruling by the controller of the currency that national banks would be permitted to buy bonds of local housing authorities. He and Senator Wagner, author of the housing act, revealed that proposed expansion of the housing program would boost to more than $300,000,000 the money actually placed in circulation this year by the program.

Projects Approved.

Housing projects approved yesterday included two in New York City, to cost $33,000,000; one in Louisville, Ky., $4,734,000; two in Augusta, Ga., $1,521,000, and one in Jacksonville, Fla., $1,140,625. Under the loan contracts the Government may provide up to 90 per cent of the cost, with local housing bodies putting up the remainder. The Housing Authority was originally authorized to issue up to $500,000,000 in bonds to raise the money for such projects, and the President recently asked Congress to add $300,000,000 to the authorization.

Bonds of the local authorities should be "very attractive" to the national banks, Straus said in announcing the controller's ruling. The bonds bear 3 per cent interest. The ruling should do much to speed the housing program, the administrator indicated.

Two-Fold Aim.

The proposals of the architect's association, as reported from New Orleans by the Associated Press, were evolved with the two-fold aim of relieving the housing shortage and fighting the recession through co-operation by architects, material makers, producers and builders.

They aim at building for families with incomes around $30 a week, on the basis that by standardization of materials and production a

House Blocks Fair Trade Bill For Capital Now

Hearings to Be Held Prior to Action on Extending of Act's Scope.

An attempt to have the House District Committee take immediate action on a bill to extend "fair trade" practices to Washington was blocked yesterday. The prospect now is that hearings will be held on the bill. Meanwhile four District bills were approved.

Chairman Palmisano wanted the committee to act on the bill immediately, but he was headed off by Representatives Kennedy, of Maryland, and Nichols, of Oklahoma, both Democrats. They urged that hearings be held first.

Forty-three States have adopted "fair trade" legislation. Under this, a merchant enters into an agreement with the manufacturer not to sell an article below the wholesale cost as an incentive to customers.

Last year Federal sanction was given the legislation by the Tydings amendment to the District appropriation bill. President Roosevelt was opposed to the Tydings rider, but approved it in order to save the appropriation bill.

Representative Kennedy argued that the pending bill would raise the cost of living in Washington.

The four bills approved were:

Approving incorporation for the United States Power Squadrons, which seeks to establish a high standard of skill in the handling and navigation of yachts and to encourage the study of navigation.

Documents Sought In Aluminum Trial

New York, April 20 (AP).—The prelude to what may be a year-long trial was unfolded in court today as opposing counsel in the Government's antitrust suit against the Aluminum Co. of America and its subsidiaries argued over subpenas for documents. The case is set for trial May 2.

William Watson Smith, Pittsburgh attorney, termed the Government's demands for certain documents a "fishing expedition" and challenged any contention that the company dominated a monopoly in the domestic field.

Walter Rice, special assistant to Attorney General Homer Cummings, replied that unless the company produced the documents asked by the Government "vital evidence" would be concealed.

The Capitol was pervaded with a cathedral atmosphere yesterday as the Senate and House held memorial services for members who have died in the past 12 months.

SEN. CARAWAY.

The Senate paid tribute to its late Democratic leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, and the House to five deceased colleagues — Representative Philip A. Goodwin, of New York; William P. Connery, of Massachusetts; Theodore A. Peyser, of New York; Robert Potter Hill, of Oklahoma, and Edward A. Kenney, of New Jersey.

Since preparations for the services were completed, one other Representative has died. He was Charles J. Colden, California Democrat, who died April 15 at Walter Reed Hospital.

The House services came first. Afterward a number of House members walked over to the Senate chamber to attend the services for Robinson. Shortly before they began, a portrait of the man who died in the midst of the Supreme Court reform battle, was unveiled outside the Senate chamber.

Among those attending the services were Mrs. Robinson, widow of the Senator; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the War President; J. Grady Miller, brother-in-law and State political manager for Robinson; Bernard Baruch and Herbert Bayard Swope, of New York; Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper and Mrs. John E. Miller, wife of the Senator who succeeded Robinson.

Senator Hattie Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, in her tribute to Robinson, said that "he carried a burden of responsibility exceeded by none, not even the Chief Executive."

Senator Hayden (Democrat), of Arizona, chairman of the Senate conferees, said $5,000,000 was agreed upon for development of the Blue Ridge and Natchez Trace Parkways. The Senate had voted $6,000,000; the House, $4,000,000.

Appointment of Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, Tuesday had completed the group, which Norris termed "a good committee" which he thought "will do a good job." Senator Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, had declared he was "disappointed" that he was not appointed, but declared the Administration had prevented his selection.

Minority Calls Wage-Hour Bill 'Arbitrary and Discriminatory'

Keynote of Southern opposition to the new "escalator" wage-hour bill was struck yesterday in a sharply worded minority report, assailing the measure as "arbitrary and discriminatory" and in violation of the Federal Constitution.

Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, whose compromise measure providing sectional differentials was rejected by the House Labor Committee, filed the emphatic dissent as the new measure was groomed for a final rules committee show down.

"The bill reported by the majority provides for no fact-finding process and totally ignores the fact that in a country as large as the United States there are thousands of varying conditions to which this inflexible proposal must be applied," said the Ramspeck report.

"To impose a rigid inflexible wage in all parts of the United States will unquestionably mean that some employers cannot longer compete in the Eastern market, where a majority of our consumers reside. That means, therefore, retirement from business, and their employes, instead of having their wages raised, will find themselves on relief."

The bill, sponsored by Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House Labor Committee, would provide an immediate floor of 25 cents an hour on wages, to be stepped up 5 cents an hour annually until 40 cents an hour was reached in three years. A ceiling of 44 hours would be erected over hours, to be cut down to 40 hours a week in two years.

Recognizing it is too late in the session to petition the bill to the floor, sponsors of the measure are hopeful for a realignment of enough Rules Committee votes to win right of way for the measure. A switch of four Rules Committee votes would be necessary to dislodge it.

Although some shift of sentiment in the Rules Committee seemed evident, a majority of votes for the bill still appeared doubtful.

Some Republican support would be necessary. Representative Joseph Martin, jr. (Republican), of Massachusetts, ranking minority member of the Rules Committee, declined to comment on reports that he would change his vote. He said he wanted to study the bill further.

Meanwhile, Dr. Cladius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said in a letter to cotton mill owners that the new measure would result in demoralization of markets rather than the promotion of "orderly and fair marketing of goods."

"Despite the simplicity of the bill's structure," said Murchison, "and despite the statutory determination of the minimum wage to be paid, its ultimate effect upon the industry would be more drastic than the Black-Connery bill (recomimtted last session), which only permitted but did not require a 40 cent minimum."

Ramspeck in his minority report said that in order to approach a solution of the problem "we must have a fact-finding process to which Congress must delegate the power to determine what wages and what hours shall be applied after thorough consideration of the facts."

"To do otherwise," he said, "would be arbitrary and capricious, would be discriminatory, and would violate the due process requirements of our Constitution."

Citing the legal history of minimum wage legislation, Ramspeck said "it must be remembered that the Supreme Court has never yet conceded plenary power to Congress or to State Legislatures to fix prices or wages.

Gerard Admits Minton Charge Of 'Figurehead'

Fingers Shaken and Tables Pounded, But Records Still Absent.

By the Associated Press.

The Senate Lobby Committee engaged Sumner Gerard, of New York, in a brisk round of shouting and desk pounding yesterday, but again failed to obtain records of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

Gerard, treasurer of the organization, told the committee that subpenaed records of its financial receipts were not under his control.

Chairman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, then suggested that he was only "a figurehead" so far as the organization's financial affairs were concerned, and Gerard conceded this was so. He said they actually were handled by a Rochester (N. Y.) accountant.

Schwellenbach Sarcastic.

When Gerard testified he had not read the final draft of the reorganization bill, against which his organization campaigned, Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, a supporter of the bill, commented:

"You hadn't even read the bill, and yet you conducted the most deceptive campaign that had ever been conducted in the United States."

Gerard protested that he had followed the debate closely and was familiar with the subject matter.

When Schwellenbach referred to one of Gerard's fellow officers as an "ex-convict" Gerard colored and stood up shaking his finger angrily. "I take exception to that," he said vigorously. "It is very unfair to bring this up."

"Disgraceful," He Shouts.

Schwellenbach's reference was to Dr. Edward Rumely, secretary of the national committee, who twice refused to produce records demanded by Senate subpena. The committee questioned Rumely about his war-time conviction on a charge of violating the "trading with the enemy" act.

Asserting that Rumely's character was "of the highest," Gerard said he was "proud to be associated with him."

While Minton pounded for order, and yelled for Gerard to "sit down," the witness told the committee it had "brought this thing up to discredit us."

"It is nothing short of disgraceful," he shouted.

La Follette Assails New Deal Patching

Madison, Wis., April 20 (AP).—Gov. Philip F. La Follette declared in a radio address tonight that the National Administration, through a carefully worked-out program, could have prevented the current business slump.

"Are we going to get down to business and really master our differences or are we going to go on tinkering and patching?" he asked. "At the end of nine years of depression we have nearly half our people back where they were in 1931. If present conditions continue much longer, the whole country will be back where it was in 1933."

Governor Races His Aide Home To See Who's Washington Boss

By the Associated Press.

Gov. Clarence D. Martin, who sped here by special plane from Chicago, reached the Washington State line just about the time musical Lieut. Gov. Victor A. Meyers, after a race here from southern California, marched into the secretary of state's office with a proclamation calling a special legislative session.

Attorney General G. W. Hamilton held that Meyers had "no authority under the Constitution,, to call the legislature into extraordinary session, but he suggested the issue should be determined by the State Supreme Court.

Gov. Martin, opposing the legislative session, suggested Meyers was "just playing up to those Red Devils"—presumably certain advocates of special housing and social security legislation proposed in Meyers' call.

Meyers left several days ago for a fishing trip in southern California. About the same time Martin went to Washington to discuss State matters.

Frankfort, Ky., April 20 (AP).—A call for a special session of the State Legislature brought Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky the political power which enabled him to become Governor.

In the absence of Gov. Ruby Laffoon in the National Capital, Chandler, who was Lieutenant Governor, issued a call on February 6, 1935, for the State Assembly to convene two days later.

A Republican Senator filed suit for his pay. The court decided Laffoon lacked authority to revoke Chandler's call. On February 12 the State Court of Appeals affirmed the decision.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, said yesterday he had decided definitely to seek re-election as an independent.

Van Nuys said he "certainly will not" attend the Indiana Democratic convention in June which will name the Democratic Senatorial candidate.

"The delegates are being hand picked by the State House machine," Van Nuys said, "and I am sure that the convention will give no expression of the rank and file of Democrats. I have no desire to be a party to it."

The general arrived in a private railroad car. A wheel chair had been provided, but he turned his back to it.

Russell Admits Franked Letter Was 'Bad Taste'

HOLC Aide Will Return to Private Practice, Await Postal Investigation.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

While postal authorities investigated his alleged abuses of mail-franking privileges, Horace Russell said yesterday he would return home, "where I can say and write what I please without getting into trouble."

Russell, resigned general counsel of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, announced he would enter private law practice in Atlanta, Ga., while waiting to learn whether he must face prosecution under the franking law.

At a press conference in his HOLC office, Russell said he had offered formal apologies "to all concerned" for mailing approximately 10,000 franked letters recommending the legal services of Judge O. B. Taylor, former associate general counsel, who resigned his post to enter private law practice in Washington.

Admits "Bad Taste."

Carefully selecting his words, the soft-spoken Southerner faced a room-full of reporters and admitted the letters were in "extremely bad taste."

"I'm sorry they were sent," he said, "and I assume full responsibility. Although I have written thousands of similar letters in behalf of former associates, perhaps they weren't as strongly worded as this one."

Russell denied charges by Representative Church (Republican), of Illinois, that he had mailed "more than a million franked communications in behalf of Taylor.

"The letters numbered between 9,000 and 10,000," he said. "They were sent to salaried and fee attorneys on the HOLC staff. There are 320 salaried attorneys—50 of them in Washington—and the fee men are scattered throughout the country."

Charges Are Filed.

Charges that Russell had violated sections of the United States code relating to use of the mails were filed with the Department of Justice yesterday. Representative Church demanded that Attorney General Homer Cummings and Postmaster General James A. Farley institute prosecution.

The complaints against Russell were in turn sent to Kildroy P. Aldrich, chief postal inspector of the United States Postoffice Department.

Spokesmen at the Postoffice said last night an investigation was being conducted by the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General to determine if circumstances of the case warrant prosecution under the ranking law.

$300 Fine Per Letter.

Should authorities decide to act, it was reported, the complaints will be returned to Aldrich for further investigation and prosecution. The penalty for infraction of franking privileges is up to $300 for each letter mailed.

Although frankly admitting the letter referring to Judge Taylor was "his idea," Russell said a postscript giving Taylor's local business address in the Investment Building was added by a clerk. The HOLC legal chief said he was out of the city when the postscript was added and the letters mailed.

Russell resigned his post immediately following Representative Church's charges on the floor of the House Tuesday. The resignation, however, has not been accepted by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, his superiors. Russell said failure of the board to accept his resignation would not effect his decision to return to Atlanta.

During yesterday's press conference, Russell exhibited to reporters a sheaf of telegrams containing offers of sympathy and support. Many of them were signed by HOLC field attorneys who received the circular letter. One, signed by former associates in Atlanta, read:

"Tell them all to go to thunder. Come on home and let's practice law."

River Plays Jackstraws With Bridge, Strands Children

Huge logs were piled up like jackstraws against an open drawbridge at St. Maries, Idaho, by the St. Joe River, turned into a wild torrent by heavy rains. The log jam was dynamited repeatedly to save the bridge, which was opened to reduce danger of being crushed. Because the bridge could not be closed, school children (lower left) could not return to their homes.

Lisner Estate Value Is Put At $3,790,484

Probate Petition Reveals $3,676,079 in Personal Property.

Abram Lisner, retired Washington businessman, who died March 26, left personal property valued at $3,676,079.56 and real estate with an assessed valuation of $114,405, it was revealed yesterday when a petition was filed for probate of his will.

The former proprietor of the Palais Royal department store left George Washington University a bequest of approximately $1,000,000 to construct an auditorium. He also left about $2,000,000 for the establishment of a "home for aged and indigent white women, bona fide residents of the District, without discrimination as to religious belief, nationality or descent."

The will provided that $300,000 be set aside for nieces and nephews of Mr. Lisner and for children of deceased nieces and nephews. The Hebrew Home for the Aged, Emergency Hospital and Children's Hospital were each bequeathed $10,000. Horace Key, chauffeur, was granted $5,000.

Named as trustees to handle the gifts were George W. White, Cloyd Heck Marvin and Leon Tobriner. The law firm of Tobriner, Graham & Tobriner represents the estate.

Mr. Lisner retired from business abut 20 years ago and had been prominent as a civic leader. He was 87 years old when he died, exactly a year after the death of his wife.

2 Youths Seized As White Slavers

Mrs. Corr, Taking What Corcoran School Calls 'Outstanding Honor,' Still Faithful to Piano, Accordion; 'Her Violin' Winning Painting.

Although she has just won what the Corcoran School of Art calls "an outstanding honor in the field of art," a career devoted to music may yet claim Mary Jane S. Corr.

The Corcoran yesterday announced that Mrs. Corr has won second prize in the exhibition of the Women Painters of America now being held in Wichita, Kans., for her portrait entitled "Her Violin."

But the young artist, who lives at 8709 Reading road, Silver Spring, Md., is still faithful to her piano and piano accordion, not only because they helped finance her early art training, but because she is yet undecided between the keys and the easel as a career.

Before coming to Washington last year she studied at the Dayton (Ohio) Art Institute, earning tuition by pouring tea, passing programs and playing the piano and accordion.

She exhibited last year in the Wichita show and has been represented in Ohio art exhibitions for the last four years. One of her portrait paintings is included in the showing of the Washington Society of Artists now circulating in Georgetown, Takoma Park and other public libraries.

500,000 Saloons Opened Since '34, Says Churchman

Richmond, Va., April 20 (AP).—W. B. Shuman, of Hatcher Memorial Church, told the Baptist Dover Association's 156th annual meeting today that prohibition closed 177,000 saloons but that 500,000 saloons in the form of cafes, taverns, beer and wine shops were brought back by repeal.

"We were promised," Shuman said, "that saloons would never return if prohibition were repealed, that unemployment would be reduced, that taxes would be lowered, that our jail population would decrease and that we would have a happy and peaceful land in which to live."

Calif. Woman Asks $155,000, Charging She Was Sterilized

Los Angeles, April 20 (AP).—Charging she had been robbed of her chance for motherhood through an operation, Clara Goss yesterday sued Edward Eldridge, Brawley, Calif., for $155,000 damages.

Miss Goss charged that in September, 1931, when she was 16 years old, Eldridge proposed to her that he would marry her if she would pose as his wife for a time.

While they were living together and she was undergoing an appendicitis operation, she alleged, Eldridge induced the physician to sterilize her also.

In addition to the damage, Miss Goss asked half of $100,000 in property which she claimed had accumulated while they lived together.

Faked Shoe Sales Net Man 352 Days

Wiley J. Nunley, 61, 330 E street northeast, was sentenced to 352 days in jail by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday on 16 counts of false representation.

Nunley, former shoe salesman for a Brockton, Mass., firm, was accused of soliciting orders for shoes without turning deposits in to the company. He was arrested several weeks ago by Detective Sergt. Oscar Mansfield after nearly 100 complaints had been received by police. Page C. Carlton, sales manager for the firm, testified Nunley had not worked for the company since March, 1937.

Two Men, Woman Held After Gambling Raid

Two men and a woman were charged with violating gambling laws yesterday following their arrest in a lunchroom in the 600 block F street northwest. Francis H. Jeter, 71, 600 block F street northwest, and Su P. Tucker, 32, 1344 Columbia road northwest, were charged with permitting gaming. Garmon W. Ewill, 31, 233 G street northwest, was accused of operating a lottery. Sergt. George Devoe led the raiders and said they confiscated several punch boards.

Bill to Permit District Races Stopped Again

House Committee Votes, 7-5, for Point of Order Burying Measure.

A bill to legalize horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in Washington was stopped again yesterday when it came up before the House District Committee.

In effect, the committee voted 7 to 5 to kill the legislation. The vote, however, was not on the merits of the bill, but on a point of order raised by Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

When Chairman Palmisano called up the bill, Hull made a point of order against it on the ground that a similar bill had been tabled by the committee last May. Actually it was a different bill, but Palmisano upheld Hull's point of order.

Sacks Appeal.

Representative Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, who sponsored the bill, appealed from the decision, but the committee upheld Palmisano.

The seven who voted to uphold the point of order were Representatives Kennedy and McGehee, of Maryland; Brewster, of Maine; Cole, of New York; Bates, of Massachusetts, and Shafer, of Michigan, Republicans.

The five who voted to overrule were Representatives Sacks and Wood, of Missouri; Bigelow, of Ohio, and Nichols, of Oklahoma, Democrats, and Dirksen, of Illinois, Republican.

Tabled Last Session.

In the last session of Congress the House District Committee favorably reported the Norton racing bill. Charges were made that it had been "railroaded," and a new vote was taken on it in committee. The vote was 9 to 8 to table it.

The bill considered yesterday was brought in by the Judiciary subcommittee. It differed in several respects from the Norton bill. One amendment, for example, limited the racing season here to 36 days instead of 54 days.

In the Seventy-third Congress, the House passed a District racing bill, but it was defeated in the Senate.

Swindle Suspect Will Face Jury in Hagerstown Case

Hagerstown, Md., April 20 (AP).—William F. Shinnick, jr., 31, of Baltimore, was free on bond of $5,000 today for grand jury action after waiving preliminary arraignment on four warrants charging the embezzlement of $14,100.

The warrants were issued by Magistrate John D. Dunn, charging him with embezzling from Mrs. A. Marie Garlinger, of Hagerstown, the following amounts: November, 1935, $5,500; $3,400 and $2,700 in December, 1935, and $2,500 in March, 1936.

Mrs. Garlinger, a widow, declined to comment on the arrest and referred all queries to her agent, W. S. Bowles, in Washington.

Two youthful bandits early yesterday held up Elvin H. Stonestreet, 1793 Lanier place northwest, and his fiancee, Ethel Parker, 1452 Meridian place northwest, and escaped with $15 of the couple's money. Stonestreet said he was parked in the 1400 block Meridian place.

Whitney Sentence 5 Yrs.—$2 Thief Gets 24 Minutes

St. Louis, April 20 (AP).—Geoorge Jamerson, 27, pleaded guilty before Justice Louis L. Hicks today of stealing $2 from a gasoline filling station.

Judge Hicks said: "Some people think there's one law for the rich and another for the poor, but we'll correct that right now." He figured for a minute and then said:

"Richard Whitney got five years for stealing about $225,000. That would be about $45,000 a year, $120 a day and $5 an hour. You stole $2. That would be 24 minutes, and that is your sentence."

Reich Showers Gifts on Hitler's 49th Birthday

By the Associated Press.

A lion cub, phonograph records of all official speeches made in connection with the union with Austria, and a complete set of all editions in all languages of his book, "Mein Kampf," were among the presents.

Celebrations Held.

The populations of Germany and Austria, in a state of exhaltation since the Austrian crisis six weeks ago, avidly embraced the occasion to work off their emotions again. Berlin, Vienna and Munich witnessed spectacular, enthusiastic celebrations.

The Fuehrer was hailed, among other things, as the greatest architect of all time, the master military genius of the age, friend of the poor and oppressed, champion of world peace with honor, comrade of the young people, liberator of Austria, first worker of his people and guardian of German culture.

Reviews Parade of Forces.

At midday Hitler stood for an hour beaming with pride on a platform in front of Berlin University to review a parade of the best divisions of his armed forces. United States Ambassador Hugh Wilson was in the group of diplomats and foreign officers opposite the Fuehrer's stand.

In the afternoon Hitler had Max Schmeling, Germany's heavyweight champion, explain to him with the aid of motion pictures how he knocked out Steve Dudas at Hamburg last Saturday. Guests were asked to wear full evening dress or uniform.

Catholic Youths Bestow Praise on Hull Trade Pacts

Secretary Hull's reciprocal trade pacts were lauded as "a first step toward the return of economic co-operation and world confidence," by student speakers at the annual conference of the Catholic Student Peace Federation of the Catholic Association for International Peace, in session yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Unsolved economic problems and unjust treaties are responsible for the rise of the dictators," Ernestine Garofalo, of Immaculata Junior College, Washington, asserted in a speech to the delegates.

"If American youth could see the horror and the suffering of war, the idea of wars in the future would be almost impossible," said she.

Patrick O'Shea, of St. John's College, was elected national chairman, and Miss Veronica McGinlen, of Mount Mercy, Pittsburgh, president of the Lake Erie Federation national secretary.

Spain's Fascist Women Present Sword, Dagger to Hitler

Austrian Jews Flee Homes in Modern Hegira

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, April 20.—Hundreds of bewildered Jews from the Burgenland province were on the move in border regions east of here tonight, thankful for a night's shelter wherever they might find it but apprehensive of the morrow.

One group of about two dozen was reported to have found refuge aboard a French tugboat in the Danube. Others felt they were temporarily safe on the borderland estate of Prince Elemer Lonyay, at the point where Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia meet. About 100 were reported there.

Still others, finding themselves unwelcome in Czechoslovakia or Hungary, were trudging back across the border into Germany.

1,000 Flee to Vienna.

Reports from private sources in the Burgenland indicated that about 1,500 Jews had left the province in the past week. About 1,000 fled to Vienna. These seemed to fare better on the whole than those who crossed the border—either voluntarily or from Nazi compulsion.

In quarters close to Vienna's officialdom, however, the situation was explained as follows: In Vienna itself the waves of spontaneous anti-Jewish action on the part of youthful Nazi enthusiasts—a feature of the days immediately following the fall of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg—have given way to a more orderly and disciplined procedure on the Berlin model.

Reports of "improvement" in Vienna, reaching the Burgenland Jews from relatives or acquaintances in the city, led many to seek shelter in the Jewish districts of the metropolis, where they would be less conspicuous and could be assisted by friends and relatives.

Families Driven Out.

Geneva, April 20 (U.P.).—Entire Jewish families are being driven penniless out of Austria after being forced to hand over their fortunes to the Gestapo (German secret police), the World Jewish Congress reported tonight.

The report said the Nazi police, after confiscating sums totaling 80,000 schillings (about $15,200) from prominent families, drove the Jews in police cars to the Czech forntier after forcing them to sign documents stating they were leaving of their own free will and were assigning their "dishonestly acquired" fortuntes to the state.

U.S. Children Held Favoring 'Isms'

Radical "isms" have spread among America's young people "because fundamentally they have no conception of what democracy truly is," according to Mack Williams, of the Boys Brotherhood Republic, in New York.

Speaking at yesterday morning's session of the D. A. R. Congress, he charged American youth with a lack of perspective. "Democracy is so familiar to them they can't see it," he declared. "We are not taught democracy; we are taught about it, as if it were a dead language."

Whitney

leading up to the collapse of the Whitney firm on March 8 and Whitney's subsequent sentence to a prison term for misappropriation of customers' securities.

Bartow said that on Saturday, March 5, Richard Whitney interrupted him at an afternoon bridge game at the Links Club and asked for the loan of $280,000.

Whitney, he testified, took a large sheet of paper from his pocket and said, "I'm in a jam."

"I said, 'Is your idea to borrow money? If it is I will not agree to it.' I think I was a little impatient.

Misconduct Charged.

Whitney then started to tell him of charges of misconduct which were to come before the stock exchange business conduct committee the following Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

At that point, the witness said, "I said, "Stop right there; I am not the proper person for you to talk to.' And at that he folded up his paper and left."

Whitney came back "a considerable time" later and saw him again, Bartow said, and this time told him he had wrongfully pledged customers' securities.

Bartow continued: "I said, "That's serious,' and he said, 'It's criminal.'"

Bartow said, he then told Whitney he "woudn't discuss it any further," but nevertheless, Whitney told him that if he could borrow $280,000 it would enable him to restore securities he had misappropriated and then he could tell the stock exchange committee there were no "irregularities in my office."

Consulted Attorney.

That evening, Bartow said, he consulted John W. Davis, attorney for the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

"Mr. Davis said neither I nor anyone else could or should do anything—and that anyone who did would run the risk of actions that would be misunderstood."

Later that evening, at a meeting at the Metropolitan Club, Charles R. Gay, president of the exchange, "emphatically" refused, Bartow said, to postpone the business conduct committee's meeting.

The following day, Sunday, March 6, Bartow said he motored to see his senior partner, J. P. Morgan, at his Glen Cove, Long Island, home and told him what he knew.

"Mr. Morgan was naturally shocked beyond measure and said there was no course for us but to follow the advice of counsel," Bartow said.

At Government Headquarters, Northern Catalonia, April 20 (AP).—A prematurely gray-haired Lieut. Col., who commands two-thirds of the Catalan front army, pointed at the territory west of Lerida on his war map today and said:

Replacing Gen. Sebastian Pozas as commander of the army in north and south Catalonia, Col. Juan Perea Capulino sees the war as far from its end.

"It is the character of the Spanish people — they react against disaster," he said. "The spirit has changed everywhere in the last weeks. Morale is high. We have had time to reorganize and repair mistakes."

Raise Embargo On Spain, Plead Church Editors

Editors of Protestant religious journals went to the State Department yesterday to ask Secretary Hull to "restore" United States neutrality by lifting the arms embargo on Spain.

"We hold the conviction that the continuance of the embargo is making a definite and possibly decisive contribution toward a victory of fascism in Spain which may well endanger the future of democracy in the United States," the editors declared in a letter left at the department by a group attending the convention here of the Associated Church Press.

Before adjourning a two-day gathering, the editors adopted resolutions praising the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee and "emphatically" protesting proposals for Federal subsidization of denominationally controlled educational institutions.

Son James Calls Spending Road To Even Budget

By the Associated Press.

Middleton, Ohio, April 20.—James Roosevelt, son and secretary to the President, said tonight that experiments with public works showed Government spending was the way to a balanced budget.

"We have learned that when we go ahead with public works and work relief your average income goes up, and we come closer each year to balancing the budget,'" he told a delayed Jackson Day dinner of Middletown Democrats.

"When we taper off, your income goes down and we go farther away from a balanced budget.

Roosevelt said that if the increase in national income resulting from the first pump-priming had kept up the budget would have balanced in 1938.

"But the same people who are objecting to a spending program now were saying last year that business could go ahead under its own steam, and that it was time to taper off the Federal spending," he contiued.

"Nobody knew for sure what the effect would be, but the majority of the American people seemed to be in favor of tapering off, so the experiment was tried. Business quickly went into a tailspin and the national income dropped about $12,000,000,000."

"Directly or indirectly, the flood of propaganda that seeks to give a false impression of the purposes and policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt flows from downtown New York," he said.

He said it was natural that attacks on the President should come from New York City because that was "where the giant monopolies have their home offices."

Stalin Forbids Farmer Purge To Boost Crops

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, April 20.—Josef Stalin today forbade further purging of collective farmers in what some foreign circles regarded as a move to assure production of a bumper grain crop.

The order, one of the sharpest ever to issue from the Kremlin, bluntly prohibited "any purges in collective farms under any pretext whatsoever."

How widely expulsion of peasants from farms had affected agriculture was not disclosed, but the order indicated many had been turned out by the farms' administrative officials for unsatisfactory work or merely at the command of the farms' chairmen.

Such drastic punishment of recalcitrant peasants was forbidden in the future except in extraordinary cases of "incorrigibles." Hereafter, public reprimands, fines and transfers to other jobs will be the penalties.

Stalin's order declared much harm had been done by mass expulsions of peasants from farms for trivial reasons on the pretext of purging them as hostile elements.

Foreign experts have found the peasants at first were reluctant to give up title to land they long had possessed under the program to bring agriculture under government control.

In their resistance to the program, many had refused to grow more than enough food for their own use. Because short crops had left peasants without grain stocks, foreign reports of the final collectivization drive in 1933 said millions of peasants starved to death.

Those who escaped the famine, which took from 2,000,000 to 7,000,000 lives, were herded quickly into collective farms. Now there are 243,700 such farms, employing 93 per cent of all peasants and covering 99.1 per cent of the cultivated area, official reports state.

St. Ann's Opens $150,000 Appeal

Opening a campaign for $150,000 to finance the new combination church and social hall at St. Ann's Catholic Church, members of the congregation last night heard the pastor, the Rev. J. Maurice King, and his assistants, outline plans for the two-week drive.

Ground for the new building was broken last August. Archbishop Curley, of Baltimore, will officiate at ceremonies, May 22, when the building is dedicated. Part of the money to be raised will be used to build a new playground.

Franco Seizes Foes' Castellon Headquarters

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, April 20.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Galician troops, in a surprise attack, tonight captured Albocacer, government field headquarters for northern Castellon Province.

Albocacer is only 26 miles north of Castellon de la Plana, largest coastal city between Valencia and Tarragona.

Insurgent dispatches said two main columns moved south on parallel coastal and inland highways while the Galician troops captured the hamlet of Turig and then moved across the fields to Albocacer.

Franco Opens New Drive.

Unyielding government resistance from the foothills of the Pyrenees to the Mediterranean Sea at Tortosa forced Franco to send new drives against two main objectives.

Targets of the insurgent offensive were Puigcerda, on the French border in Catalonia, northeastern corner of Spain now severed from government Spain proper, and Castellon, Mediterranean seaport south of Catalonia.

Columns composed of mixed units of Italian and Spanish troops, supported by many batteries of field artillery, blasted toward Castellon down the seaboard highway from Peniscola, 35 miles to the northeast, and along the inner highway from Salsadella, only 10 miles northeast of Albocacer.

Their immediate objective was to cut the main road between Albocacer and Valencia and their eventual goal was to make Castellon, one of the richest cities on the eastern coast.

Miaja Rushes Defense.

Against this southern insurgent army, Gen. Jose Miaja, now military dictator of the major part of government Spain, rushed the finest units of his command, drawing them from the Madrid, Toledo and southern fronts.

Government sources said Miaja, famed throughout government Spain as the defender of Madrid, was determined to hold Castellon at all costs. He counted this the first test of the strength of his command and feared internal trouble should the insurgents gain an easy victory.

In the far north, hard against the French and Andorran frontiers, insurgent troops under Gen. Solchaga, fresh from their easy conquest of the Aran Valley, found their next objective would be the hardest of the Aragon and Catalonian drives.

Government sources estimated 25,000 militiamen assembled near Seo de Urgel to bar Solchaga's way to the vital mountain gate of Puigerda, 26 miles to the east and north.

Meanwhile, the insurgents captured two more frontier posts on the French border, giving Franco possession of nine of the twelve main passes between France and Spain. These posts were at Portillon Hill, at the western edge of the Aran Valley, and Pont du Roi, main frontier pass in the valley.

30,000 Farmers Seen Using Crop Insurance

Omaha, Nebr., April 20 (AP).—Roy M. Report of Senate Committee Asks for Repeal of Profits Tax

Byrnes

again yesterday that when the Senate conferees realize that they must choose between the less drastic modifications of the House bill or no modifications at all, the fight will be over.

President Roosevelt has announced his favor of the House bill.

The committe's remarks on taxes stressed that the present report is only a preliminary survey of the general conditions, saying:

"The committee is of the opinion that the enactment of revenue legislation along the lines contained in the Senate bill will be exceedingly helpful at this time. The committee, however, does not believe that the permanent solution of the unemployment problem is quite so simple, and therefore, intends to pursue its inquiry in the hope that as a result of further study under more normal conditions, it can make recommendations broader in scope than those contained in this report and which will be more helpful to the Senate in dealing with the perplexing problems of unemployment and relief."

The committee's other conclusions were:

That in the existing emergency, "reliance must be had on Federal, State and local relief programs now in operation" probably from now on through the next fiscal year which begins in July.

That "close to 12,000,000" workers in the United States are jobless, with several million more working part time.

That on April 1, "conservatively estimated," approximately 14 per cent of the population of the country were "beneficiaries of one kind of public aid or another."

That total expenditures in the country, for relief and emergency public works programs, for the years 1933-37, were $19,300,000,000. Of this $14,200,000,000 came from the United States Treasury and $5,100,000,000 from State and local sources.

That in an investigation of the result of the prevailing-wage provision of the Federal law, enabling WPA workers to earn their security wage in one-third of the full working hours of a month, a five-city survey showed that 65 per cent of WPA workers had other employment. Cities were Atlanta, Baltimore, New York, Omaha and Pittsburgh. The report condemns this practice as defeating Congressional intent, and recommends spreading and rotation of work-relief employment with workers' outside income taken into account.

That equal treatment of States by the Government respecting sponsors' contributions to the cost of work-relief projects "is highly desirable," and that the simplest, most satisfactory method proposed "would be to write in the appropriation act for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1938, a stipulation that Federal funds are to be used for paying labor costs (security payments and salaries of nonrelief personnel) and administrative expenses, not exceeding a State average of $5 per worker per month for other costs." Thus all nonlabor costs (materials, etc.) in excess of a $5 average would be met by sponsors of projects.

The committee further recommended "far-reaching modifications" of the unemployment compensation system, particularly the transfer of the Employment Service from the Labor Department to the Social Security Board, to be co-ordinated with the latter's unemployment compensation division.

The committee also declared its opinion that direct relief grants through the Farm Security Administration are "unwise," and that rural needy should be aided only by work and loans.

It recommended defeat of proposals for grants in aid to States for relief, stating that adoption of this program would mean abandonment of work-relief standards.

It recommended against proposals that the social security program for dependent children should be liberalized to include children of unemployed parents.

The twelfth recommendation was for beginning social security old-age benefit payments earlier than 1942, the present provision, on grounds that this would mean retirement of older workers from the labor markets.

It further recommended passage of a Senate bill amending the social security act to require the merit system in operations of State plans in the program.

Whitfield Said He'd Go Away, Wife Reveals

Whitfield

Washington, and that she watched it for several minutes before it disappeared behind a hill. There was no sound of a crash, she said, adding she believed the plane had landed there—Editor's note.)

Mrs. Elizabeth Whitfield, his bride of less than a year, and her father, Dr. Robert H. Halsey, received two reports that the plane had been sighted Friday afternoon.

Jack Smith, Naval Reserve lieutenant and friend of Whitfield, who has been making an aerial search for the tiny ship, reported that the plane, flying so low its number could be read from the ground, had passed over Danbury, Conn.

A truckman said he saw a small plane dropping rapidly as he drove from Armonk to New Canaan, Conn., Monday afternoon.

J. H. Whitfield, brother of the missing man, conceded today that Whitfield had left home the day before his disappearance, instead of Friday, as the family had said before.

Neither he nor other relatives had known that, Whitfield said, until his brother's topcoat and suitcase were found in a hotel within a mile of the airport, where he registered at 12:14 a. m. Friday under the name of Albert C. White.

The suitcase he left at the hotel contained a supply of haberdashery, a passport, a $6,000 insurance policy and stocks and bonds made out in his and his wife's name.

Army Says Helium Ickes Stopped Can Only Fill Balloons

By the Associated Press.

The 17,900,000 cubic feet of helium which the State Department has approved for sale to Germany, Army officials said yesterday, could be of little military use except to inflate observation balloons.

They did not take public issue with Secretary Ickes' reluctance to ship the noninflammable gas, but expressed doubt any European nation would utilize dirigibles in war.

Germany asked for the gas for use in the big commercial dirigible built to succeed the Hindenburg, destroyed last year, in an explosion, but Ickes has withheld approval. He said Germany had not given sufficient guarantees the gas would never be used for military purposes.

Baby, 2 Children Found Starving in Apartment Here

A 7-month-old girl baby was sent to Gallinger Hospital to be treated for malnutrition and her older brother and sister were taken to the receiving home last night after police had found the children alone in an apartment in the 1200 block of Ninth street.

Second Precinct Policemen Patrick O'Sullivan and Harold Hodges entered the apartment, acting on complaint of the landlord. They found the baby, a boy, 4, and another girl, 6, scantily clad and apparently hungry. There was no food in the house, they said, and the refrigerator was filled with soiled clothing.

Summoned by the officers, Dr. Faxon Henderson, of Emergency Hospital, recommended that the infant be hospitalized. She weighed but 9½ pounds. At an early hour this morning police were still at the apartment, waiting for the children's mother to come home. The father is serving a jail sentence.

Congress to Get 'Stop-Gap' Bills For Railroads

Leaders Abandon Hope of Comprehensive Action to Meet Emergency.

By the United Press.

Congressional leaders have abandoned hope for enactment of comprehensive emergency railroad relief legislation at this session, but will attempt to pass stop-gap measures permitting bankrupt carriers to reorganize and scale down their staggering indebtedness, it was learned last night.

The program was outlined on the eve of a conference among Chairman Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and railway management and labor executives. They will discuss several measures prepared by Wheeler to remove red tape from the bankruptcy statutes so that the railroads can be rushed through the reorganization wringer.

Beyond this, Wheeler holds no immediate hope for other rail relief, despite President Roosevelt's recent message warning Congress that it must accept responsibility for solving the problem. This tosses overboard such vital issues as simplification of railroad holding companies, consolidations to eliminate duplications, and creation of a Federal transportation authority.

Crisis Too Complex.

Wheeler said the crisis, as a whole, is too complex to be solved quickly and that he hopes for a united front on enactment of the stop-gap measure which he believes will be acceptable to the carriers.

In furtherance of his program, Wheeler yesterday introduced "by request," a measure requiring the Government to pay full fare for railroad service. The bill was recommended by President Roosevelt's railroad committee and would add about $5,000,000 annually to rail revenues.

Conferring with Wheeler today will be Martin W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; J. J. Pelley, head of the Association of American Railroads; R. V. Fletcher, the association's counsel; George M. Harrison, of the Railway Labor Executives Association, and representatives from the 20 railroad brotherhoods.

House Action Due.

Chairman Clarence Lea (Democrat), California, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, said that next week his group will consider the rail program and that it undoubtedly will concentrate on an emergency reorganization measure, deferring the remainder of the rehabilitation program until next session.

In this connection, Representative Alfred Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, a committee member, introduced a resolution to establish a five-man house group to study co-ordination of all transportation agencies under a single Federal authority in line with Mr. Roosevelt's suggestions.

There is no disposition in either chamber to intervene in the current squabble between the railroad management and rail labor leaders over suggestions that the workers accept a voluntary 15 per cent wage cut to help the railways get back on their feet.

Dr. W. F. Elgin, 76, Serologist, Is Dead

Dr. William Franklin Elgin, 76, former associate of Walter Reed and founder of the National Vaccine Laboratories at Bethesda, Md., died Tuesday in Philadelphia, it was reported here yesterday.

A native of Montgomery County, Md., he attended Western Maryland College and the University of Maryland Medical School. He was a general practitioner in Bethesda for 12 years, and later directed the vaccine laboratories. Since 1929 he had been associated with manufacturing chemists in Philadelphia.

Dr. Elgin was a pioneer in the development of vaccines, specializing in smallpox serum. He is credited with developing the first glycerinated vaccine preparation in the United States, and also with discovering a cold-storage method of preparing smallpox vaccine. With Dr. Reed, he worked at the old Marine Hospital here, seeking a method of combating yellow fever.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, the American Public Health Association, the American Bacteriological Society and the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland.

Nation's News Editors Gather Here for Self-Analysis Session

A. H. KIRCHHAFER.

The Nation's foremost newspaper editors gather in Washington today to consider—and reply to—the growing volume of criticism aimed at American newspapers.

The occasion is the sixteenth annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which will be called to order at 2 p. m. today in the auditorium of the National Press Club by Alfred H. Kirchhofer, managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News and president of the organization.

The editors will announce a restatement of the society's code of ethics, or canons of journalism, adopted in the early twenties as a standard for editorial practice. An overwhelming majority of American newspapers have sought to live up to this standard, Mr. Kirchhofer said last night.

"Recently," he continued, "there has been a widespread tendency in many directions to criticize or belittle newspapers and newspaper efforts. That's why we are getting together—to show that the criticism is not justified, and to show what newspapers are doing to give an accurate and reliable news report.

"As we see it, newspapers are better today, have a more varied and more dependable news report, than ever before. The newspaper editors know that newspapers in this country are not perfect, but they also know that much of the criticism is not justified."

Nevertheless, in the course of the two-day convention, the editors will hold a "clinic." They will sift criticism that has been leveled at the newspaper profession and take cognizance of any they regard as well founded.

At this afternoon's session, President Kirchhofer will deliver his annual address, committee chairmen will make their reports and Dean Kenneth E. Olson, of the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern University, will speak on "raising the Standards of Schools of Journalism."

Tonight at 9 o'clock the editors will visit the White House for an off-record interview with President Roosevelt. Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, they will have a similar conference with Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State.

Tomorrow afternoon will come the clinic on responsibilities of the press, and restatement of the aims and ideals of the society by Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade.

At 7 p. m. tomorrow Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, and Mrs. Meyer will entertain members of the society and their wives at a buffet supper at their home.

Doctor Warns Hay Fever May Ruin the Sight

Everyone With an Allergy Should Watch Vision, Ruedemann Says.

If you have hay fever, break out with strawberry rash or suffer from any other allergic condition, be suspicious of changes or irregularities in your vision, Dr. Albert D. Ruedemann warned yesterday.

Member of the staff of Cleveland Clinic Foundation, the ophthalmologist stressed optical complications of general allergies in a lecture in the post-graduate course at George Washington University School of Medicine.

From 7 to 10 per cent of all persons sensitive to certain proteins—ragwood pollen, horse dander, tomatoes, etc.—face visual problems, he said. In some acute cases blindness results.

Treatment and cure of such conditions involves attention to the allergic cause itself, as well as to the eye, Dr. Ruedemann said.

The eye as a barometer which warns of the approach of arteriosclerosis, high blood pressure, brain tumor and kidney trouble was discussed by Dr. William Thornwall Davis, professor of ophthalmology at George Washington University, and Dr. John N. Evans, of New York.

Optical changes betraying the onset of systematic diseases may be observed from five to ten years before the general condition becomes distressing, Dr. Davis said. One early sign of impending trouble may be difficulty in getting comfortable glasses. Or, the glasses may be comfortable one day and irritating the next.

Early diagnosis and treatment may not only possibly save one's sight, but if the proper regimen is followed high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis may be warded off indefinitely, Dr. Davis said.

Venereal Bill Wins Approval Of House Unit

$271,000,000 Proposal Is Shaved to $15,000,000 by Committee.

A three-year, $15,000,000 venereal-disease-control program, which would be extended if Congress desired, was approved yesterday by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

As had been expected, the committee whittled down the La Follette-Bulwinkle measure from a $271,000,000, 13-year project. It now conforms with the bill which recently passed the Senate, authorizing a $3,000,000 appropriation the first year, $5,000,000 the second and $7,000,000 the third.

Urging prompt and vigorous application of improved methods for ridding Washington of venereal disease, the Social Hygiene Society indorsed recommendations of the United States Public Health Service as a result of the latter's recent study of District health.

"Past studies and reports embodying some of these same recommendations have been promptly pigeonholed and forgotten," warned Ray H. Everett, the society's executive secretary. "We must take advantage of this expert guidance if our city is to take its proper place in the great Nation-wide campaign against those outstanding menaces to health, syphilis and gonorrhea."

At yesterday's board meeting all the past year's officers were re-elected. They include Dr. H. H. Hazen, president; Rhoda Milliken, first vice president; Dr. Lewis C. Ecker, second vice president; Mrs. Lawrence Martin, secretary, and W. W. Wheeler, treasurer.

Newly elected to the board were Dr. William P. Herbst, Dr. Winfred Overholser, Prof. Carl G. Wells and Mrs. Eleanor N. Walker.

Critics Retard Senate Vote on Big-Navy Plan

But Leaders Entertain No Doubt $1,156,546,000 Bill Will Pass.

By the Associated Press.

Hopes of Administration leaders for quick Senate action on the $1,156,546,000 Naval expansion bill faded last night because of attacks by critics, but the leaders said there was "not the slightest doubt" of ultimate passage by an overwhelming margin.

Beginning a fight on the measure yesterday, Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, contended it was unnecesesary because there was no "group of foes" that could "even threaten an encroachment on our territory."

To this, Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of the Naval Affairs Committee, replied that a combination of German and Japanese seapower or the navies of Russia and Japan together could destroy the present United States Navy.

Assertion Called Absurd.

Walsh's assertion was termed "absurd" by Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota. The latter contended the regular appropriation bill, already approved by the Senate, was adequate to provide a defensive force for the area bounded by the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii, the Canal Zone, the Virgin Islands and the northern coast of Maine.

If a combination of foes hoped to beat the United States, he said, they would have to train soldiers to swim oceans with their equipment.

The proposed expansion, Nye said, is 'emphatically not for preparation to defend ourselves" but to "carry on aggressively in warfare thousands of miles away from home."

Attacks War Profits.

Citing testimony before the munitions committee, which he headed as chairman, Nye declared that in future conflicts the Nation would be defending itself against war supplies sold by American firms to other countries.

He urged immediate enactment of legislation to take the profits out of war and to prevent sales of munitions abroad in peace or war.

Lundeen commented that "we tried to have too big a navy so we took $200,000,000 worth of our ships out into the Atlantic and sank them to comply with an agreement with foreigners.

"I hope the American people will cease letting foreigners dictate to them what ships we can have and at what level we can raise our guns," he asserted.

Mrs. Mary Smith's Rites Tomorrow

Mrs. Mary Augusta Smith, 87, a life-long resident of Washington, died yesterday after a brief illness at her home, 317 Sixth street southeast.

She was the widow of Robert E. Smith, for many years a prominent grocer.

Mrs. Smith is survived by three daughters, Mrs. C. Louis Eckloff, Mrs. Fred G. Rose and Miss Helen Smith, and a son, Dr. J. Ernest Smith, all of this city.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow and at St. Peter's Church, Second and C streets southeast, at 9 a. m. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

John W. Daniel Dies in 87th Year

John William Daniel, 86, retired statistician, died yesterday at the home of his son, Benjamin J. Daniel, 4903 North Washington boulevard, Arlington, Va.

A native of Rawls County, Mo., Mr. Daniel for many years was employed as a statistician in the Bureau of Statistics in the old Department of Commerce and Labor. Following his retirement, he made his home with his son. He was a member of the board of the Union Methodist Episcopal Church.

Besides his son Benjamin, Mr. Daniel leaves another son, Robert, and three daughters, Mrs. M. D. Irvin, Mrs. W. E. Hudson and Miss Julia I. Daniel.

80 Pupils Take Job of Running District a Day

District affairs were controlled yesterday by more than 80 boys and girls selected from the various local junior high schools.

Sitting in as judges, as commissioners and the various other officers of the municipality, the youth of the city received first-hand information of the responsibilities of the District government.

Chief of the Metropolitan Police yesterday was Fred Bartlett, of Anacostia Junior High School. The young man, a brilliant student, toured the city with Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, peered into the intracies of police work and decided he would like to be chief some day.

Christine Kelley, of Anacostia Junior High School, represented Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education.

William McGuire, of the Sacred Heart Academy, donned the hat of the fire chief, rode in the chief's car and learned about firefighting. Director of Public Welfare Elwood Street turned over his office and duties to Calvin Green, of Hine Junior High School. Young Green was impressed with the many functions under the Welfare Board.

In Congress, Albert N. Pagnotta, of Jefferson Junior High School, represented Senator William King, chairman of the Senate District Committee. Allen Jounson, of Deal Junior High School, represented District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of Commissioners. Franklin Koontz, of Eliot Junior High School, represented Representative Vincent L. Palmisano, chairman of the House District Committee.

Hollis K. Kushman, of Gordon Junior High School, was the health officer, William Lamberton, of Dupont Circle Boys School was post master for the District, Blaine Fitzgerald, of Blessed Sacrament, took over the District auditor's duties.

Richard Beane, of St. Anne's School, represented District Commissioner George Allen, and David R. Craig represented Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan.

The day's program was climaxed by a parade, which was witnessed by all District officials. Col. John W. Oehman, of the District National Guard, was honorary marshal of the parade.

Early yesterday morning the youths met in the District Building and were sworn into office by Judge John P. McMahon. They all took the following oath:

"I pledge myself this day as a true citizen to learn to serve my fellow residents of Washington to the best of my ability, and to strive without regard to my personal welfare for the continued health, beauty and happiness of this, my city."

Captain Allen Dies at 63; Was Navy Engineer

Clot on Brain Is Fatal to Officer at His Home in San Francisco.

Capt. Walter Hinds Allen, 63, United States Navy, died yesterday at his home in San Francisco after a clot formed on his brain while he was playing golf.

A native of Newton Highlands, Mass., he had been public works officer of the Twelfth Naval District for the past two years and had planned to continue his profession as a consulting engineer in Boston after his retirement next February.

After graduating from Yale in 1895 with high scholastic honors, Capt. Allen was awarded the Larned Scholarship in the Yale Graduate School for the following three years. He also attended Sheffield Scientific School, from which he received the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy.

During the Spanish-American War he was a seaman and acting naval cadet in the volunteer Navy and then engaged in railroad engineering before entering the Civil Engineer Corps in 1903.

Capt. Allen, first stationed here in 1910, was on duty at the Navy Department as design manager of the Bureau of Yards and Docks from 1930 until 1934. While he was in that post, plans and specifications were completed for the large dirigible hangar and other structures at the Naval Air Station, Sumnyvale, Calif., and also for a floating drydock. During the two years preceding his transfer to San Francisco in 1936 he was war plans officer of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

In the early part of the World War he was stationed at the New York Navy Yard and carried out construction projects there which received the commendation of President Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Capt. Allen was associated with the Yale Club of Washington while stationed at the Navy Department and was a member of the Army and Navy Country Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Edith Stark Hancock Allen and his daugter, Miss Edith Isadore Allen, both of San Francisco, and a brother, J. Weston Allen, special assistant to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

Partake of nothing but the best;
If you would choose the best in blends,
Join the swing to CALVERT, friends!

Bob: "Say, Tom, did you know that before Prohibition blended whiskies outsold other whiskies by 3 to 1?"

Tom: "That so? Guess that proves that Americans have always enjoyed the smoothness and flavor of fine blended whiskies like Calvert."

Bob: "Right you are! And you know, Tom, it takes skillful blending—the expert Calvert touch—to make a whiskey taste so smooth and mellow."

Housing Drive Gains Impetus On Triple Front

Housing

home ordinarily costing $5,000 can be built for $2,500. The suggestions were approved by the Producers Council, composed of 58 manufacturers and associations in the building materials and equipment business.

Ormond E. Loomis, assistant to the chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank, told the architects the country has plenty of money to build the homes needed.

The richest field for home construction, he said, was in the smaller cities, where the most-needed type of dwelling was the detached, one-family house.

Construction of the houses would create a market of between $6,000,000,000 and $8,000,000,000 for materials, labor and technical skill, he estimated.

"In spite of financial stringency in many quarters the supply of private savings in the United States is steadily accumulating," he said, "and there is on hand enough to provide for a major housing boom."

The trouble is, he said, "each element essential in the production of housing appears to stand off and consider the others, waiting for a show of courage and initiative in which, by maneuvering, the others may gain some advantage."

Straus and Wagner collaborated last night in a radio explanation of progress and contemplated activity by the housing authority.

Wagner declared the lag in the construction industry since 1927 has been a chief source of economic difficulties, with that industry suffering from the largest relative volume of unemployment, and offering the greatest market for development by capital, private and public, and for reabsorption of the technologically unemployed. He declared there is an immediate shortage of "over 5,500,000 homes, with an additional need for over 10,500,000 homes for the period between today and 1950."

Investors Encouraged.

He said:

"In the first place, the law requires that at least 10 per cent of the capital cost of all housing projects must be raised locally. The United States Housing Authority has encouraged the supply of these local funds by private investors, at the unparalleled low interest rate of from 3 to 3½ per cent. This is absolute proof that private capital can be induced to enter the field of low-rent housing on a large scale on favorable terms.

"The second financial achievement of the Housing Authority has been to work out a system of mutual responsibility between the Federal and the local governments in the support of housing projects. In the interest of achieving very low rentals for low-income groups, the localities have voluntarily supplied annual subsidies averaging around 60 per cent of those supplied by the Federal Government. This by far breaks all records for local participation in a program of this type."

6,000 Homes Promised.

Straus declared the contracts approved yesterday will provide more than 6,000 homes for 26,000 slum dwellers. The first "big push" in the same direction was taken a month ago when contracts totaling over $16,000,000 were entered into for the rehousing of over 12,000 slum dwellers. Picturing the authority as now "stripped for action," he revealed also that only yesterday it made its first payments of cash, $167,000, to two local housing agencies which signed up last month.

"Money has now commenced to flow, and it will flow faster and faster toward the end of better housing and more re-employment," he said.

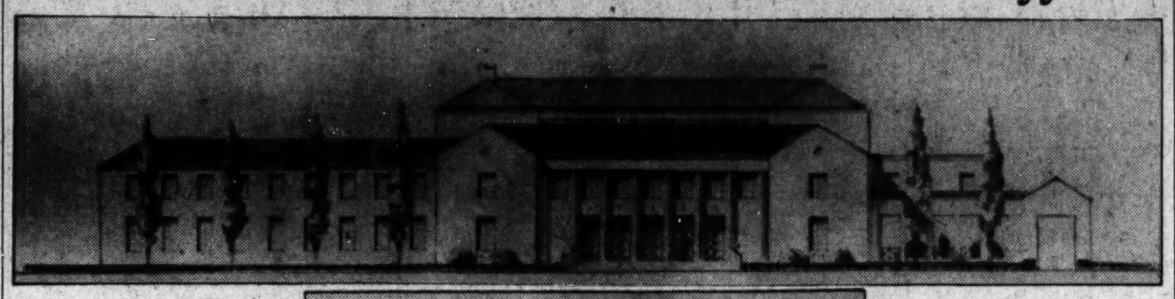
Relating progress made in the program, he said 33 States now have enabling legislation to participate and the number of local housing authorities has risen from about 50 to 123. More than $250,000,000 has been earmarked for use of localities, with requests for earmarkings totaling nearly $500,000,000 more.

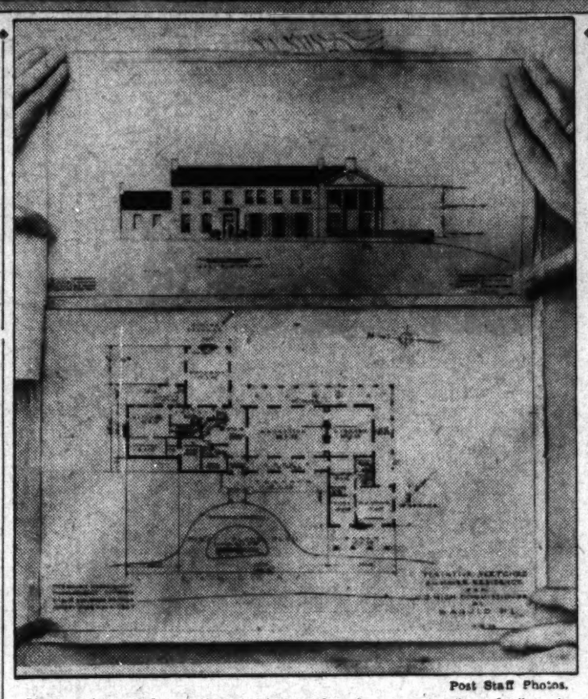
He added:

"Without sacrificing fundamental standards of decency, we have worked week after week in paring down costs, in cutting out frills and inessentials, while co-operating with the local housing authorities upon the plans which they have submitted to us. Although some friends of housing thought last year that the statutory limitations upon costs would prove an insuperable obstacle, we have been successful in developing plans which will cost even 10 per cent less than the statutory maximum.

"Another accomplishment has been the assurance of really low rentals upon proposed housing project."

McNutt's 18-Bathroom Palace Rouses Guffaws





Post Staff Photos.

Upper picture shows the architect's drawing for the "regular" residence for the U. S. High Commissioner to the Philippines sought by Paul V. McNutt. It would cost $500,000. Lower is the proposed $250,000 "summer" palace, with first floor plans. One of the palaces would be larger than the White House.

'Who Is He?' Hamilton Asks, Calling Him 'Lord High Commissioner.'

The industrious "Needling" of Paul McNutt, High Commissioner of the Philippines, continued merrily yesterday, as Representative Albert J. Engel (Republican), of Michigan, continued to pile up facts about the two palaces, "summer" and "regular," that McNutt wants built as commissioner's residences in the islands.

So fruitful was Engel's research that Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, close friend of the handsome, white-crested high commissioner, charged last night that the attacks are part of a concerted "Smash McNutt" campaign.

Minton declared that the current attacks are an attempt to eliminate his fellow-Indianan from the 1940 Presidential race.

But John Hamilton, chairman, Republican National Committee, didn't think so last night. Asked if Republicans were after McNutt, he said simply:

"Who is McNutt?"

The latest barrage began after House revelations by Engel, who charged: "If you can justify the building of two palaces, one for $500,000 and one for $250,000, in this day and age, when people are going hungry, and there are 13,000,000 unemployed, I want to know how.

"Lord High Commissioner McNutt wants one of these palaces to be larger than the White House. He wants 86 rooms and a ballroom floor 45 by 65 feet, two stories high in itself, with 825 feet of loggias, lounges and foyers, with 18 toilets and bathrooms with seating capacity of 43."

Engel revealed that Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, former High Commissioner, was responsible for the palaces. He blamed McNutt only for continuing to seek the residences when the islands are to be made independent under the Tydings-McDuffie act.

Minton confirmed rumors McNutt would soon, "probably in mid-summer" return to this country after resigning his post. He did not comment on reports McNutt will become president of Indiana University, where he was dean of the law school.

The big-jawed Indianan said last night:

"These concerted efforts are merely being exerted to put flyspecks on McNutt's reputation.

"The plans were drawn long before he went to the islands. They mean nothing to him except insofar as he feels the establishments are necessary for American prestige in the Philippines.

"This attack is unpremediated and unjust, I see no reason for it other than partisan politics."

Engel countered with the statement that nothing yet said answered the fact that McNutt, when questioned about the $15,000-a-year house he wishes to move into now, "didn't know how many rooms there were, or anything about it. He wants us to rent a pig-in-a-poke, and now he wants us to build $750,000 worth of palaces for him."

Senator Minton Brushes Away as 'Flyspecks' All Aspersions.

Patronage War Opens in Wake of Spending Program

approved the issues. Jones said there has been "a lot of talk about utilities not being able to get money, and we want to include them in the little business men." The RFC was authorized to make loans to small business and public bodies from a $1,500,000,000 fund under the Glass bill, which recently passed Congress. Jones made clear that the RFC would not buy utility stock. He emphasized that "this whole program is based on putting men to work."

Before the House Appropriations Committee, Hopkins agreed to accept the Woodrum amendment, requiring a spread of the new $1,250,000,000 relief fund over the entire seven months' period between July 1 and February 1. It was brought out that probably another $1,000,000,000 will be needed to finish the year, but no formal estimates were presented.

Hopkins testified that although the new fund will enable the WPA to increase rolls to 2,800,000, the WPA alone could not provide enough jobs to check the recession, and it is necessary that private business take up the slack. The works progress administrator was asked to return today, when he will be cross-questioned by Representative John Taber, of New York, ranking minority member of the committee.

House Democrats continued uniformly quiet on the "pump-priming" issue, but Chairman Hatton W. Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee, said he had "some very definite views on the subject" and probably will take the floor to discuss them before the bill is passed.

Both Representative Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, and Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, who, with Chairman Edward T. Taylor, are directing the course of the new measure, said they anticipated no serious difficulty in passing it.

The leaders are virtually agreed on carrying the measure before the House after 10 days of hearings under a suspension of the rules. That method would require a two-thirds vote, and would allow only 20 minutes debate on each side. Legislative provisions of the program would be vulnerable to points of order unless this method is followed or a special rule is granted by the House Rules Committee.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau conferred for more than an hour yesterday with the executive committee of the open market committee of the Federal Reserve System to work out plans to finance the recovery program.

Treasury officials disclosed that the Secretary will make a formal announcement this morning.

E. A. Goldenweiser, economist of the Federal Reserve Board, and John H. Williams, associate economist, attended the conference, as did Daniel W. Bell, acting director of the budget, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wayne C. Taylor, and economists George C. Haas and Harry D. White.

Pressure before the committee for new postoffice buildings and other construction in every Congressional District that can justify need for the structures followed last year's attempt to cut down on the annual item for "emergency construction of public buildings outside the District of Columbia."

On Monday, Admiral Peoples will be asked to estimate how much would be required to provide enough buildings to "go around" over and above the $25,000,000 Federal buildings item in the President's program. Proponents of the increase, who asked not to be quoted, placed the total figure at $60,000,000.

In the fiscal year 1935, $65,000,000 was provided for this purpose, and $60,000,000 was appropriated in each of the following two years. But in his 1938 budget message, the President cut the item to $23,000,000. Congress compromised by agreeing to a $70,000,000 three-year program, but appropriated only $23,000,000 for the present fiscal year. An additional $11,000,000 was appropriated in the recent Treasury bill. Members said this program held out hope of only one new postoffice in each district in three years. To the building fund, $25,000,000 more now would be added by the President's recovery program, but building bloc members say it would leave some districts in the cold. They are asking that the entire amount be appropriated, even if deductions have to be made in other spending items.

Aside from Cartwright's demands for two more years of highway authorizations, other House blocs appeared to be appeased by the new program. Representative Jed Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma, a leading advocate of Civilian Conservation Corps camps, said members were satisfied with keeping camps at present levels under the $50,000,000 CCC appropriation. Next session, Johnson said, he will seek to make 1,500 camps the permanent CCC level.

Wholeheartedly indorsing the new recovery program, Chairman John L. Lewis, of the Committee for Industrial Organization, in a letter to all C. I. O. affiliates yesterday, said it "recognizes the position which has been advocated by the C. I. O. for many months." He predicted the plan, when fully under way, will provide 3,500,000 jobs.

Robert Berger, radio program director for the Democratic National Committee, said 20 Governors have responded to the committee's suggestion that they comment publicly on behalf of the recovery proposals. Berger said Gov. Frank Murphy, of Michigan, will discuss the program in a Nation-wide broadcast tomorrow night.

Essay Contest Will Mark Air Mail Birthday

Washington Public, Private School Pupils to Seek 1,500-Mile Trip.

Vincent Burke, District postmaster, yesterday announced plans for an essay contest for students in public and private high schools of Washington in connection with the twentieth anniversary of the Government air mail service, to be celebrated from May 15 to 21.

Burke said the essays would treat the subject "Wings Over America," including the purposes of air transportation and its effects on modern communication. Similar contests are being conducted in each State.

Winners of the State contests will receive an air trip to Washington to take part in the Airmail Week celebration, while the winning Washington student will be given a 1,500-mile round trip by air to whatever point he wishes. The runner-up in the District will be given a plane ride to Norfolk, Va., and back. The national winner will be given a trip and five-day stopover to Hollywood, Calif., or Miami, Fla.

Deadline for entries was set for April 30, Burke announced, and the essays will be judged by Dr. John W. Studebaker, Commisioner of Education in the Interior Department; Dr. Albert F. Zahn, chief of the division of aeronautics at the Library of Congress, and Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education Association.

Background material for essay writers will be given at a meeting at 10 a. m. Saturday in the Department of Labor auditorium. Col. Clarence F. Chamberlain, one-time trasatlantic flier, will address the meeting.

Hazen, Receiving Card in A.F.G.E., Warns Unionists

A gold honorary life membership card in Lodge 87, American Federation of Government Employes, was presented to Commissioner Melvin Hazen last night at a meeting in Pythian Temple.

In his speech of thanks, the Commissioner approved the principle of union organization. He added the warning, "no union has the right to destroy property."

"Capital and labor should join in partnership," Hazen said. "Both are necessary, and there should be a reasonable division of profits between capital and labor." Hazen asserted that he opposed Government ownership.

Waterfront Prospects.

Whatever the budgetary doubts in embarking at this time on a $2,000,000 waterfront improvement program, there can be no question that the newly-begun work befits the season.

The Washington Channel is swarming with the growing throng of boating enthusiasts who will profit most directly from the development. But landlubbers, too, can send a vote of thanks to John A. Remon, chairman of the Board of Trade's river and harbor improvement committee which has done much to bring the plan to realization. The drive around Hains Point, to say nothing of fish dinners along Water street, will be much pleasanter for the project.

It should be noted that the District's share in the cost is estimated at only $400,000, with the Federal Government sponsoring the remainder. Army engineers will execute the work, returning the properties to the District as their renovation is completed. Except for the market block, virtually the whole face of Water street will be lifted. The roadway will be widened, extending the landscaped drive through Potomac Park which now ends at Fourteenth street. In addition, docks will be rebuilt and anchorages deepened, to the relief of commercial and sportsmen pilots alike. Finally, the dilapidated Morgue will go and new river fire and police stations will be constructed.

In all, the undertaking is planned to take eight years. That should be time enough to have begun two corollary projects needed to complete the development of lower Potomac Park. One is the elimination of the railroad tracks which now rudely divide it. A tunnel beginning north of Water street and emerging on the Virginia shore would seem to be indicated. The second is the purification of the Potomac. To manicure its shores while leaving its water contaminated would be a dubious achievement.

The PWA Program.

The proposal to revive the PWA as a pump-priming agency will seemingly give rise to more opposition than any other single feature of the President's relief and recovery program.

It is generally conceded that the WPA will require large appropriations to cope with increased unemployment. Although efforts will no doubt be made to induce the Administration to alter the policies now being followed, the chances for substantial modification of the present work-relief system seem slight. The credit provisions of the program do not require legislation, and a law liberalizing RFC lending has already been passed.

There remains as a center of controversy the recommendation for expending up to $1,000,000,000 of Federal funds on PWA projects, to be advanced to local governments either in the form of non-interest-bearing loans or as a combination of loans and grants.

The PWA has lost no time in trying to build up popular support for its revival by announcing readiness to finance nearly 2,800 projects said to be held in reserve. Until the details are published, it will of course be impossible to pass judgment upon the merit of these plans, although it is decidedly timely to ask why both the RFC and the PWA should be empowered to make pump-priming advances for public works. Other questions also arise which call for discussion. For example, many would like to know whether the PWA projects have been selected with a view to carrying out the long-range planning initiated by the National Resources Committee. So far there has been no intimation to that effect.

Furthermore, it will be remembered that the PWA was in the past seriously handicapped by rules and regulations requiring Federal funds to be applied to employment of relief labor. If the PWA is to be revived, therefore, it would assuredly be necessary to release it from restrictions that would simultaneously increase the cost and reduce the value of the public projects financed.

Congress should be prepared to devote plenty of time to discussion of these and other important topics, such as the reduction of relief overhead and more useful methods for employment of relief labor. The spending agencies, encouraged by the Administration, are plainly eager to create the impression that no time must be lost in voting appropriations. As a matter of fact, there is no haste whatever about approving the WPA program since it does not apply to the current fiscal year. And there are numerous reasons why Congress should resist efforts to stampede it into voting for an extension of public works that would add to the indebtedness of State and local governments, many of them already in financial straits.

Money for the financing of imperative local projects, such as new hospital wards in the District of Columbia, could be supplied by the RFC without reviving the PWA. Advocates of pump priming are following shrewd political tactics in announcing what they are ready to do if or when Congress votes funds for the revival of PWA. But the basic unsoundness of procedure remains even when the PWA holds out tempting offers of assistance in construction of public works that may be thoroughly useful and desirable in themselves.

Advice From Franco.

In a current radio broadcast, designed to undermine the dogged resistance of the Spanish republican armies, Gen. Francisco Franco paused to warn the surviving democracies against the disaster which has made Spain the shambles it now is. Democratic countries, he asserted, may eventually have to reckon with the same forces against which the Nationalist rebellion was directed. And the general left little doubt in the minds of his listeners as to the nature of these forces. They are what he generically describes as "Reds."

Of the sincerity of the Spanish Nationalist leader there is no doubt. It is entirely fitting for him to warn the United States, as one of the great democracies, against the real or fancied perils of Communist intrigue and propaganda. But in so doing he invites a little further thinking on the issue. And that thinking—if it deserves the name—is not likely to be flattering to Franco's cause.

It is impossible to define with any certainty the extent of Russian influence in Spain since the Soviet government came to power. Some observers maintain that it has been grossly exaggerated. Others believe that it was the driving force behind the overthrow of Alfonso and the establishment of the republic. But the greater the actual "red" influence the more important it becomes to ask why it was concentrated on Spain?

To this question the only possible answer is that Spain must have been regarded as very fertile ground for Communist intrigue. As the Nationalists themselves point out, to justify their own rebellion, people do not rise to destroy their institutions unless in those institutions there is much that is intolerably corrupt or tyrannical. But that is a shoe which fits both feet, right and left alike. It forces the conclusion that "red" organizers would have gotten nowhere in Spain unless conditions there were ripe for their endeavors.

Still another question, inevitably aroused by Franco's warning to the democracies, is why so many Spaniards in a position to estimate Bolshevik influence at face value should still seem to regard it as less distasteful than the Nationalist brand of patriotism? There are certainly hundreds of thousands of Spaniards with no Communistic leanings who have willingly chosen to be loyal to the duly-elected government as against the army rebellion which was launched 21 months ago. The unavoidable inference is that these average Spaniards actually prefer the Communist association, be it large or small, to the rule which Franco endeavors to impose upon them.

So the logic behind Franco's warning is not such as to cause any tremors about "Reds" to run down the spines of intelligent Americans. It is more likely to arouse heartfelt thanks that this country has never tolerated the conditions which have, it seems, attracted "red" agents to Spain like flies to garbage. The general's warning is meant well, and well taken. It calls attention to the fact that our democracy has many serious problems. But they are not of the type that has destroyed Spain's ancient grandeur, and the solution of them will never call for help from Hitler and Mussolini.

That fact is fairly obvious. So is the fact that this is precisely the sort of regime in which America does believe. Like other brands of Fascists, the rising Spanish dictator has his admirers in the United States. But it may be surmised that not many of them, for all our crucial unsolved issues, would willingly exchange their place of residence. As compared with what Franco, under obvious Nazi influence, calls his "national syndicalist revolution" there is still quite a lot to be said for a "democratic liberal regime."

Unpopular Tax Exemption.

The Gallup poll on the public attitude toward taxation of Government issues indicates strong popular support for Senator Borah's amendment, calling for taxation of the income from all future issues of Federal securities. President Roosevelt has already announced his intention to press for such legislation. Now the Gallup survey shows that nearly three-fourths of those polled in all sections of the country would go even farther and tax income from State and local government issues.

With such a preponderant majority in favor of complete abolition of tax exemption privileges, it should be readily possible to obtain ratification of a constitutional amendment enabling the Federal Government hereafter to tax income from State issues. States in turn should then be permitted to levy upon holders of Federal obligations.

Pending passage of such an amendment, however, the Federal Government should stop the creation of more tax-exempt issues on its own account. It cannot, however, with or without a constitutional amendment, proceed to the taxation of securities now enjoying tax-exempt privileges without a violation of the obligation of contract. Such action would deal a severe shock to public confidence and would be unjust to those who have paid high for Government issues because of their tax-exemption features.

A Public Trust

Regardless of party affiliation a number of Congressmen confessed to being genuinely shocked when Representative Church disclosed the gross abuse of the franking privilege perpetrated by Horace Russell, the general counsel of the HOLC. On official stationery inclosed in franked envelopes, Mr. Russell openly solicited private business for an associate who had just resigned from Government service. Naively the writer suggested that the "intimate knowledge" gained by this ex-official would be valuable to those having dealings with various bureaus, commissions and departments of the Government.

As Representative Michener pointed out in course of the House debate, it was precisely to suppress the evils of such intimate contacts that Congress passed a law, still on the statute books, making it illegal for persons formerly connected with the Government to engage in practice before departments or against the Government for two years following their withdrawal. Because the HOLC is a Federal corporation is no reason why its ex-employes should have any special immunities in this respect.

The flagrant impropriety of Mr. Russell's action is indisputable, whether or not he can be charged with illegal use of the franking privilege. His prompt resignation under Congressional fire sufficiently indicates the attitude of his superiors. It is, however, astonishing that Mr. Russell should defend his conduct, asserting that he has "done nothing in conflict with legal ethics." And there is no reason to doubt that this is an honest statement of opinion, since the offending letters were widely distributed to friends and foes of the Administration.

Such failure to recognize that "public office is a public trust" is particularly arresting in the case of a well-liked and respected lawyer, chosen by his colleagues in the Government service to head an organization interested in raising the standards of the legal profession. The episode shows clearly that the maintenance of high standards of conduct cannot be assured by imposing penalties for specified acts of omission or commission. The more insidious methods of exploiting public position cannot be reached by the law. Only the pressure of popular opinion, formed and sustained by the force of example, can protect the Government service against the multiform abuses of which Mr. Russell's action is an outstanding but unfortunately not unique example.

High standards of conduct in the Government service are difficult to maintain unless officials in the topmost places are scrupulous in their avoidance of actions designed to exploit or commercialize their positions. When a President of the United States could see no impropriety in selling his public papers and addresses to a newspaper syndicate it is understandable that lesser officials should take a few liberties with the franking privilege.

Mr. Russell's case, therefore, is plainly a warning against the progressive deadening of those finer perceptions which enable office-holders to draw a sharp line between public and private activities. It is not a distinction subject to statutory definition. But it is one that every man who is intelligent and conscientious can recognize, if he chooses, and in so doing help to improve the morale of the public service.

Spirit Of '38.

It wasn't at all polite of the Sons of the American Revolution. They stole a headline right from under the powdered noses of their sister D. A. R.s in convention assembled. Perhaps "stole" isn't quite the word. It was their rightful due. A bomb—always big news—exploded right in the S. A. R. lap.

It was at the annual meeting of the local S. A. R. chapter. The principal address of the evening confined itself to calm consideration of White House-Capitol Hill relationships. But there had been, too, some harsh words said about sit-down strikes, aliens and Harold J. Laski. Then, out of the blue, came the bombshell. A speaker rose to urge indorsement for Federal wage and hour legislation, to support "yardsticks" for major industries and to denounce "great corporations." Gates at Camden could scarcely have been more jolted than were his colleagues.

Pressed afterwards for the reason of his assault, the S. A. R. member declared that he had become "tired of hearing them . . . always trying to link communism with the Government." It is to be hoped that this altogether comprehensible explanation will not be lost on the female of the revolutionary species.

The Spending Program.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So we're in for another spending spree, robbing Peter to pay Paul, with the result of robbery all around by an overgrown, tax-eating Government. Paternalistic governments are like the rich who, as Tolstoi said, "will do anything for the poor but get off their backs." The poor with us seem, however, to invite the riding by their mass clamor for a soak-the-rich program of wealth taxation, unmindful of the fact that wealth is what we all must have to live, and the more it is taxed the harder it is to come by. Our statesmen are more or less aware of the boomerang effect of such taxation, but are afraid to talk back because of their dependence upon the masses for continuance of their short-term jobs.

The obvious cure for what ails us is to make land in place of wealth the basis of taxation. We hear little of the cause and less of the cure, however, because every one of us, from the top down, who owns more land than he can personally use, is a part of the monopoly, even down to the writer, who pays no income tax, yet owns land in two States, for which he has no use except to sell it some time for several times what it is worth.

HENRY GEORGE DEMOCRAT.
Washington, April 19.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why all the headlines about spending by the Government? It's just the New Dealers setting out to buy the 1938 elections as they bought the 1936 ones—with the taxpayers' money. Did anyone expect anything else? FRED HASSAN.
Washington, April 15.

"Fight For Peace."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The United States and Great Britain need more than arms; they need the backing of their people. They may arm to the hilt and possibly succeed in averting a major catastrophe in that manner. But it could be done so much more easily if the persons in this country and in the States stopped speaking of peace and began threatening war if Hitler continues to take what he wants of Europe and if Japan keeps up her rampaging in China.

Let the Government continue her struggle for peace. She will do her level best to prevent war. For ourselves, let us give her notice that we will fight to the end willingly at her first call. It is the people of the United States and of Great Britain and her empire who have the power to avert war by being willing to go at a moment's notice and by voicing their views on the subject at every chance they get.

The people can show Germany, Italy and Japan that if they persist in aggression war will be the inevitable result. Let us fight for peace, not by saying it is a lovely thing and we will not fight, but rather by announcing our willingness to go to war if our country sees fit to send us.

The Fireside Chat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read the message and I listened to the speech, but I failed to hear the head New Dealer say that "we planned it that way." Just a plea for more money to spend, more schemes to try, more attempts to cover up the staggering total of debt that is accumulating. And then he had the nerve to ask the people who have saved up a little money to approve and co-operate.

Easter Rabbit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Rabbits are pretty creatures. They are also destructive and elusive. They have a habit of appearing suddenly on the scene, sitting up to beg our administration, then when our backs are turned they strip our garden vegetables of life-giving foliage and scamper away to disappear into the wilderness.

Another rabbit has suddenly popped out of the Presidential hat. Dressed in its Easter finery this creature would have us believe it is trustworthy. But, somehow, the more we scrutinize this animal the more we are convinced it is an old offender—an enemy ready to start its destructive work again the moment we give it its freedom. Cruel as it may seem to the unthinking individual we should kill this imp of destruction and get rid of it for all time.

The United States is a garden of plenty. Its gardener is the people; its vegetables, the industries; its harvest, the wealth. If this garden is properly planted, cultivated and harvested, out of it will come peace, contentment and happiness.

But, lo and behold! Just when the gardener feels that clear skies are at hand, and that he can go ahead with security, out of the magic hat pops the rabbits. The gardener had better beware!

Elderman's Pacers.

To the Editor of The Post.—Sir: Do you, by any chance, happen to know whether your cartoonist owns a light-harness racing stable; or if he has a definite predilection for pacing saddle horses (or mules)?

A check-up on his illustrations during the past reveals that 75 per cent of them are of the "pacing" variety—side-wheelers—no matter whether of two-legged or four-legged animals nor of whatever genus, species, or breed.

Some time ago Mr. Elderman had F. D. R. on a mule going downhill at 40 miles an hour—and pacing. Now he has the other half of that picture going uphill at 60 miles an hour—and pacing.

Does Mr. Elderman walk or run "side-wheeler" fashion? Or did he ever see anyone who does?

Business In Mexico.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently the Mexican government confiscated the oil properties of a number of American business companies.

Today's newspapers state that an outstanding bear during the Hoover Administration is helping the Mexican government dispose of the confiscated property by finding a sale for it, so that the Mexican government can realize on their seizures.

I cannot understand the ethics of a business deal that allows one group of so-called Americans to give aid and succor, for a substantial consideration, of course, to a foreign government peddling property that it has seized from another group of Americans. HARRY W. MILLS.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As publicity chairman of the Tour of Historic Houses sponsored by the Alexandria Association on April 16, I wish to express to you my grateful appreciation of the space and co-operation given by The Post. Due to the generous assistance our tour was the largest and most successful ever held in Alexandria. The Washington papers, one and all, aided very materially our success.

I think perhaps you might be interested to know that the proceeds from the tour will enable us to finish paying for the new roof and dormers on Gadsby's Tavern.

The Revised Memorial Location.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On April 27, 1937, Mr. John J. Boylan, speaking before the Library Committee of the House in defense of his grandiose scheme for filling up the Tidal Basin with concrete and cement in the name of a memorial to Thomas Jefferson, made this statement. I quote from the Record:

"According to the L'Enfant plan carried out under the direction of Gen. Washington and with the help of Jefferson himself, there were five cardinal points in the city where a large memorial or some great building should be erected and of those five points I might state that one was selected for the White House, one was selected for the Capitol, one was selected for the Lincoln Memorial and one for the Washington Memorial. Now the fifth point was on the Tidal Basin where we propose to locate the memorial to Thomas Jefferson."

It was the west side of the Tidal Basin to which Mr. Boylan referred. Since all of this area in L'Enfant's time was under water as part of the Potomac River, which in those days came up close to the south grounds of the White House, this was a marvel of prescience.

On April 1, 1938, perhaps a significant date, this statement was issued from Mr. Boylan's office:

"For the Jefferson Memorial we have reached a decision which gives Jefferson a noble memorial, worthily placed in conformity with his importance and with the plan of Washington. The plan is to leave the basin as it is at present and to place the memorial on its south bank . . . on a line through the White House, which has been regarded ever since 1901 as the proper site for a memorial of major importance. In relation to the Washington Monument it gives the Jefferson Memorial a position on the south similar to the Lincoln Memorial on the west and completes the great central plan of the city in which the Capitol and the White House occupy the other cardinal points on the east and north of the Monument."

It will be observed that Mr. Boylan's axis with its "cardinal points" has within a year obligingly swung 90 degrees of the compass to move the Jefferson Memorial from the west to the south bank of the Tidal Basin.

Both locations, however, sedulously maintain one feature. Both are on filled-in, made ground and so, according to technical testimony at the above hearings, would call for about $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 additional expenditure for concrete and cement foundations. And on the present proposed site even these extras would, without doubt, have to be greatly increased for roadway alterations and construction before the $3,000,000 structure could even be started.

THERESA H. RUSSELL.
Washington, April 16.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Perhaps everybody doesn't feel as if they would scream if they heard anything more about the Jefferson Memorial, but many must (and what a time during this depression-recession to build a memorial in any case!). Therefore I suggest a simple and final solution: Why not place it in the beautiful and peaceful Cedar Hill Cemetery?

AN OLD WASHINGTONIAN.
Washington, April 15.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why don't we forget the Tidal Basin, serene and lovely as it is, and as Jefferson was a Virginian anyway, put this classical building across the river on the Mount Vernon boulevard where it will stand out by itself, competing with nothing else and be a joy to all. If Jefferson could hear all this discussion—and who are we to say he isn't "listening in"—he would certainly be disgusted. A. E. A.

The Post Impressionist

Timmy's Family.

AT eight weeks, Timothy was a good-looking cocker spaniel, even though his tail had not been clipped and his tan coat gave every appearance of having been the scene of a lengthy filibuster by a congress of buffalo moths. No doubt a breeder of show dogs would have picked him to pieces, but for an uncritical, dog-wanting family he seemed ideal. The sale was clinched when the Virginia lady, who had advertised him and his two sisters, tied a red bow around his neck and said what a fine Valentine he would make for his new mistress.

The ride back to Washington must have been a harrowing experience for a very small dog just discovering that there was more to the world than the four walls of a homey box. No matter how much attention he received, he managed to slide between the seats of the car with regularity—at each red light. With the excitement of it all, he slobbered a bit, and by the time his new home was reached, the beautiful red bow was untied, tangled and limp.

"Who ever heard of a cocker spaniel with a tail?" his mistress asked when she saw him, and thus coined a question destined for much repetition. It was explained that the tail could be cut short by a vet. Whereupon Timothy, displaying the first symptoms of an unsuspected intelligence, began to wag the subject of the discussion with a great violence, giving every possible indication that a tail was an essential part of his personality.

So Timothy was accepted, tail and all, and the visit to the vet was deferred until the near future, when we might have been accepted by Tim and a sudden curtailment would not make him consider us utterly heartless. It was no time at all until he was firmly established as an important member of the household, combining the functions of lares, penates and nuisance.

As time went by, the buffalo moth-eaten appearance of his coat gave way to a handsomer, ruddier hair. His legs grew longer, his ears remained static, and as puppyhood slid away from him, so did the major portion of his cocker spaniel heritage. In the excitement of first ownership, we completely forgot where Timmy had been purchased, and so it has never been possible to check up on his antecedents. His mother had been seen, his father vouched for; but if there isn't an English setter in that part of Clarendon, Tim and his owners have been very badly fooled. We still think he would look more like a cocker if we cut his tail, but—unless he is nipped by one of the cars he sometimes flirts with—that operation never will take place. We can imagine Ham Lewis without pink whiskers and Charlie McCarthy without a monocle, but not Timmy without a tail.

In the 13 months that have passed since we started paying dog taxes, our entire routine of living has been visibly affected. We still are allowed many rights, but some have vanished completely under a mild but effective dictatorship which might be called dogmatic. We still are permitted to use any of the chairs we like, but the sofa is Tim's domain, and there is no help for a visitor who sits there without wanting a dog in his lap.

We are encouraged to buy ice cream, provided Tim has a reasonable, or lion's, share, and can chew on the carton for good measure. Once, in a mistaken moment of educational ambition, we taught him to beg; since then he has spent more time squatted hopefully than standing on four legs.

On one regulation he is very definite: no display of affection beyond a fleeting embrace is permitted unless he is on the receiving end. This rule, enforced with barks, bites and scratches, applies not only to the immediate family but also to chance visitors. No household in which Tim remains will ever have a husband who pinches blondes affectionately when his wife is somewhere else.

As long as we keep within boundaries, Timothy is very indulgent. He permits us to play ball with him, take him for walks, and in general treat him as an equal. But we sometimes wonder what kind of an impression he makes on strangers.

The other afternoon a little girl from up the street was walking by our house with her mother.

"Look, mummy," she was heard to say, "There is Timmy's house!"

And, a moment later:

"And there is Timmy's mummy, too!"

Fortunately, for his self-respect, "Timmy's father" wasn't around. But do you wonder why we are thinking of renaming Tim—and calling him Frankenstein?

Distributor Of Wealth

It isn't widely known, but one American industry "primed the national pump" to the tune of $3,000,000,000 last year. And it didn't do it by going into debt or exploiting the taxpayer.

That industry was legal reserve life insurance. And of that $3,000,000,000, 60 per cent was paid to living policyholders and only 40 per cent to beneficiaries. Since 1930, the companies have paid out the staggering total of $21,000,000,000.

"The greatest distributor of wealth the world has ever known"—that's life insurance.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Like Donie Bush.

WHEN I was writing baseball we had in the American League an unpire named Bill Guthrie, who had a bulldog jaw, whom the athletes, with their famous knack for unflattering nicknames, called Dogface Guthrie. Mr. Guthrie loved controversy, preferably physical, but he had a kind heart and a deep, personal admiration for Mickey Cochrane, who was then catching for Connie Mack in Philadelphia.

PEGLER.

One day late in one of those seasons when Connie was winning his last batch of pennants the White Sox limped into Philadelphia, dragging themselves around the league for the last time in a contest for eighth place, a distinction which they finally won from the Red Sox by the margin of half a game. The weather was terribly hot, and Mr. Cochrane, after a very hard season, was weary and sluggish. Mr. Guthrie, being large and stout and cumbered with the heavy armor of his trade, not only felt sorry for Mike, but, in loyalty to the American League, wanted to spare him needless exertion so that he could be as fresh as possible for the impending world series.

With these feelings in his heart, he erred on the side of generosity when the Philadelphia pitcher, in the ninth inning, threw one right through Mike's listless hands which rolled about 10 yards and stopped. Mike whirled and was starting after the ball when Mr. Guthrie flipped a fresh ball out of his pocket and said, "Let it go, Mike. Here's a clean one."

• • • •

THE WHITE SOX had a runner on first at the moment, but were about eight runs behind with two men out. In these circumstances, Mr. Guthrie was startled by a shriek from the third base coacher's box. It was Mr. Donie Bush, the manager of the White Sox, yelling to his runner to go down to second.

Mr. Guthrie waved the runner back, but the man proceeded, nevertheless, and when he had doubtfully rounded the bag Mr. Bush, from third, with frantic motions, commanded him to continue.

"Go on back!" Mr. Guthrie bawled. "That ball is dead!"

"Come on around," Mr. Bush squawked to his runner. "That ball ain't dead. That ball is in play." His runner rounded third and Mr. Bush sent him charging home, where Mr. Cochrane stood at the plate and tagged him with the fresh one.

"Now he's out," said Mr. Guthrie.

"He ain't out," Mr. Bush bawled. "He scores."

At this point the other two umpires, George Moriarty and Big Shot McGowan, strolled in to confer privately with Mr. Guthrie, who plainly had booted one.

"Bill," Mr. Moriarty whispered to his colleague, "that ball ain't dead. We have got to do something."

"Oh," said Mr. Guthrie, "it's too hot for Mike to go chasing that ball, just before the World Series. He is a great little guy and he is all in. What's the difference, anyway? Those bums are way behind, with two men gone, but you would think Donie was fighting for a pennant. Put the mug back on base and leave us get through."

• • • •

"YES," said Mr. McGowan, "but what base are we going to put him on? We got four bases. Anyway, now you have called him out on a play at the plate. That was no play."

"Oh, cut it in half and put him on second," said Mr. Guthrie, and this was done, with Mr. Bush, of the White Sox, yipping and bouncing and vowing to protest the game.

It ended a few minutes later in the customary defeat of the White Sox, and, as the players finished dressing and straggled out, Mr. Bush, somewhat calmer by now, met Dogface under the stand.

"Bill," he said, "I am not going to protest the game. But right is right, and I want you to admit you kicked one. That's all I ask. Just let me win the argument."

Mr. Guthrie shook his head.

"That ball," he said, "was dead."

In a more recent controversy I share the position and emotions of Mr. Bush.

I claim that it is unethical for sons of a President of the United States to have profitable dealings with corporations which are beholden to whimsical political bureaus of the Government for valuable rights and favors, and still more unethical for a President to take into the White House and confer great personal influence on a young man whose sense of propriety is such as that.

I am not going to protest, or try to start impeachment proceedings. Like Donie Bush, I just want to win my argument.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Lines After Reading Of A Lawsuit.

(All characters in this jingle are fictitious. Any resemblance to any actual person or persons is unintentional.)

What an errant son! How awful!
You have broken mother's heart—
Just because you earned a fortune
You've the nerve to ask a part!

What a cold and cruel offspring!
What ungrateful things you do!
Fancy asking for a share of Money reaped from starring you!

Have you no regard for parents?
Do you feel no filial call?
Would you, having earned six millions,
Stop your folks from keeping all!

At the magic name of "Mother"
Does your heart not go "pit-pat?"
How unkind to earn a fortune
And to ask a share of that!

When you were a little infant
Making dough for pa and ma
Did you hope some day to share it?
Oh, how could you be so raw!

When you were but six or seven
And you drew a princely pay
Did you not consult a lawyer?
If not, why complain today?

When you were a star child actor
You were anything but smart—
(You were late to get a counsel)—
Now you're breaking mother's heart!

Shame upon you! How abhorrent!
To think any parents should
Wish to share with you big money
That you earned when things were good!

If you're broke and face a struggle,
To ask ma for help is raw;
Mother's very, very sorry
But she says the law's the law!

London Letter

Chamberlain's Foreign Policy Said Scarcely Tested By Fulham Vote Because Labor Injected Question Of Living Costs.

By David Wills.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

London (By Mail).

HONEST NEVILLE has learned his trade well from Honest Stanley. The last prime minister won a general election by dressing up his party, for the duration of the election, in the clothes of the opposition. Honest Neville is about to sign his treaty with Mussolini, which has been obtained by methods worthy of recent prime-ministerial tradition.

For Mr. Chamberlain laid down from the beginning of the discussions with Italy the condition that there should be no more intervention in Spain. Mr. Chamberlain told the Italian Ambassador that if we made an agreement we could not ask the League to recognize Abyssinia and approve the agreement if "in the meantime anything had been done by the Italian government in regard to Spain which had altered the situation in favor of Gen. Franco."

In point of fact Italy has during the negotiations so altered the situation in favor of Franco that he has almost bombed his way through Catalonia to the sea. But Mr. Chamberlain wanted his agreement badly, and to all questions in the House about Italian intervention he replied either that there was no proof of any renewed Italian effort to help Franco, or more flatly that there had not been any renewed intervention.

Proof has been offered him in detail by the opposition, with the result that the prime minister has shifted his ground and says: "I have no reason to think that the position in Spain has been materially altered by recent Italian reinforcements to Gen. Franco;" and "I do not deny there have been some reinforcements of both sides."

Nation Has Choice Of Two Interpretations.

DRAW CONCLUSIONS to choice. Either the prime minister was deceived while he was denying any Italian acts in Spain contrary to his condition for an agreement; or the prime minister was deceiving the House and the country by pretending he had made serious conditions, whereas in fact he did not care 2-pence what happened to Spain so long as he could get his agreement with Italy, and come triumphantly home as a belaureled statesman.

The agreement is now very near. None of the forecast clauses is itself implausible or undesirable. Recognition of each other's right of communcation in the Mediterranean, cessation of antagonistic propaganda, no race of fortification against each other, and so on. Criticism centers strongly, however, on the points that the agreement will take effect when Italian forces are withdrawn from Spain and Spanish territory, and Britain invites the League to recognize Italian conquest of Abyssinia.

It is asked by the opposition here whether Italian forces are in fact to be withdrawn, whether if they are Spain will still be held for the dictators by Germany, or whether the prime minister has no intention of ever asking the Italians to withdraw and is merely introducing this condition for the sake of bluffing his domestic political opponents.

It is also asked whether Britain does wisely, even granted Italian withdrawal from Spain, to put pressure on the League to recognize Abyssinia as an Italian colony. Britain will in fact be saying to the League: We have what we want out of Italy, so you fellows may as well stop sulking and speak nicely to the good Italians who have promised not to hurt us. Such action will smash into yet smaller fragments the pieces of the League system which still remain.

But although these points trouble the vocal political opposition in the House of Commons, they do not disturb Mr. Chamberlain. His letter to the League asking for the Abyssinian question to be reconsidered has already been sent; and Mr. Hore-Belisha, minister for war, is shortly to visit the Duce himself in Rome, and, as it is put by a Conservative paper in London, "congratulate the Duce on being once more on friendly terms with Britain!" Herr Hitler is said to be very happy over the results of his plebiscite; Mr. Chamberlain is also very happy over the results of his conversations with Italy. And let Mister Hitler make what he can of that when he arrives shortly in Rome.

Fulham Vote Clouded By Labor's Strategy.

THE ONLY TEST of public reactions to the many arguments over the whole policy in the House of Commons was provided by the by-election at Fulham. In a straight contest between Conservative and Labor, with the former fighting almost entirely on Chamberlain's foreign policy, and the latter retaliating, both with an attack on foreign policy and with strenuous criticism of the economic domestic effects of Conservative rule, the Conservatives lost the seat to Labor by a substantial turnover of votes.

The official Conservative interpretation of the result is that the opposition were cads for dragging in domestic issues, that the government's foreign policy would have been vindicated if it alone had been the issue, that the opposition based its criticisms, both foreign and domestic, on deliberate misrepresentations and that it would be a very fine thing for everybody if it were made illegal for anybody to criticize the national government in its emergency.

There is this much truth in this interpretation, that domestic issues did play a large part in the election result. Housewives were worried by the rising cost of foodstuffs, and by the prospect of rising rents as a result of the intended dropping of rent control which has survived up to the present from wartime days. The defeat of the government candidate is not a clear repudiation of the Chamberlain foreign policy.

The country is still giving Mr. Chamberlain all the rope he wants to take; if he hangs himself with it it will be entirely his own responsibility.

Engineering Unions Resist Arms Program.

THERE HAS BEEN a show of objection from the engineering trade unions, which have been invited by the government to relax their trade regulations so that the supply of skilled men may be diluted and armament supply increased. The engineering union wanted to know what the arms were for, said it didn't trust the government anyway, asked for a sign of faith in the shape of arms for the government in Spain.

This opposition may become serious. The engineers have had the short end of the stick ever since the war, when last they agreed to dilution of their regulations. They are not eager to repeat what from their trade interests was a backward step, particularly since they claim that there are still skilled engineers unemployed. But the odds are that this disagreement will not reach the point of open refusal to co-operate with the government in rearmament, provided the government has the good sense to curtail the profits of manufacturers.

Even in the Labor Party itself there are many who still believe that the country's foreign policy is the responsibility of the government, and that if the trade unions do not like that policy they must endeavor to persuade the country to the same belief, and must not take direct economic action. For the time being this attitude is likely to prevail.

Wages & Hours

By Leo Wolman

Prospective Labor Costs.

Following are excerpts from an article published in the March issue of the American Economic Review supplement.

ON TWO OCCASIONS since the middle of 1933 there have been quick and exceptional increases in labor cost. The first was in the few months following the inauguration of the NRA; the second in 1936-37, a period coinciding with the rise of the C. I. O. While there are no satisfactory measures of labor cost itself, at least two important elements of labor cost, wage rates and hours, can be measured with considerable accuracy for these years and the remaining elements can be estimated in useful, if general, terms. On the movement of wage rates and hours of work in this period I shall use only figures for the manufacturing and bituminous coal industries.

In manufacturing the average rate of wages was 42 cents an hour in June, 1933, and 66 cents in August, 1937. The rate of wages for this type of labor, covering some eight to nine million persons, thus increased 57 per cent. If pay-roll taxes for social security are included the increase would be 60 per cent in 1937, and at the beginning of 1938, 61 per cent. In bituminous coal, the increase in the rate of wages during the same period was 99 per cent.

The average full-time work-week in manufacturing industries was in 1937 from seven to eight hours less than in 1929. Compared to the last months of the depression, the reduction in the length of the work-week was even greater and may easily amount to ten hours per week. The average normal work-week in manufacturing in 1937 was roughly 40 hours. In bituminous coal it was 35 hours. From 1933 to 1937, the reduction in the length of the work-week of soft coal miners exceeded that of manufacturing considerably, and amounts in some estimates to as much as 13 hours per week.

Regarded in terms of the total business situation, the character of the fecovery we have had since 1933, and the persistence of high rates of unemployment in many branches of industry, these increases in labor cost would appear to be excessive, difficult to absorb, and, hence, not calculated to encourage new enterprise, risk-taking, and the investment of large funds in industry.

• • • •

THE FORCES which have already made for high labor costs will not in the near and predictable future yield to the necessities of the business situation but may indeed be reinforced by the rising power of organized labor and Government and by the influence of new institutions created to effect social reform and to improve the lot of labor. The belief in the efficacy of high-wage rates neither the Government nor organized labor may be expected quickly to discard. Public commitments to this doctrine have been too frequently and too vigorously repeated. Much of the gains won by the unions may be traced to the organizing campaigns and strikes that resulted in substantial advances in the hourly rate of wages and equally considerable reductions in the work-week. A large part of the political following of this Administration may likewise be traced to the promise of higher wages and fewer hours.

Now that the course of business has changed and we face declining employment and pay rolls and narrowing margins of profit, the high-wage doctrine seems more tenacious than before. The chances for general adjustments in wages are not bright. In the industries producing consumers goods, whether unionized or not, moderate wage adjustments have been made and, if the depression fails to lift, more may be expected. But in the great basic industries of the country engaged in construction and the making of equipment, where recent rises in cost were exceptionally steep and quick, rates of wages and hours of work appear to be fixed for some time to come. It is this group of industries in the main which lagged in the recovery and which are most dependent for full employment and satisfactory revival on an adequate supply of investment funds.

The continuing conflict for supremacy between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization will act to support existing wages while the depression lasts and to raise them again once business begins to improve. For in their struggle for membership, these two organizations will compete against one another by offering potential members higher standards of wages and hours and by hesitating to recede from standards already in force. How far such competition may go is suggested in the recent contest over the provisions of the wages and hours bill when the A. F. of L. outbid its rival by supporting national minima of 40 cents an hour and 40 hours a week while the C. I. O. was willing to accept minima, presumably lower than these, adjusted to prevailing industrial and geographical conditions.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION, like the wages and hours bill, although aimed at raising the rates of wages and reducing the hours of work of only the lowest paid and hardest worked labor, could hardly be made effective without resulting in a general increase in labor cost in the factories and industries affected by the law. Wherever minimum wages of unskilled labor are fixed in the law, the practical necessities of management will require the maintenance of existing wage differentials and, therefore, a general rise in the rates of all grades of labor. If, furthermore, the purpose of this type of national legislation is, as it is often stated to be, the achievement of greater uniformity in prevailing geographical and occupational wage differentials, then the rise in wages and cost may well be much greater than is contemplated by supporters of the bill.

There remains a relatively new factor whose influence will probably be exerted in the same direction. This factor is our social security legislation and, in particular, our unemployment compensation laws. For practical purposes they become effective in the beginning of 1938. Under the terms of these laws, as of all similar legislation, it becomes the continuing function of established agencies of the Government to define employment and unemployment and hence to determine whether jobs offered to the claimants of unemployment benefit are suitable or not. In the exercise of this duty these agencies are required to review wages and working conditions and to pass upon them. If we may judge by foreign experience in this regard, decisions as to suitable employment tend shortly to freeze existing standards of work and wages at levels higher than they would otherwise be.

We enter the next phase of business, whatever it may be, with the costs of labor already high. In the current depression the elements that go to make up labor cost are stubbornly and effectively resisting the forces of adjustment. As far as one can see into the future, the policies of Government and organized labor and the effects of our unemployment compensation laws will combine to fix labor costs at levels not much lower than they are today. This, in my judgment, is a labor climate not favorable to the large-scale expansion of investment and hence of employment and earnings.

Ambiguous Asides

By Ross O'Donoghue.

THE ADVERTISING PROFESSION requires that its votaries repress any tendencies they may have toward words of more than two syllables and ideas too complicated for a 12-year-old's mentality. It is no wonder, then, that when restraint is suddenly removed after a lifetime of following these precepts, a man will tend to the opposite extreme both in vocabulary and thought. That is what has happened in this autobiography. Some people will say that Mr. Fletcher has swallowed a dictionary, and even the most patient will experience some difficulty in knowing what he is driving at.

In brief, Frank Irving Fletcher is a successful advertising man and proud of it. Contracts providing payment of astronomical sums for what seems a small amount of work have been so frequent as to be uninteresting. The superb quality of his work has pleased the most exacting. But despite the fact that he has been overwhelmed with business, he has had time to think and ponder a remarkable variety of problems. He gives his readers some of his conclusions on such things as testimonial dinners which he has found are given by jealous associates to prevent the further rise of the recipients.

As autobiography, it is unusual. The facts of his life, aside from his coming from England to New York to answer a month-old help-wanted ad, are most prosaic. His success has been too simple. Therefore, he has of necessity filled his book with asides, which the reader will also find prosaic if he can find out what they mean.

Guffey Seeks Ickes Mail On Pennsylvania

Demands PWA Investigation As Result Of Earle's Debt To McCloskey.

By the Associated Press

Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, brought his State's Democratic factional row before the Senate yesterday in a resolution which would require Public Works Administrator Ickes to produce any letters from State officials relating to Pennsylvania representation in PWA negotiations.

The resolution was introduced amid intraparty dissension and the disclosure that Gov. Earle was in the personal debt of Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia contractor and political leader. McCloskey holds more than $9,000,000 worth of contracts under the State's $65,000,000 building program.

Earle acknowledged borrowing money from McCloskey in 1935 and 1936, but declared the PWA contracts were awarded on a competitive basis and denied any favoritism was shown.

The Senate did not act on the resolution immediately, but Guffey said he would call it up for consideration "at the first opportunity."

"So Many Rumors."

"I won't know what it will produce," said Guffey, referring to his resolution, "but there have been so many rumors and newspaper stories that I thought the Senate should look into it."

A PWA spokesman indicated the Administration would have nothing to say in advance of any Senate action on the resolution.

Guffey's resolution followed a request by Representative Walter (Democrat), Pennsylvania, that the PWA look into his assertions the State authority employed 23 to 25 inspectors who were indorsed by McCloskey.

Politician, Contractor.

Walter, aligned with Guffey in the State fight, said "inspectors indorsed by Politician McCloskey are inspecting the work of Contractor McCloskey."

The Guffey faction is supporting a Democratic primary ticket headed by Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy for Governor, and Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia for United States Senator. McCloskey is aligned with the State organization ticket which includes Earle for Senator and Charles Alvin Jones, of Pittsburgh, for Governor.

Aid Quiz Director Soon to Be Named

Announcement of the director to head the District relief investigation will be made before the end of the week, it was disclosed yesterday.

Segregation Urged At Training School

The child welfare committee of the Council of Social Agencies, at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the E street Y. W. C. Mrs. Spencer Gordon, of the Board of Public Welfare, reported that more than 100 children are on the waiting list for admission to the home for the feeble-minded.

Principal reasons for the steady increase in the number of children needing institutional care, Mrs. Gordon said, are poor home conditions and faulty education.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

Facts, Folks, Forecasts.

There's a sputtering of interest in the interpretation the GAO chief of personnel has placed on the leave regulations, as these affect emergency employes. He has ruled that they must take their leave in the year the leave accrued; and some amateur lawyers in the GAO say there is nothing in the President's regulations even to indicate when the leave is to be taken . . . But this is only incidental to the main interest: Many were alarmed by the order, dated April 13, which directed all emergency employes in the GAO to take their leaves before June 30. They suspected a fear in officialdom that the pump priming measure won't go through and the emergency workers will be laid off for lack of funds. But in this they are simply looking toward possibilities rather than toward probabilities . . .

Once upon a time there was a farmer's daughter and she spent more for clothes than her mother! This fact, long suspected by you, has been pinned down by the Bureau of Home Economics in its Nation-wide survey of family living costs. The investigation, specifically, was made in Washington and Oregon counties. And our spies, after lengthy inquiry, report that the traveling salesmen who used to travel the rural spots in buggies were no slouches when it came to dress . . . This tid-bit in the In-Com-Co, sedate organ of ICC employes: "Why does —— hang up whenever his girl's father answers the phone?" We can only sigh that discretion is still the better part of valor, and otherwise leave this young man's personal business alone . . .

Something new in fairness: The Civil Service Commission's Tenth District Office, to avoid discriminating between Western Union and Postal Telegraph, sends its telegrams by one on even dates and the other on uneven dates . . .

Dr. Leonard D. White, lost to Washington but far from unremembered, reviews a book on "Government." Of the book, "Public Service in Great Britain," by Hiram M. Stout (Chapel Hill Press), Dr. White says, in part:

. . . . "Civil Service experts in this country will find it well worth their time, not because it will give them much technical information on the structure of the British Civil Service, but because it reveals the historical development, the existing organization and theory, and the broad social status of a public service whose reputation is deservedly great . . . In short, here is a book to go on your reading list."

• • • •

With brimming interest, we see in "School Life," Office of Education publication, an article on determining difficulty of reading materials. It is unfair to Stevenson and Shakespeare to make them practice fields for the inexpert reader. "What he should have is a series of primers with the subject matter appealing to his interest in adventure which will prepare him for "Treasure Island," "South of Zero" and "Mutiny on the Bounty," writes a district superintendent. "Something like this," he says: "See the pirate. He is a big pirate. He is a bold pirate. He is a bad pirate. He has a knife in his hand. The knife is bloody. The knife is bloody because the pirate has just stuck it into a sailor's throat."

We know nothing of the new psychology, but if they get afraid to go in the dark bedroom at night, would it be too much to ask the professors to come over and relate a more soothing bedtime story?

Broadway Hit Comes to Town To Lead Week

'Yes, My Darling Daughter' Will Enter Competition With New Films.

"Yes, My Darling Daughter," the comedy by Mark Reed that recently completed a year's run on Broadway, will be the attraction at the National Theater next week, beginning Monday night. This will be the sixth and final subscription play of the Theater Guild-American Theater Society season. The cast is headed by Lucile Watson, Violet Heming and Nicholas Joy and also includes Charles Bryant, Haila Stoddard Howard Ferguson and Shirley Gregory. The story has to do with a daughter who plans a week-end interlude with her sweetheart and a mother who has the discretion to remember that in her younger years she was not so conventional, either. There will be the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas are the costars of Columbia Pictures' production of "There's Always a Woman," coming to the screen of the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. This is another rousing Columbia comedy of a detective and his wife, both of whom are seeking a murderer. Mary Astor, Frances Drake, Robert Paige and Jerome Cowan are featured in the supporting cast. On the stage at the Earle next week, Harry Anger will present his "Home and Abroad" revue, in which Tommy Riggs, with his "Betty Lou," will be headlined. The Three Sailors, Alphonse Berg, Felovis, the Virginians, the 16 Girl Globetrotters and the "Girl in the Moon" surprise effect will be important inclusions.

Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy, Louise Hovick and Raymond Walburn will be seen in the principal roles in "The Battle of Broadway" on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater next week. The title provides sufficient description of the character of the story that is visualized in this lively subject. One of the notable events of the season will be celebrated on the stage of the Capitol, beginning tomorrow, with the personal appearance of Allan Jones, the tenor who has risen to such heights in the cinema and perhaps will be most readily identified as the young man who sang the "Donkey Serenade" duet with Jeanette MacDonald in "The Firefly." Yorke and King, those veteran vaudevillians, also will be featured on the stage portion of the new entertainment.

As was to have been expected of a picture characterized by such magnitude and appeal of pseudo-historical story, "In Old Chicago," the Twentieth Century-Fox epic of conflagration, will continue for a second week at Loew's Palace Theater. It will be supplemented by the same short subjects that have accompanied its showing during the first week, with a new issue of the "News of the Day" added.

Speaking of hold-over weeks, "Jezebel," the story of the South starring Bette Davis, with George Brent and Henry Fonda, has scored so decisively in its repeat engagement at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater that it also will be continued for a second week—making three in all in the downtown area. The short subject at the Met. also will be held over.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy will resume their downtown popularity in "The Girl of the Golden West" on the screen of the Columbia Theater, where this musicalized version of the old Belasco melodrama will be the major attraction for the week beginning tomorrow. The bill will be augmented by the customary short subjects and a new issue of "News of the Day."

Charlie McCarthy, that fabulous dummy, and his mentor, Edgar Bergen, will return to the screen at the Trans-Lux Theater for the week beginning tomorrow as two vagrants in a hobo camp, sometimes called "jungle." "Nassau in the Bahamas" and "Unusual Hunting" will be other featured short subjects on the new bill. The program will be based on complete newsreel coverage of the world.

When the current run of Rudolf Valentino in "The Son of the Sheik" has completed its course at the Little Theater, the major screen attraction will afford a notable addition to the season's list of notable screen presentations in Ninth street's bandbox theater. The new bill, like all the rest, will be supplemented by short subjects and current news events.

"The Life and Loves of Beethoven," with Harry Baur in the stellar role, continues to draw enthusiastic audiences to the Belasco Theater, now under the personal management of Jack Thoman. This is one of the most notable of the imported pictures. It is surrounded by a varied list of auxiliary attractions of the first rank.

The youthful and talented Deanna Durbin will succeed to the stellar position on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater when Irene Dunne and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., have ended their stay in "The Joy of Living." Miss Durbin's next vehicle will be "Mad About Music," said to be a little better than on a par with her "Three Smart Girls" and "One Hundred Men and a Girl." The new bill, of course, will be generously supplemented by abbreviated camera subjects and the latest issue of the Pathe News.

At the Gayety Theater next week, beginning with the usual Sunday matinee, the new burlesk attraction will feature Nora Ford and Sherri Britton, hailed as "a second Ann Corio." The comedy end of the bill will be in the hands of I. B. Hamp, Billy (Scratch) Wallace and Eddie Lloyd. A beauty chorus will support the principals.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Absence of Stars From Studios Does Not Mean Films' Decline

Vacationing Players Will Be Back, Despite Fears; New Theatrical Rendezvous; Kirkland to Visit; Notes of the Theater.

THE New York Telegraph in its Beau Broadway column—which always, since the days of the Lewises, has been a symposium of thought of the entire staff of the paper—recently lamented the fact that a present-day visitor to Hollywood would be disappointed by the discovery that 40 of the most noted stars of the cinema would be absent from the lots and not before the cameras.

BELL.

The list of 40 is an imposing one, but a majority of those named have completed pictures that still are on the shelves of the producing companies, awaiting national release. Therefore, I am unable to perceive the cause of the Telegraph's quite evident panic, predicated upon the ostensible belief that the motion picture industry has gone into a nose dive.

It seems to me that it would be quite as feasible for this journal of sports and amusements to hit upon a time when most of the Wall street brokers, Mr. Ford, Mr. Gifford, Mr. Sloan, Mr. Morgan and a few more of our financial and industrial leaders are away from their desks enjoying a seasonal vacation and pounce upon that as a basis for declaring that the United States has gone to pot and that its economic foundation has been dynamited.

Beau Broadway, so far as I am able to discern, merely has bowed a tendon!

• • • •

Nineteen productions are being "readied" for release by the Warner Brothers at the present time—which seems to refute the implication that the industry has gone what is technically known as "flooey." Heading the list of these prospective releases is "The Adventures of Robin Hood," costarring Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland. Among the others that are in the cutting-room or the editorial department are "Boy Meets Girl," founded on the stage play; "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," "Four's a Crowd," Secrets of an Actress," "White Banners," "Crime School," "Cowboy from Brooklyn," "Gold Diggers in Paris" and "Men Are Such Fools." There seems to be nothing to worry about from this quarter.

• • • •

Tuesday night witnessed the gala opening of a new theatrical rendezvous in the Willard Hotel, when Managing Director Harry P. Somerville opened his new Blue Grotto on the Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue corner. It will prove to be probably as convenient a gathering place for after-theater patrons as any to be found in town.

Boniface Somerville and his gracious wife presided at a tremendously long table on dedicatory night and had as their guests a long list of notables, including Glen Anders, Eddie Scanlan and Abe Cohen of the "Three Waltzes" company, playing the National; Ol' Massa Ed Kuykendall, national president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America; Tony Wakeman, the airliner; Peter Carter, columnist; Jay Carmody and Harry McArthur, of the Star; Katherine Smith, of the News, and a long list of others.

The table was so long it had to be a long list.

Stoppers-byers included Evelyn Tyner, my fellow-Hoosier piano virtuosa, and Talbot Haslett, who have "teamed" on the stage and scored a long-run hit at the Rainbow Room in Rockefeller Center, New York; Milton Davis and Lew Berman, down from the local Rainbow Room, at the Hamilton; "Happy Walker," orchestra maestro, and so many more that I cannot remember all their names.

The Blue Grotto is a nice place to go, but a hard place from which to escape. Rigid observance of the law rather simplified this guest problem more or less promptly at 2 a. m. on Tuesday night.

• • • •

They are still pestering me about that black kitten that lurks around the Willard kitchen and corridors—when somebody inadvertently leaves a door open. One of Mr. Somerville's functionaries was dispatched to bring him to me Tuesday night, but evidently couldn't find the little rascal, because he never came back. I'll give as high as 11 to 10 that this little ebony fellow was out in that back alley again, seeing what he could see. There seems to be no hope for him.

• • • •

It is that high-strung Southern gentleman, Sam Galanty, division manager of Columbia Pictures, who takes his typewriter on his lap—I said typewriter, not stenographer!—to warn me to look out for another "sleeper," when "There's Always a Woman" opens on the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater tomorrow.

I am inclined to take Mr. Galanty's tip seriously, because the fellow has done it so many times before and has yet to make a mistake. What I mean is that no one expected a great deal of "It Happened One Night" or "The Awful Truth" and both of them turned out to be what is known to the trade as "audience wows." Sam says he has another one in "There's Always a Woman." I refuse to lay even 11 to 10 against that possibility.

Incidentally, "There's Always a Woman" will play Washington among the first cities in the country. I wouldn't be sure that this will be a so-called "world premiere" or anything like that, but the film will not go into the Radio City Music Hall, in New York, until "Marco Polo" has run itself out and that will be after the local opening.

I hope the gallant Galanty hasn't let me down!

• • • •

Jack Kirkland, author of "Tobacco Road," will be a Washington visitor on Monday. His bride is a member of the cast of "Yes, My Darling Daughter," opening in the National that night. A previous wife of Mr. Kirkland's was Nancy Carroll, screen star. It probably isn't as odd as it sounds, the circumstances being what they are, that Mr. Kirkland should come here for "Yes, My Darling Daughter," instead of the final engagement of his own play at the National the week after.

Love is a grand thing—so they tell me.

• • • •

How do you mean, "So they tell me?"

These Are Those Broadway Battlers

A QUARTET OF BRAWNY BRAWLERS

Reading in the usual direction, these players in "The Battle of Broadway," opening tomorrow on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater, are Brian Donlevy, Louise Hovick, Robert Kellard and Victor McLaglen. Lynn Barri and Raymond Walburn also are important members of the cast. With such lusty personalities in the pivotal roles, the picture should possess an abundance of the quality popularly known as "yumph"—with or without the "y".

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., April 20.—Our sympathy is aroused over our poor little rich children. No longer in the money—not able to get their hands on what they've earned. Out again in the cold world, scratching away to make a living.

HEDDA HOPPER.

Jackie Coogan, the first to put kiddies in the limelight—kept them there. He is about to sell his life story at 21. Think of it! Why, at 21 most people haven't really started to live.

Run your eye over the following list of names and you'll remember the screaming headlines—not for their performances or great talent—but their battling courtroom scenes:

Mary Miles Minter, Virginia Lee Corbin, Mary Astor, Freddie Bartholomew, Eleanor Whitney, Dolores Costello, who has supported her father for years. Dolores is not out of a job and has a small income and two children to support.

And Jackie Coogan, whom the world envied as the millionaire kid, is forced to sue for the money he earned. Whether his mother made the statements attributed to her, she's stoned with doubt before she ever puts her foot inside a courtroom.

Where else in the world is there such rich story material? But it's only the history of money getting into the wrong hands repeating itself.

I remember a story told me by a lawyer of two partners riding together to their office in Wall street.

One halted the car midway downtown and said: "Excuse me a minute, Jim, I want to make a telephone call." He made it—came back.

They continued in silence, and when they reached their office, the partner who had waited for his friend was wiped out by the telephone call made on the way down. He never regained his fortune. His grandson, a motion-picture star, won't let that happen to him. He learned early in life that when it comes to money, he can trust no one but himself.

If babies worked steadily they'd be the highest-paid people in Hollywood today.

According to the restrictions required by law, a 10-day-old baby would make $1,008 per week.

I dined the other night with Joe and Ivy Santley. Joe's just finished directing "The Muddled Deal" at RKO. Mostly from a wheel chair. He had a streptococcus infection in his foot.

Joe was a child wonder on the stage at 5½ years of age. Yes—he was good, too. He starred in "Billy the Kid," "Rags to Riches" and many more. His education was catch as catch can, members of the company helping him.

One of his tutors was Sidney Alcott, who later directed Marion Davies' best picture, "Little Old New York." Joe's biggest salary was $100 a week. He played 14 shows a week and sometimes more. The only restraining hand was the Gerry Society in New York and Illinois, which won't permit you to sing or dance under 16 years of age. But they could throw you off a cliff in movies.

This is how your pets are treated today. Six-month-old children get a six-months' contract—that's for protection if anything happens. From six months to two years they're allowed to work four hours a day, but can only actually be in front of the camera two hours of that time.

Children from 2 years to 6 work six hours a day, only three before the camera—the rest for rehearsal and relaxation.

For 6 years to 18, eight hours a day, really working only four hours. There's a schoolteacher on every set, and they have a private dressing room.

A trained nurse goes to the home of the 6-year-olds and examines them each working day before they're allowed to go to the studio. And pity the babies! They have to be 10 days old before beginning their careers, and can only work 20 seconds at a stretch. And get paid $75 per day. Now, if you figure seconds in salary, that brings it to over $1,000 a day. Gee whiz, it took me a long time to get around to that!

In "Three Wise Guys," they used a week-old baby, and had to get permission from the Governor of the State. I'm not kidding. Would any of you know the difference between a week-old and 10-day-old baby? Don't believe I would—not even me own.

Now you won't have to worry when your baby becomes a movie star.

Taylor's Biblical Studies Aided by Unique Fan Unit

When Taylor made his motion picture debut at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, a group of Seattle, Washington, girls formed a unique fan club.

Instead of devoting themselves to autographs and portraits, this Northwestern fan club agreed to send to Taylor a daily passage from the Bible.

Taylor estimated that he received 1,400 passages, each with a significance that helped him in his daily life. The passage he received recently on the set of "Three Comrades," bore the signature, "Verna."

Alice Supplies Java For 'Alexender' Set

Alice Faye has won the hearts of all electricians, carpenters, and other workmen on the set of Irving Berlin's "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

The blonde singing dramatic star of the $2,000,000 production purchased an elaborate coffee-making device as a present to the technical crew of the film so they can have a steaming cup at any time throughout the day.

JUST BEFORE NOEL COWARD'S new musical, "Operette," went into rehearsal, Dorothy Hamilton suggested that he employ Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the venerated star who has been absent too long from the footlights . . . "Very well," Coward agreed, "you speak to her and maybe we can arrange a deal" . . . Miss Hamilton traced Mrs. Campbell from hotel to hotel, until she finally discovered the star's whereabouts . . . "I have a job for you in Noel Coward's new show," Miss Hamilton elated . . . "Noel Coward's?" Mrs. Campbell replied. "I won't play in a comedy where I'll have to jump over sofas. Frank McHugh's neighbors were astonished last week when a truck drove up to the McHugh residence and dumped a load of big pine logs, 20 feet long, in the back yard.

However, there's no mystery about it. McHugh is learning to be a lumberjack in preparation for his part in "Valley of the Giants."

McHugh has purchased a peavy, a double bitted ax and a cross-cut saw and is learning how to use them.

Manual Aims For Unification Of Traffic Work

Pamphlet Covers Police and Engineering Factors of Control.

The Nation's police departments have been provided with a new weapon against highway accident casualties and lawlessness. Designed to establish uniform methods of traffic control, a handbook entitled "Traffic Engineering and the Police," has been published jointly by the Natoinal Conservation Bureau of New York and the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

This pamphlet, written by Lieut. Franklin M. Kreml, authority on traffic safety, and Harold F. Hammond, director of the traffic division, Natoinal Conservation Bureau, has been made available to all police departments.

Dealing principally with scientific methods of accident prevention, the publication outlines various modern techniques of investigating traffic mishaps and eliminating highway hazards.

Traffic authorities throughout the country were urged to adopt the handbook as a permanent traffic control by George H. Reyer, superintendent of police, New Orleans, La., and president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"Since the work of the traffic engineer is often highly technical," he said, "cities are urged to employ specially trained men for the task. But generally cities have not as yet employed such men, and, as a result, the police have been called upon not only to patrol streets and boulevards, but also to make them physically safer. So long as police ar required by their communities to do this work, they need help in doing it properly and uniformly according to recognized standards."

Georgia Jury to Indict Home Bridge Gamblers

Marietta, Ga., April 20 (AP).—You are liable to be indicted if you play bridge for money here.

Judge J. Harold Hawkins, of the Blue Ridge judicial circuit, has asked the grand jury to punish "gamblers."

"Church people complained," he said. Playing bridge for money, even if it is in the home, is just as much a violation of the law as shooting crap."

D. A. R. Unit Finds Flag Rule Flouted —Just Winks at It

The Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday were faced with a flagrant violation of their rules for the correct use of the flag, but decided to overlook it.

A conscientious group of them visited the Smithsonian Institution to pay their respects to the worn and ragged flag which was the inspiration for "The Star-Spangled Banner." To their horror, they saw that the precious banner is mounted backwards.

They referred their complaint to a Smithsonian official, who agreed that the flag always should be hung with the stars to the left rather than to the right. He pointed out, however, that to turn the flag around would leave only a canvas backing visible and to remount it probably would reduce the fragile cloth to dust.

The Daughters decided that the preservation of the historic relic was more important than the correct use of the flag.

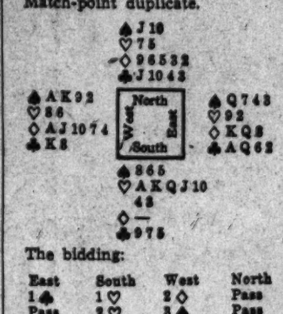
Contract Bridge

A Horrible Pass.

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

The player who opens the bidding takes on a definite responsibility, and for him to repudiate it later is one of the worst of all bridge crimes.

East, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	1 ♡	2 ◇	Pass
Pass	2 ♡	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	5 ♡	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

East could thank his opponent, South, for the splendid match-point score East-West received on this board. Certainly East had done nothing commendable. As a matter of fact, East, by passing to West's forcing bid of two diamonds, had been fairly begging for a "bottom." Afterward he tried to "alibi himself" by grumbling that he could not find a good rebid in response to two diamonds—that he could not bid two spades since that would be a "reverse;" he had no heart stopper for two notrump and, finally, that his hand was much too weak to warrant a diamond raise. He overlooked the fact that none of these arguments had any bearing on the situation. He had opened the bidding and West had responded with a bid that was forcing for at least one round. If South's bid had not come in and West had bid two diamonds, East would have been forced to rebid. Surely the fact that West had bid freely over an intervening bid should have made the force more, instead of less, absolute (to resort to a silly solecism). When a player is forced to bid, it is far better to make the wrong bid than to make none at all. Actually, East should have bid three diamonds. South had a grand opportunity to let the bidding die with the opponents in a measly two-diamond contract, and his failure to do so was deplorable. It did not require great imagination to sense that something had gone wrong in the enemy's machinery, but apparently it required more than South had. He reopened with two hearts and now West, who had been almost petrified by his partner's unexpected pass, took no more chances. This time he jumped the bidding in spades. East came to life with a spade raise and now South, mentally kicking himself all over the room, went to five hearts as a sacrifice.

The sacrifice did not turn out well. West opened the spade king and, when he saw dummy's doubleton in spades, promptly shifted to a trump. Declarer was prevented from ruffing a spade in dummy, and thus could win only his seven heart tricks. The 700-point penalty was ample compensation to East-West for their lost game. But, as I said originally, East could not flatter himself that he had contributed to the top score.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Once Happy Home Disrupted by Husband's Loss of Job and Subsequent Alcoholism; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman 38 years old and have been married 15 years. I have one child. My husband and I were childhood sweethearts and were married after eight years' courtship. At the time, he had a splendid position and was a fine, straightforward man. We were very happy. We had a nice home, many friends and everything we wanted. We had parties and drank as all other young married couples of our acquaintance did. It never seemed to affect my husband and he carried on his business with no ill effects, apparently.

• • • •

Then the depression hit his business, and the firm he was with closed down, leaving him without a position. The baby was born about that time. He became very depressed, we lost our home and he began drinking heavily. My father and mother kindly took us in, thinking it was to be only a temporary arrangement. That was five years ago and my husband has since become an habitual drinker. He has had several good jobs and lost them all because of drink. My father has at last come to the end of his patience and told him to leave. For six weeks he has been living with his parents. They are lovely to me and just as distracted as I am about his condition.

• • • •

My problem is this: everyone tells me he will never reform; that I am foolish to cling to the hope that he will ever take care of me and our son, and that I should not see him, but let him go forever. Yet I love him and always have. I believe he cares as much for me. It is almost unbearable for us to live apart, and yet this appetite for drink descends on him about once a month and he either does not or cannot fight it.

• • • •

He is weak, of course, but it is not entirely his fault. His father and mother have babied him all his life, and now have taken him in and are giving him what they really can't afford. I have pleaded with them to make him get a room and stand on his own feet, but they will not see that it is the thing to do. Unfortunately, no one in the family has the money to send him to a hospital for a cure and I don't think he realizes drink has such a hold on him. Yet he admits he doesn't know why he does it. Am I wasting my life, loving a man like him and hoping he will reform? Will my love for him eventually make him into a good husband and father again? JANE.

Problem for Psychiatrist.

DEAR JANE: A woman's love of a man is not calculated, of itself, to remedy his character deficiencies. But a man's and woman's mutual love may—and sometimes does—afford a powerful incentive to the weaker member of the twain to overcome those personal defects which threaten to destroy their relationship. Although alcoholics are none too hopeful objects of reform, nevertheless it is the opinion of psychiatrists that the alcoholic who seizes upon drink as a dismayed reaction to, and retreat from, a major reversal in life, stands a much greater chance of being cured than does the alcoholic who has drifted into the habit for no assignable reason.

• • • •

If your husband can be brought to a realization of the fact that he is not necessarily a hopeless slave of his periodic craving; if he can be shown, or enabled to see for himself, rather, the reasons why he took to "heavy drinking" in the first place, and why he continued to indulge in the second place; and what a sorry substitute it is for well-organized effort in the third place; and how much happier and more successful he might be if he were to become once more the master of his fate and the captain of his soul; and if he could, in an instant of clear vision and accurate self-understanding, see the road to recovery stretching straight before him, he may have the courage and common sense—the manliness, in a word—to set his feet upon it.

• • • •

Such a happy situation can only be brought about, in my opinion, through the intelligent co-operation of the man, his family circle, and a psychiatrist. His parents must realize the wisdom of jockeying him into a position where he must stand on his own feet, just as you suggest. The longer he continues to lean on others, and to be willingly supported by them, the more pronounced will become his illusion (or delusion) that his own feet aren't adequate to carrying his weight, and the more disinclined will he become to assume the burden. Just now he is in somewhat the same mental state, concerning his abilities, as is the person who has been invalided as a result of physical injuries, and who, when commanded by his doctor to leave his bed and try his limbs, is nervously fearful of the results. He can only regain confidence in his abilities by being compelled, under gentle and inexorable duress, to exercise them.

• • • •

The only hope I see for your husband is that he go, voluntarily and hopefully, to a psychiatrist and ask for guidance in rehabilitating himself. He should go with complete open-mindedness and earnest desire to be helped; not in defiance, nor grudgingly; nor with the attitude that "I know more than any darn fool psychiatrist;" or "If that fellow thinks I'm going to take my hair down with him, he's got another thought coming;" nor with the attitude that the psychiatrist is going to become parent and wet-nurse to him—another leaning post in a long succession of leaning posts. Since the family means are limited, I recommend to you Dr. Elmer Klein, psychiatrist with the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1461 Columbia road northwest; telephone ADams 1033. M. H.

For the benefit of those correspondents who write this column for advice, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelopes and emphasizing the point that their letters are "not for publication," it seems necessary to explain that it is not the policy of this department to conduct a correspondence school of personal counsel on the side. The function of the department is to give to readers, through its columns, advice on problems which seem to require a disinterested person's viewpoint.

Your Figure Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

IT USED TO BE that thinness was the fashion, but the boyish form has gone with the wind-blown bob. We still want to be slender—but with curves—and the thin girls are actually making an effort to eat more food, which is no picnic when your appetite is as fickle as the April weather.

If you miss your regular meal time, you probably lose all interest in food. For example, you may be accustomed to having your lunch around 12 o'clock and when you are forced to wait until much later than that time you realize that your fatigue is partly due to lack of food. But when you try to eat, you can't even finish a sandwich!

Since you cannot always take your meals on time, you must cater to your appetite when your job keeps you past your meal hour. First of all, find a quiet, cheerful nook where you can relax and don't order a sandwich. Order a cup of hot soup and sip it very slowly. You may find that the soup, which goes down much more easily than a sandwich, has revived your appetite.

If it has, then order a creamed dish with toast, a salad or even a baked potato, which is one of the most easily digested foods. Otherwise, have a glass of whole milk and one of your favorite cooked fruits with a pitcher of cream. Even though your appetite has gone back on you, you cannot manage to acquire a fair share of calories. You can't go without meals and pick up curves.

Rich Foods May Hurt.

Your feeble appetite may be caused by taking too many foods rich in fat, excess sweets, or a lack of vitamins. The food you choose has a great deal to do with the development of a healthy appetite. In asthenic underweight, the digestion is usually poor and easily upset by too rich or too sweet foods. Weight can be gained more steadily on simple menus. Butter and cream are readily digested forms of fat which help to make the diet nourishing.

Sweets should be taken only at the end of the meal, but fruit juice or milk may be taken between meals as long as they do not interfere with the regular meal. Your menus should contain whole grain cereals, fresh fruits, green leafy vegetables. A balanced diet will tend to build up a normal appetite had to improve your nervous system.

The thinnest girls among the nervous underweights consistently take too little foods. It has been found that from 1,800 to 2,000 calories per day is the average among underweight young women, and this amount of food is too little to bring the weight to normal. Gradually adding to the food intake will build up the food capacity and eventually you will begin to put on curves.

Recipe for Charm.

"Charm is a combination of a cultivated mind, a lovely speaking voice and a kindly attitude," according to Grace Moore, singing star of the Columbia network. "A woman who is obviously conscious of her beauty loses her charm. Being conscious of any quality spoils it."

The Upswept Coiffure in Three New Versions

A PRACTICAL coiffure with curls all around the head for the business girl; may be adapted to daytime or evening.

Mode of Living Should Direct Style of Hair

Joseph Smith, Designer, Advocates Practical Hair Dress.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

"THE HAIR-DRESSERS of today don't think. They concentrate on about two styles and then use these consistently, regardless of the personalities of the patrons or their mode of living." This statement was made by Joseph Smith, of the American Hair Design Institute of New York, who is in Washington for several days. Mr. Smith predicts that the currently popular upswept coiffure will definitely stay in the fashion picture for at least two years. But he contends that this basic flattering hair style should be adapted to the person or the result will be incongrous rather than smart.

"I believe in practical hair-dos," Mr. Smith remarked "By this I mean stylings which can be worn for evening and then modified by the wearer for daytime." This, according to his explanation, requires simplicity of line—elaborate coiffures are not for the business girl, but for women who have the time, money and patience to go to a beauty salon daily. One of the outstanding features of the season according to this authority is the exposing of the entire hair-line.

Here are Mr. Smith's rules for successful hair styling: First, cut the hair in accordance with the facial and head contours. The next step is a good permanent to give solidity, and last, finger waving for line and style—taking into account the personality and scheme of living of the subject. Hair for this spring and summer is shorter than it has been for the past several seasons Mr. Smith says, but not too short and not shingled. The fundamental purpose behind all hair stylings, he explained, was to give the illusion of shorter hair regardless of its true length.

The American Hair Design Institute is a laboratory for hair style experimentation. All through the year, the students (who have to have three years' experience before entering) work with clay models in planning new coiffures. The next step is living models, and when a style is perfected it is presented to the public in much the same manner as the new collections in clothes. Mr. Smith, who is conducting the "Hair Style Show" at Lansburgh's this afternooon, is assistant manager of the organization. Not only will new hair styles be shown at this display, but he will give explanations of them. The right and wrong ways of doing one's hair will also be demonstrated by mannequins.

THE GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

The Perfect Friend.

She will tell you where she got her hat and her permanent and will share her face cream secrets with you, but she will not drag you to hear her preacher nor try to make you patronize her doctor or her dentist.

She never sends someone she happens to know to look you up because she thinks the "two of you ought to get together."

She never demands that you read the new book she "is crazy about" nor dumps it in your lap with instructions to finish it in two days as Sadie or Madge or somebody else is waiting.

She never, under cover of telling how she rose valiantly to your defense, relates in detail what your enemies said about you.

She does not tell you that you should do your hair a different way, or that everybody says you wear too much color or that you should have gotten a different type of drapes for your living room. And she tells you a hat is unbecoming BEFORE, not AFTER, you buy it.

She will go shopping with you without ever once weakening and trying on things herself. No matter how sore her feet are she won't advise you to take the dress that "will do." And she will boldly and resolutely aid you in making your escape from the most persistent saleswomen.

When you start talking about yourself, she will never shout you down by talking about herself.

You can tell her anything on earth knowing that she will not be shocked or retreat into a shell of Olympian disapproval. You also can rest assured that she will not weaken and tell her husband or her boy friend.

You don't mind meeting her with your hair down, literally or figuratively. You can face her in tin curlers, in face cream, with the house littered with toys and Sunday newspapers, or just after you have discovered your husband has been catching the same bus with a certain blonde.

You know that she is never, never going to say of you to anyone else, "Now Jane is one of the best friends I've got, but——"

When any of your men friends appear you know she is not going to become an exhibitionist. And she always treats your husband or boy friend in a warm and cordial though a delightfully impersonal manner.

She is a good judge of character. She sees through the same silly people you see through and she approves of the same sturdy dependable ones of whom you approve.

She never drops in to see you without telephoning and she never telephones at mealtime. She also has learned the knack of saying good-by into the transmitter.

If you praise a dish she has made she doesn't shut her lips tightly and say "Oh that's a family recipe."

She never makes you feel "What a poor worm am I!" from her conversation. Neither is she gushing in her adulation and praise. But in the warmth of her presence the most tightly closed petals of your personality unfold.

If she leaves town, she doesn't expect you to exchange letters. And she never chides you for not writing or reminds you that you "owe" her a letter.

When you meet her 5, 10 or even 20 years afterward—no matter what the years have done to your figures, your fortunes or your political beliefs—the gap of time vanishes and you instantaneously pick up again the bright thread of your perfect understanding.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, April 20.

WELL, OUR ALREADY famous Maternity School for Fathers has just graduated its first blushing papa-to-be in the person of Mr. Humber Ernest Paccone, a handsome young Italian who works for one of the big Fifth avenue stores, picks a banjo for amusement, and now knows how to bathe the baby that is on its way to Mrs. Rita Paccone.

ALICE HUGHES

Humber got a diploma and everything, signed by Sarah Ward Gould, who did most of the lecturing, and illustrated the various phases of baby technique with a handy and life-like doll. He was the first to receive the cherished parchment in a class of 20 fathers, either actual and prospective. I hear that another 20 failed to turn up for the ceremonies, because they were afraid of possible ribbing. Even young Mr. Paccone considered this unhappy possibility, and didn't tell anyone at business that he was learning diaper tactics from experts. But they found out when he got his pictures in the papers, and I'd have liked to hear what went on among the other boys. But Humber, rightly, took it seriously and so did his attractive wife.

"I think it is a very wise thing," she told the curious press. "If the mother gets sick suddenly, why the father can sort of carry on without being bewildered. Times have certainly changed. Years ago a father would never do anything but pick up the baby and scare it."

• • • •

Signor Paccone is very game about the whole thing, in spite of office kidding. I'm going to help Rita when the baby comes," he said. "You know you've got to keep practicing this stuff." That is certainly lesson one in practical fatherhood. And I'm sure we all wish the gallant Humber well—not to mention the lucky Rita, and the youngster to come.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN — Well, what few theatrical first nights remain to us for the season just won't seem natural at all, since Hope Hampton is starting her movie career all over again. She and her handsome and wealthy husband, Jules Brulatour, are probably our most consistent first-nighters, and with Hope, her fur coats and her gems on the coast, a premiere just won't be official any more.

Miss Ann Carroll Meem, the announcement of whose engagement to Edward Beale McLean, jr., recently set society editor's typewriters buzzing all over the country, has selected her wedding date and attendants.

She and her fiance will walk down the aisle on Wednesday, May 25 . . . which, by the way, will also be her birthday. The ceremony, which will be a very quiet one, will take place at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, on Thirty-fourth place. Only members of the two families will be present.

HOPE R. MILLER.

The fuss and feathers sure to be in evidence at such an outstanding event as this one will be reserved for the large reception which will follow the wedding and will be held at the Sulgrave Club.

The bride-elect's sister, Miss Eleanor Eastbourne Meem, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Evalyn Washington McLean, will be her attendants. John R. McLean 2d, the prospective bridegroom's brother, the imminence of whose own marriage to Mrs. Robert Ogden Bacon, jr., has been widely rumored, will serve as best man. Ushers will be Mr. McLean's cousins, Gordon Moore, of Lynchburg, Va., and Monroe Lee, of Washington.

The prospective bridegroom (as who needs to be told) is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, the latter of whom frequently makes headlines with her fabulous Hope diamond and her large and lavish parties at Friendship, her estate on Wisconsin avenue.

Adelaid Hibbard Honored at Party

Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard's home in Georgetown yesterday afternoon was the scene of a small informal tea at which guests had the privilege of hearing Mrs. Adelaid Hibbard relate some of her colorful stage experiences. Mrs. Stoddard and Mrs. Hibbard are friends of long standing, both hailing from Boston, where the latter lived when her late husband was mayor and her daughter was a close friend of the former Elizabeth Bates—now Mrs. Stoddard.

At yesterday's party Mrs. Hibbard was gowned in periwinkle net and lace that contrasted nicely with her silver hair. Guests sat spellbound as she told how she happened to become a professional actress at an age when many stars of stage and screen retire. Especially interesting, also, were her comments on Ethel Barrymore, with whom she has toured extensively and to whom she is devoted. Mrs. Hibbard recently returned to Washington after an extended engagement with a stock company. She expects to be here for some time as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. F. W. McNamee.

Following Mrs. Hibbard's brief talk, Lieut. Comdr. Guy Chadwick entertained the company with a group of songs. He was accompanied by the hostess who, half an hour earlier, had received her guests and ushered them on to the tea table. She wore a trim print frock, styled with a flaring skirt and a lei collar.

Mrs. Holton Assists at Tea

Assisting at the tea table was Mrs. Frederick A. Holton, whose navy blue frock was trimmed with white and worn with a broad-brimmed navy blue hat. The table was centered with a bowl of glass fruit flanked by four cream-colored tapers, and surrounded with dainty sandwiches, cakes and other tea-time tidbits.

Among the guests were Mrs. Acheson Smith, of New York, who arrived yesterday to visit Mrs. Stoddard; Mrs. Fontaine Bradley, Mrs. Guy Chadwick, Miss Marsha Hatch, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Carl Hatch, of New Mexico; Miss Lydia O'Neal, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal, of Kentucky; Metcalf Walling and several others.

William Moye, Mrs. Sparks Wed

An out of town wedding of interest to Washington was that last evening of Mrs. Susan MacBryde Guignard Sparks to William Shelburn Moye, jr. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, of Washington, an uncle of the bride, took place at Still Hopes, Columbia, S. C. The former Mrs. Sparks is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Gadsden Guignard, of Columbia; the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William Shelburn Moye, of Raleigh, N. C., and the late Mr. Moye.

The bride, who wore silver gray metalene, was given in marriage by her father. Her gray tulle veil, ending in three points, was caught by a cluster of iridescent flowers, and she carried sweetheart roses, lilies of the valley and forget-me-nots.

Miss Ione Moye, Is Maid of Honor

Miss Ione Maye, the sister of the bridegroom, was her maid of honor and only attendant. She was attired in gold metalene and carried talisman roses and daisies. Joseph W. Moye, of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. C. G. Guignard, who assisted in greeting the guests, was gowned in white lace. Mrs. Moye, the mother of the bridegroom, wore silver lace.

When the couple left for their wedding trip, Mrs. Moye was costumed in a gray tailored suit and gray hat. Her accessories were also of gray. They will make their home in Columbia.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

STILL THE TREK of out-of-town visitors to Washington continues. And the D. A. R.'s are not the only guests in the Capitol, although one begins to think so on entering restaurant or hotel.

DUDLEY HARMON.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the former Secretary of the Navy, is the guest of Mrs. William Castle at the latter's on S street. Mrs. Castle will entertain at tea for her tomorrow.

The Adamses are among Boston's first families, and the former Navy Secretary is a great-grandson of John Quincy Adams. He was one Secretary who really knew the sea, as he is a famous amateur skipper. He was at the helm of the Resolute when she won the international yacht races in 1920.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH he is our hardest-working diplomat, the French Ambassador, Count de Saint Quentin, also bids fair to become our most active dinner host. Another in his series will take place May 7 . . . Former Senator and Mrs. Charles Henderson have cards out for a dinner May 5. Senator Henderson, who formerly represented Nevada's interests in Congress, is now a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation . . . Miss Frieda Frazier, of "Ranelagh," McLean, Va., will give a cocktail party Sunday in honor of Miss Reid Handy.

• • • •

WHEN a bachelor gives a party, you can always count on having a good time, but when six bachelors decide to play host, prospects sound six times better. The six call themselves The Monastery" and will entertain Saturday in honor of Miss Helen Brereton, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William D. Brereton, and her fiance, Robert Swezey, and for Miss Adelaide Whitford, who will marry Nicholas Allen.

Scene of the party will be 2601 Thirtieth street, a large and attractive house, overlooking Rock Creek Park, which ever since the New Deal has been occupied mostly by bachelors. At one time Timothy Fox, nephew of Secretary Morgenthau, lived here with several friends, including George Eddy and Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding. "Tim" and George now live in New York. The orchid for originality this month goes to Hazel Edgar and Gladys Taylor for their clever invitations to a cocktail party next Monday at their office. The only trouble is that everybody who received one has been wracking his or her brain thinking of something equally clever for the R. S. V. P.

The most successful reply so far is that of Mrs. Joseph Himes. The invitations are in verse on architects blue print showing the location of the office at 1653 Pennsylvania avenue, next to the Gist Blair home. Arrows are drawn down the avenue and up the stairs to the scene of the party. Mrs. Himes drew, on stationery, a straight line going from her home to their office, and above it wrote "From 5 to 7." Alongside the first line she drew another one, very, very wavy, going from the office to her home, and labeled it "From 7 to 9."

D.A.R. Defense Chief's Report Attacks 'Isms'

Free Citizenship Is Held More Important Than Good Government.

Freedom of citizenship is far more important than efficiency in government if there must be a choice between the two, Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, chairman of national defense through patriotic education told members of the Daughters of the American Revolution in her report to the Forty-seventh Continental Congress yesterday.

"Because those entrusted with the responsibility of Government, Federal, State and local, too often fail in the proper enforcement of the laws of regulation and restraint, siren voices, crying out with panaceas to correct our economic ills, demand a change of system," she said.

"They refuse to believe that there is nothing wrong with the system and that difficulty arises only when departure from the system is tolerated. Regimented efficiency of either socialism or fascism inevitably leads to dictatorship of either one man or a minority group. The American way is one of continually adusting laws to meet cnanging conditions through proper judicial procedure and not by mandatory decrees and regulations which require force and despotism."

She also discussed agencies disseminating subversive influences and their efforts to win youth and control public opinion. Such agencies, she said, have attempted to enter the ranks of the American Federation of Labor, "hoping to use its numbers and influence for their own ulterior ends. It is cause for rejoicing that American labor on the whole wil have nothing of radical dictatorship."

Mrs. Sisson called attention to the fact that the annual budgets of the 60 organizations which are the front and center of the American peace movement amount to $2,000,000. "Is it any wonder that the paid propaganda of some of the so-called peace groups, whose main purpose seams to be to change the American system of government, has permeated our national life to so great an extent, while the less spectacular, but far more American peace program of our society too often serves merely to convert the converted?" she asked.

She commended State and chapter chairmen of national defense for their prompt action a year ago, "when the check and balance system of the Federal Government was threatened, and for their spontaneous action "within the past few weeks, when certain provisions of the reorganization bill seemed to place too great power in one branch of the Federal Government, to the weakening of another, when certain Congressmen looked around for a George to do the job for which a trusting people elected them as representatives."

Discussing the President's request for a substantial increase in the naval establishment, Mrs. Sisson indorsed it as "a timely effort to provide adequate defense for this Nation against the uncertain ambitions of aggressors.

Work of Various Units Is Reported To D.A.R. Congress

Among the reports presented yesterday was that of Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, new editor of the National Historical Magazine, published by the Daughters of the American Revolution. Its circulation has increased from 10,000 last October to 13,000, she reported. The most popular department added under her editorship, she said, is that on parliamentary law, conducted by Mrs. John Trigg Moss, and, ranking a close second, the feature, "Your Capital City—and Mine," by Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg. Mrs. Vandenberg was among the magazine contributors at the booth in the lobby of Constitution Hall in the morning. Miss Margaret Carl, of the Philippines, winner of the Caroline Holt Scholarship, also was there in native costume.

Mrs. Smith H. Stebbins, in her report on the work of the Ellis Island committee, also presented yesterday, described the occupational training program being carried on under the D. A. R.

Mrs. Henry M. Robart, jr., incoming president general, in her capacity as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, told the Congress that it is the aim of the organization to bring Memorial Continental Hall up to the standard of a museum and that hereafter no reproduction of old pieces will be accepted for the State rooms there. Reproductions now included in the furnishings also are eventually to be replaced with authentic things, she said.

medal in token of appreciation of the work done by the organization in observance of the anniversary.

Also on the program were the Rev. Howard Stone Anderson, of the First Congregational Church, who offered the invocation, and Adelaide Van Wey, of Waightstill Avery Chapter, North Carolina, who sang, accompanied by Harold Genther.

The United States Navy Band Orchestra played for the impressive entrance of the candidates, who will be voted on at today's elections. Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, who will succeed Mrs. Becker as president general, was preceded by members of her cabinet, candidates for which also are unopposed. All carried armsful of flowers, calla lilies, roses, snapdragons, orchids, cornflowers, delphinium—everything the garden and florist shop afforded.

Descendent of Brewster.

Mrs. Robert is an authority on parliamentary law. She is a descendant of Elder William Brewster, of the Mayflower Company, and other early New England settlers.

She has held national offices and chairmanships in the D. A. R., among them her present offices as treasurer general and as chairman of buildings and grounds, printing and personnel committees. She is a member of Alpha Phi Fraternity, the Colonial Dames of America, the Daughters of Founders and Patriots and Daughters of Colonial Wars.

On Mrs. Robert's ticket are Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex, of Wichita, State regent of Kansas, candidate for chaplain general; Mrs. John S. Heaume, of Springfield, Ohio, State regent, candidate for recording secretary general; Mrs. William Kennedy Herrin, jr., State regent of Mississippi, for corresponding secretary general; Mrs. George D. Schermerhorn, former State regent of Michigan and a poet of distinction, organizing secretary general.

Also, Miss Page Schwarzwaelder, former State treasurer of New York and a member of the Red Cross Motor Corps during the World War, for treasurer general; Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, of Boston, Mass., State regent, for registrar general; Mrs. Leland Stanford Duxbury, Minnesota State regent and former State recording secretary, for historian general; Mrs. Joseph Taylor Young, California State regent, for reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution; Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, of Winnetka, Ill., now national defense chairman, for librarian general, and Mrs. Willard Steele, M. A., Ph. D., former State regent of Tennessee, for curator general.

D. C. Woman on Ticket.

The principal contest in today's election is among ten candidates running for vice president general, seven of whom are to be elected this year. The only District of Columbia woman on the ticket is Mrs. Charles C. Haig, a member of the Judge Lynn Chapter here, who has become well known in Washington through her club and civic activities.

Others are Mrs. William Henry Clapp, of New York; Mrs. Keene Arnold, of Kentucky; Mrs. Arthur Rowbotham, of Virginia; Mrs. Arthur Milton McCrillis, of Rhode Island; Mrs. Clarence Henry Adams, of Colorado; Mrs. Victor Abbot Binford, of Maine; Mrs. Val Taylor, of Alabama; Mrs. Chester Samuel McMartin, of Arizona, and Mrs. H. D. Shepperd, of Pennsylvania.

The following are candidates for honorary vice president generals, four of whom will be chosen today: Mrs. Charles B. Boothe, of California; Miss Stella Pickett Hardy, of Arkansas; Mrs. Ellet G. Drake, of Nebraska; Mrs. Robert J. Reed, of West Virginia; Mrs. William W. Reynolds, of North Carolina, and Mrs. William S. Shaw, of Maine.

So far the two business sessions of the Congress have proceeded smoothly. The election contests and other points of difference which in former years have caused spectacular debates among the members appear conspicuously absent. However, with this morning devoted to reports of committees, including that on resolutions, there is a possibility of some issue arising over which there may be sharp division in the ranks.

There was a brief argument on States' rights yesterday, when amendments were proposed providing that State officers should be elected to three-year terms, conforming to those of the national organization. The amendment, read by Mrs. Robert J. Johnston, brought prompt protests from societies which elect for two-year terms and desire to continue to do so.

"National union, State sovereignty"—quoted the Illinois spokesman, from the inscription on the seal decorating the front of the box in which she stood. The District of Columbia, which elects for two years, joined with others in opposition to the amendment. Georgia and Florida spoke up for States' rights, as did the State of Washington and others, and there was an overwhelming "no" when the question came to a vote.

Miss Janet Richards, regent of Mary Washington Chapter of the District of Columbia, was among those who opposed another amendment, designed to compel branches of the organization in foreign countries to relinquish their rating as "States" and thereby their vote in the national society, unless they had three or more chapters. This too was voted down after heated discussion.

'Ugly Forces Loose in Land,' Educator Informs the D. A. R.

"Strange and ugly forces are loose in our land," Dr. Neil Carothers, head of Lehigh University's college business administration, yesterday warned the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"Worn and enfeebled by depression, our people have been an easy prey for scheming politicians and Simple Simon economists," he declared. "They have been seduced into believing false economic theories."

Speaking on "The American Economic System" at the afternoon session of the Continental Congress, he expressed his belief that internal threats to the country are a greater menace than the possibility of foreign invasion.

"The United States is becoming divided into individual blocs and special interests, seeking the things they cannot gain in open competition," he said, pointing to pressure groups such as labor, agriculture and the veterans.

If allowed to continue their development, these groups will lead the country to inflation, class war and the curtailment of production, he believes, and ultimately may pave the way for "some incredible dictator who will destroy our freedom."

"Until we have a government that can withstand these forces, the future not only of our economic system but of our civilization is insecure," he added.

$133,000 of PWA Money to Be Used In Prince Georges

Upper Marlboro, Md., April 20 (AP) Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools of Prince Georges County, announced today that at least $133,000 of the PWA grant of $319,455 for construction of schools in the county will be used immediately.

As soon as arrangements can be made to match the remaining $186,455 of Federal funds with county money the PWA balance will be accepted, said Orem. Under terms of the grant, the county must put up 55 per cent to match the Government allotment.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Clare Luce . . . ambitious.

Two diplomatic attaches, one from the Japanese Embassy and one from the Chinese, who happen to be acquainted, found themselves sitting next to each other at a movie as a news reel about the Chinese wars was flashed on the screen. Each stole a glance at the other.

"Excellent photography!" said the Chinese.

"Yes, superb!" said the Jap.

From an insider who frequently guesses right I have it that at Cabinet meetings lately Henry Wallace, the Cabinet strong man, has been urging a conciliatory attitude toward business; no weekly kick in the pants.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: Seventeen of the top 20 New Dealers are rated as conservatives by most Washington observers . . . Clare Luce, the drenchingly beautiful wife of Henry Luce, the publisher of Time and Life, isn't discouraging his presidential dreams . . . Her play, "The Women," which appeared here last week, wowed the Congressmen from the hinterland; they didn't know there were tigerish women like that in the world. (Luce's big plank is the unmerging of big business, but probably not Time-Life-Fortune Mags, which he publishes.)

"—cry for a demagog."

These are melancholy days for the lefters in the Capital . . . They think the trend is now definitely toward reactionary control of the Government; only a 16-cylinder demagog can prevent it, someone like Huey Long, maybe; otherwise the boys in cutaways may fight their way out of the trenches by Xmas, shouting their battle cry of "Fear! Fear!".

Undenfably the plutogogs seem to have more stamina; they must be eating thicker steaks.

Ambassador Troyanovsky invited a dozen liberals to the Russian Embassy for dinner the other evening. He wanted to find out why so many American liberals are isolationists, skeptical of collective security and the League of Nations . . . Some of them seemed to think Geneva is just a place for British liberals to cool off week-ends.

They were disappointed not to get Russian cooking; the food was American, but very good.

Congressman Maury Maverick was there, enjoying himself by twitting the Russians about their wholesale purges.

"What can we think," he asked the Ambassador, "of a country which shoots half a dozen of its best generals and 20 of its top bureau officials at a volley?"

"They may get you next," he added to the Russ diplomats.

Of the first ten Government employes I asked about the President's proposal that they pay income taxes, only one objected.

"Shucks," he said, "most of us don't get enough salary to pay any after the family deductions, or only a few dollars at most."

The objector said that he had always regarded immunity from taxes as part of a $5,000 man's pay in a $15,000 job.

"—danger of love in the Capital."

A self-made man was complaining bitterly about the ever-present danger in Washington that a man's daughter may fall in love with and marry a foreign diplomat.

"My father came over to this country to get away from Europe," he said, "and now when I go over to visit my grandchildren they try to talk French and Bulgarian to me!"

Very secretly, a new version of the Liberty League is in the throes of birth, to supplant the ghost of the old Liberty League . . . Preliminary obstetrics are being performed in Washington homes; there is some uncertainty, in view of the unhappy experience of the old Liberty League, whether such an alignment of patriots would be a valuable adjunct to the G. O. P. . . . But it might be a saintly experiment, noble in motive.

The headwaiter at a Washington night club was amazed to see a certain bigshot arrive for dinner with his own wife.

"Put me over by the wall way over there," said the statesman, "I want to be very quiet."

President Roosevelt has regarded the New York governorship as an excellent place to groom a Presidential possibility, perhaps the right man to succeed him . . . And now the three leading Democratic prospects are Lehman and Farley, with secular disadvantages, from a national political point of view, and Senator Wagner, who was born in Germany, and can't become President.

Supreme Court Secrets Bared To Carroll Club

Justice Roberts Relates Customs Followed to G. U. Group.

Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts revealed an inside secret of the Supreme Court to members of the Carroll Law Club of Georgetown University last night.

"All the justices shake hands with each other when they meet in the robing room every Monday," Justice Roberts confided. "That's a very good custom," he added. "It has a sedative effect after the asperities of the Saturday session."

Speaking at the club's twenty-sixth annual dinner at the Mayflower, Justice Roberts asserted that "50 per cent of the lawyers I have seen disclose a lack of preparation, thought and industry" in presenting their cases before the court.

"A lawyer is essentially dishonest and immoral unless he gives the best he has to every case," the jurist declared.

William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, said that the independent agencies are responsible to Congress, public opinion and the courts.

The national labor relations act is not an emergency measure, but is the result of a natural development in public thinking, asserted Charles Fahy, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Other speakers included Judge Joseph Jackson, of the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals; the Rev. Francis E. Lucey, regent of Georgetown School of Law, John Michael Coleman, chancellor of the club, presided.

Detectives' Chief Asks D. C. Women To Report Attacks

Capt. Ira E. Keck, acting chief of detectives, last night appealed to all women who have been attacked on Washington streets to report to police. He said he is convinced many such attacks have occurred, but have not been reported because of fear of publicity.

Keck's appeal was made in an attempt to learn an accurate description of the attacker, whose most recent victim was Miss Alice Quinn, robbed and beaten late Monday night half a block from her home, 3726 Arcadia place northwest.

Meanwhile, 20 suspects were rounded up yesterday by the pick-up squad, and will be held for a line-up to be viewed by victims. Among those who will inspect the suspects is Dr. Neil W. Bartram, Veterans' Administration doctor, who was beaten Tuesday night in the rear of her home at 1725 Seventeenth street northwest.

Early this morning Bethesda police arrested a 19-year-old youth who, they said, answered the description of Miss Quinn's assailant. He is being held for possible identification at a line-up.

Bean Misquoted In Talk at C. U.

Louis H. Bean, Lithuanian-born economist, was quoted by The Post on March 28 as telling a Catholic University audience that his native land had progressed little in the last 30 years, and "was probably just as well off under present conditions." Mr. Bean has denied the quotation, adding that such a thought was furthest from his mind in his talk.

According to Mr. Bean, he made no reference to the Polish ultimatum, nor to Lithuania's progress; the only mention of Lithuania of 30 years ago, he has stated, was a passing reference to a friend's return to his native village.

William Thomas, 75, District WPA employe, died in Emergency Hospital yesterday a short time after he was struck by a sight-seeing bus at the north end of the Highway Bridge. Police said the bus was operated by Joseph P. Murray, 26, 320 Sixteenth street northeast. Thomas' death, the second in two days, raised the year's traffic death total to 28.

A boy and a girl, both five years old, were victims of traffic near their homes, but escaped serious injury. Shirley Hodgson, 1314 Tenth street northwest, suffered only a bruised forehead when she ran in front of and was hit by a Capital Transit bus. She was released after treatment at Children's Hospital.

Robert Gatte, 5, of 24 M street northeast, was treated at Sibley Hospital for brush burns to his head after he was knocked down in front of his home by a car driven by Dr. Haxen E. Cole, 39, of 639 East Capitol street.

Crashing into an automobile while riding a motorcycle, Ernest P. Smith, 25, 205 D street northeast, received injuries that had not been diagnosed at Casualty Hospital last night.

Meanwhile, Maurice E. Nuchols, 29, of Colony, Va., was absolved of blame by a coroner's jury investigating the death of John Jones, colored, 9. The boy died in Gallinger Hospital April 15. Witnesses testified the boy ran into the path of Nuchols' car.

Boys Club Funds Now Total $53,472

Connally Backs $9,000,000 Bill For Auditorium

A bill for a $9,000,000 auditorium in Washington for conventions, concerts, operas and sports was introduced yesterday by Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas. Connally, chairman of the Senate Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, said he hoped to get action on the bill at this session.

The Connally bill provides that the Federal Government pay the $9,000,000 to construct the auditorium, but that the land be donated by the District of Columbia. The Secretary of the Interior would maintain and administer the building. He could operate it directly or by contract with an individual or organization.

The bill specifies that the auditorium shall be erected in an area bounded by Third street and John Marshall place, Constitution avenue and C street northwest. This used to be Chinatown.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said yesterday that, while he preferred the end of East Capitol street as the site of an auditorium, he would agree to the Connally bill.

The District government began buying land in the old Chinatown area in the late 20's in order to erect a number of municipal buildings that would harmonize with the Federal buildings to be built on the south side of Pennsylvania avenue. The depression, together with the cutting of the Federal contribution toward the city's expenses, halted plans for the municipal center.

The city spent $1,774,000 for the area now proposed for the auditorium. If the city relinquishes title to this, it would still have sufficient land for the proposed new Public Library, a new police headquarters and a new municipal building.

Prajah, Princely Siamese Cat, Missing From Home in Capital

Prajah, princely Siamese cat, who is reputed to have spent his kittenhood in the palace of former King Prajadhipok in Bangkok, has been missing mysteriously from the home of his mistress, Miss Elizabeth Wright, 4620 Thirtieth street northwest, the police were informed yesterday.

Not only do Miss Wright and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, miss Prajah, their pet for more than six years, but Prajah's wife, Rahmba, keeps nightly vigil. Prajah has vanished before, but he never has been gone so long.

Prajah and Rahmba were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Wright by a friend, who bought them in Bangkok. It seems that Prajah had run away from the imperial palace grounds and fallen into a pet dealer's hands in the land of white elephants, where time stands still.

They're devoted to each other," Miss Wright said. "They always have been. When Prajah stays out all night, Rahmba cuffs his ears, and then they kiss and make up."

Police searched for the 13-pound aristocrat last night as Rahmba waited by the window. Waiting with Rahmba was Prajah's 5-week-old son, as yet unnamed.

Group Health Is Criticized By Dr. Neill

Medical Chief Terms Voluntary Projects 'Basically Unsound.'

Dr. Thomas Neill, president of the District Medical Society, declared in his presidential address last night that it is the "plain duty" of the medical profession to teach the public the "fundamental fallacies" of socialized medicine.

In an oratorical blast at the Group Health Association, Dr. Neill traced the development of industrial medicine through the ages and emphasized that it is "utterly different from the so-called state or socialized medicine with which it is so frequently confused by the laity."

Indirectly, the speech was an answer to demands of the Group Health Association that five physicians employed on salaries by local firms be expelled from the medical society. Their demands were made after the expulsion from the society of Dr. Mario Scandiffio, a member of the G. H. A. clinic staff.

After showing the growth of industrial medicine and outlining workmen's compensation laws that have been enacted here and abroad, Dr. Neill stressed that "the ethical practice of industrial medicine rigidly excludes treatment of infirmities arising from causes unrelated to the occupation or outside the environment in which it is pursued." It should be evident, he declared, that industrial medicine "really tends to promote the interests of competent private physicians."

"Basically Unsound."

In foreign countries, a half-century of experience with "voluntary projects designed to provide unlimited medical care in consideration of the payment of a stipulated assessment or premium," has demonstrated, he asserted, that "they all failed precisely because of their basically unsound economic structure."

"The inevitable result of their inability to render medical service unlimited in character and extent was financial collapse and eventual absorption by their respective governments, which were in their turn obliged to enact compulsory laws for the regulation of these organizations," Dr. Neill said.

"But worse still, through their corrupting influence upon the efficiency and morale of the medical profession in general and their unfair competition with ethical physicians, who were in many instances forced to relinquish lucrative private practices and to enter the ranks of salaried medical officials of governments, these compulsory systems consistently impaired the quality of the medical care afforded the presumed beneficiaries."

Sees Menace.

In such countries, he said, illness and death rates have increased as compared to the United States, "whose citizens have until lately been blessed with exemption from socialistic experiments involving so intimately private and personal concern as individual health and the legitimate means for its preservation and recovery."

"Nevertheless," the bulky, white-haired Medical Society head declared, "it can happen . . . and in fact has happened at our very door. As we have all known, within the past 18 months there has been organized . . . under the sponsorship of the Federal Government, a project exactly similar in scope and purpose to those which have invariably failed."

Pointing out that G. H. A., which he did not refer to by name, had been granted Government funds and had won the approval of members of Congress and of the President, Dr. Neill said:

"The implied menace to organized medicine throughout the country by this palpable effort to impose a tyrannous system of socialized medicine upon its people cannot and must not be permitted to pass unchallenged."

He then urged that members of the medical profession teach the public the "fallacies of this and all similar Utopian proposals"

Thief Snatches $57 From Cashier

Pat Boyles Collars Fugitive at Pennsylvania Ave. and 13½ St. as Large Crowd Pursues After $57 Is Snatched From Box-Office Cashier.

Scores of homeward-bound theater patrons gathered at Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street as the robbery suspect, finally collared by a policeman after the linotype operator had pounced upon him, explained he had just returned from an unlucky day at the races and saw a chance to recoup his losses at the expense of the theater. Furthermore, he added, his wife recently made him a father.

Yowaski started after Binco, as did Jerome Litvin, Keith's doorman. At Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street Paul Griga, cab driver, joined the chase. Apparently in an attempt to distract pursuers, a wad of bills was dropped in front of The Post Building.

The bills, in addition to shouts of "Thief!" and "Catch him!" attracted the attention of Pat Boyles, substitute linotypist, of 933 H street, who was spending his evening off on the Post's front steps.

Boyles, who is more than 6 feet tall and boasts a fleet pair of legs, outstripped the growing number of pursuers and pounced upon the diminutive Binco at Pennsylvania avenue and Thirteen-and-a-half street. He turned the panting holdup man over to Policeman Abel Mann, First Precinct, and parried all words of praise by saying simply:

Passerby collected the trail of crumpled bills and gave them to Mann. While awaiting the arriva[l] of a scout car, Binco, who had re[-] covered his wind, protested to the crowd of onlookers that the holdup was his first venture in crime. He said he was afraid to go home empty-handed to his wife.

D. C. Harbor Shows Gain In Commerce

Washington Harbor is rapidly becoming an important commercial port, War Department figures revealed yesterday as Army engineers went forward with the work of modernizing the Washington Channel waterfront.

Last year 2,153,343 tons of cargo—watermelons, green coffee, Navy guns and cement included—were accommodated in the harbor. The aggregate value was $87,830,030. Compared with 1936, the figures represented an increase of more than 100,000 tons with a total value of approximately $5,000,000.

Statistics on the passage of commerce in Washington Channel, Anacostia River and Georgetown Channel have been compiled by George D. Rittenhouse, inspector in the office of Maj. Walter D. Luplow, Army engineer for the District.

"You will notice," said Rittenhouse of a harbor whose principal traffic is commonly believed to be in sailing yachts, oyster boats and moonlight cruises, "that while more than half of all the tonnage was shipped to or from points in the Virginia (Georgetown) Channel, its value was only $1,488,096.

The Anacostia River.

"Up and down the Anacostia River went 985,433 tons with an estimated value of $50,188,244. Washington Channel (where modernization operations were launched Tuesday with official ceremony) accounted for a mere 80,301 tons, but the products were worth more than $16,000,000."

Into the latter last year came 170 tons of shoes, valued at $500,310; 1,700 tons of fresh fish, $153,270; 1,258 tons of oysters, all but 21 of them unshucked, $22,755; 1,026 tons of green coffee, $166,050; 725 tons of peanuts, $49,300; 285 tons of cigars, cigarettes and tobacco, $585,390.

Biggest item on the Washington Channel outgoing list was automobiles and trucks, 23,771 tons of them. These, however, consisted mostly of cars placed on boats by travelers bound for Norfolk and other points.

Oil Shipment Heavy.

"It isn't hard to understand why Georgetown ranked first in tonnage [and] last in value," said Rittenhouse, [as] one remembers naval ord[nance] ing up and down the [Po]tomac to and from the [Ar]senal, about $1,650 a ton, [co]al for sand and 85 cen[ts] Unloade[d] were 6,628 tons o[f] practically all of it Dahlgren proving

DiMaggio Signs at $25,000; Nats Blank A's

The Washington Post Sports

18 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, APRIL 21, 1938 X*

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Yankee Star Weakens in Salary Row

Leaves Coast Home to Join Team; May Play Against Nats.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 20.—Joe DiMaggio, holdout outfielder of the New York Yankees, notified Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the club, today he had accepted the club's salary offer of $25,000.

The outfielder telegraphed Barrow from San Francisco today that he would accept the club's terms to end a holdout he started on January 21. At that time he demanded $35,000 for his services but later he raised the ante to $40,000.

DiMaggio will report to the Yankees by Saturday morning. He will leave San Francisco at 3:40 p. m. (Pacific Coast time) and will be in uniform for the Yankees' game with the Washington Senators Saturday afternoon.

Move Called "Voluntary."

Yankee officials emphasized he would have to get into condition at his own expense and would not be put on salary until Manager Joe McCarthy decides he is ready to play. This means that DiMaggio will lose $162 a day until he is ready to play, unless the Yankees relent and date his salary from the start of the season.

The move was entirely DiMaggio's. The Yankees emphasized the fact that after the young Italian-American centerfielder had turned down their $25,000 offer, no secondary offer had been made.

Since breaking into the league with the New Yorkers in 1936, DiMaggio has been a "front page" ball player. Last season he hit .346 in 151 games after missing the first six games because of a tonsilectomy. The year before he was missing from the opening day lineup because of a burned foot.

Home Run Hitter.

DiMaggio's greatest feat last year was a home run total of 46 which led both major leagues. He also clouted 35 doubles, 15 triples and in all got 215 hits. His batting average was excelled in the American League only by Charley Gehringer, of Detroit, and teammate Lou Gehrig.

DiMaggio hit .346 in the World Series of 1936 and .273 in 1937. One of the goats of the All-Star game in 36, he starred a year ago.

San Francisco, April 20 (AP).—Obviously relieved by termination of his hold-out campaign, Joe DiMaggio said today he was "all excited about getting back there and rapping the ball again."

Confirming he had signed at the New York Yankees' terms, Joe declared he was going to try to get in such a good season that "there won't be any chance of an argument over salary next year. Naturally I thought I was worth more this year. But I'd rather play ball than hold out. I can't get back quick enough now and I'm rarin' to go."

While completing packing, DiMaggio ventured the prediction the Yankees would walk off with the baseball pennant again, "not because I'm through holding out, though. It is a championship club anyhow. My teammates are a swell bunch of fellows and I'd rather play with the Yanks than any other team in baseball."

His emphasis of the fact he had signed "at the club's terms" led some interviewers to speculate as to whether or not he had received private assurance of a bonus provided he turns in another spectacular season. DiMaggio denied this, however.

Throughout the entire DiMaggio clan there appeared a note of relief that he had signed up and was ready to leave. Sports writers who have practically camped on his doorstep for the past few days were equally happy. Joe said his telephone had been ringing day and night. Interviewers who invariably were passed from one DiMaggio to another, to be told finally, "No Joe," wished him a pleasant trip.

Cubs Victors Behind Dean

Beat Reds, 10 to 4; Dizzy Gives 8 Hits in 6 Frames.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, April 20.—Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean's debut as a Chicago Cub was just a six-inning arm-lossening chore for the former St. Louis Cardinal loud-speaker today, the "great one" coasting to a 10-to-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds on the impetus of a 9-run splurge in the second frame.

It was the second straight win for Chicago over the Redlegs, who finished last in the 1937 campaign.

A crowd of 6,552 turned out, most of them to watch Dean's performance, but the second-inning barrage of the Bruin batsmen stole the show. In that fatal and game-clinching stanza two errors, a walk and ten base hits, including doubles by Demaree, Jurges and Hartnett, put the game on ice for the Windy City crew.

Dean, after pounding out a single to score Lazzeri in the big second, and then scoring from first on Jurges' double against the rightfield wall, was taken out at the end of the sixth. Manager Charley Grimm said he did it to give "Old Diz" a much-needed rest.

During his six-inning sojourn on the hill, Dean did not issue a walk, struck out three and allowed eight hits. The three strikeouts came with two Reds on the sacks, Kampouris and Myers being the victims in the fourth and Myers in the sixth.

Feller Gives 1 Hit; Indians Nip Browns

Young Hurler Fans Six, Walks Same Number and Wins, 9 to 0.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, April 20.—Robert W. (Bob) Feller, back in the form that made him the American League's strikeout champion, shut out the St. Louis Browns with a single hit today while Cleveland's artillery swung into action to win 9-0.

The 6-foot, 19-year-old pride of Van Meter, Iowa, struck out six Browns, walked an equal number, made two of the Indians' 11 hits and drove in 2 runs.

The only hit off Feller came in the sixth, when Catcher Billy Sullivan beat out a tap to the box on a close decision. The Indians meanwhile clubbed big Jim Weaver and his successor, Russ Van Atta, and received ten walks, nine of them from Weaver.

Browns His Victims.

The Browns always have been momentous in the speedball king's life. The first time Feller started a professional game, he struck out 15 of them and later raised his mark to 17 against another club. Last year in his first time out he injured his "million dollar" right arm as the Brown's beat him, 4-3, and Feller was out of action for two months.

Feller has not displayed his dazzling speed of last year, when he won nine and lost seven, but has been pitching smarter baseball and holding runners close to their bases. Not a man stole on him today.

The tribe went three runs ahead in the second inning and never was threatened. Trosky doubled and Keltner walked. Hemsley fouled out and Feller flied out, but Lark walked, filling the bases. Campbell's single drove home Trosky and Keltner. Campbell stole second and Lary stole home. The inning ended when Campbell was out at the plate on an attempted steal.

Trosky Gets Triple.

Cleveland picked up another run in the third and sixth, and two each in the seventh and eighth. Trosky's triple to right brought in the last two men, and gave him three hits in four trips.

Cleveland sent Sullivan, who made St. Louis' only blow, to the Brown's last winter in a deal for Rollie Hensley, who has been Feller's "private catcher" this year.

Macks Held To 7 Safeties By Leonard

By Shirley Povich.

A big, beefy sort of fellow with round cheeks and a thinning pate, who at the age of 29 is getting a late start in the American League, was the hero of a 3-0 ball game yesterday at Griffith Stadium. And in the box score under "winning pitcher" you'll find the name—Leonard.

The unveiling of Emil Leonard, the guy the Nats plucked from the minors last winter on the suspicion that some big league pitching was being wasted at Atlanta, was a startling success. The fellow held the Athletics to seven hits in scoring his shut-out triumph.

He justified all the press notices he had been given in the South, feeding the A's an annoying knuckle ball and deceiving 'em at the proper moment with a better than tolerable fast ball. He had 'em popping up, striking out and hitting into the dirt during most of the afternoon.

A's Threaten 3 Times.

Only three times did the Athletics threaten to score and then Leonard was equal to the crisis. But he owed the fulfillment of his shut-out dreams to Left Fielder Johnny Stone, who disposed of the final Philadelphia threat by galloping across the turf in the eighth inning to haul down Lodgiani's line drive at a time when two A's were on base.

It was no soft job for Leonard. He found himself in a tight pitcher's battle with young Lee (Buck) Ross, Connie Mack's righthander, who actually outpitched the Washington rookie for six innings before the Nats crashed through in the seventh to break up the scoreless deadlock with a three-run splurge.

To that point, the Nats had been able to collect only four hits against Ross who was sneaking a fast ball up to the plate. During the first five innings, in fact, Ross held the Nats to two hits, and one of those was a bunt by Mel Almada that opened the game.

Error Aids Scoring.

Ross was guiltless in the scoring of two of the three Washington runs. Lodigiani's muff was directly responsible for Washington runs No. 2 and 3 in that seventh inning which produced Mel Almada as something of a hero.

First intimation that the Nats would win the game was delivered by Johnny Stone in the seventh when he rapped a single to right. However, the Nats' hopes sagged when Travis, attempting to sacrifice, forced Stone at second. They rebounded, though when Buddy Myer whacked a single into center that pushed Travis to third. Rick Ferrell brought the run home with a long fly to center and the Nats took a 1-0 lead.

But that wasn't all. On Leonard's grounder which would have been the third out, Lodigiani made a miserable muff. Whereupon Mel Almada stepped to the plate and clinched the contest by thumping a hefty triple to the centerfield corner that scored both Myer and Leonard. It was the Nats' seventh and last hit of the game.

Forced Double Play.

Leonard had put himself in solid with the 5,000 customers in the first inning when he beat back a Philadelphia threat after the A's filled the bases with one out, with the help of a pair of walks. After that shaky start, he forced Lodigiani to hit into a routine double play started by Travis.

Before the Nats crashed through in the seventh, the A's had threatened to take the lead in the same inning. With one out, Ambler singled to right, and Travis, with an easy double play in sight, muffed Hayes' grounder, Ambler dashing to third.

In this crisis, Leonard struck out Ross and Rick Ferrell snapped the third strike to Bonura in an effort to pick Hayes off that bag. Ambler attempted to dash home on that play and Borura, from a kneeling position, whipped the ball back to Ferrell at the plate for a freakish double play.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It was at the Yankees' figures that Joe DiMaggio signed yesterday, according to the New York club, but there will always be some doubt about that. Not until time heals hurt feelings and erases some of the confidences that at this time are deemed important will the real low-down on the L'Affaire DiMaggio be known.

POVICH.

The Yankees' front office may show Col. [illegible]'s $25,000 ultimatum, but that does not make it so. The evidence would seem to be that DiMaggio was not exactly the loser in his salary battle with the Yanks.

It is strange that DiMaggio, who for weeks has been reiterating that he would not sign at $25,000, should abandon that position at a time when the Yankees were in distress and sorely needed him. At a time when his value to the New York club was being better demonstrated daily, and when the Yankees were probably in something of a panic at his absence.

• • • •

Their first three games in the pennant race brought into bold relief the Yankees' need of DiMaggio. At Boston, on opening day, a rookie pitcher, with a bit of help in the late innings, held the Yanks to six hits. In their second game, despite their 5-3 victory, Ruppert's sluggers were able to accumulate only five hits. And in their third game, when they took a shut-out licking, Ruppert's men were held to two hits.

Thirteen hits in their first three games . . . that was the dreary record of the Yankee outfit sans DiMaggio. Why, on one of their good days of last year, the Yankees would make 13 hits in a couple of innings. But without DiMaggio . . . well, they weren't the Yankees.

• • • •

Down in the Southland, Manager Joe McCarthy, naturally taking the club owner's side in the salary wrangle with DiMaggio, steadfastly maintained that the Italian slugger would not be sorely missed. Myril Hoag and Tom Henrich were centerfielders who, if they did not make New York fans completely forget DiMaggio, would at least fill the centerfield job acceptably. But it seems that it required Hoag and Henrich only three days to convince McCarthy that somebody was wrong about that—probably himself. In three games, only two hits—both singles—were produced by the fellows who played centerfield for the Yanks.

DiMaggio's absence from the Yankees meant more than the absence of those long, extra-base hits that rattle off the Italian's bat and break up ball games. It meant a different kind of Yankee team—a team that could not overpower the opposition with extra-base wallops. It meant, too, that the Yankees would not be a happy family.

• • • •

Any resentment or jealousy that the Yankee players might have felt toward DiMaggio was bound to be tempered by the realization that his presence with the club was tantamount to a pennant and another heavy share of World Series spoils. With DiMaggio, another championship for the Yanks loomed as almost a sure thing. The first few days without him, when the Yankees were able to win only one game, brought closer

Bees Defeat Giants, 6 to 4

Jim Turner Allows Only 6 Hits; Mates Bat Hard.

By the Associated Press.

Polo Grounds, New York, April 20. Jim Turner, Giants' nemesis of '37, held them to six hits in the second of the series today and won a decision over Relief Pitcher Walter Brown on the strength of Eugene Moore's homer with the bases full in the eighth.

The score was 6 to 4, quite a reversal after the Giants' 13-to-1 conquest in yesterday's season opener.

The second day throng of fans, 10,192 strong, was treated to three homers, with Johnny McCarthy and Max West each getting one, besides Gene Moore's lethal poke.

Schumacher had given but three hits, and was leading, 4 to 2, when the eighth opened with Turner and Warstler suddenly singling.

Schumacher exited. Brown came in and quickly made a bobble that filled the bases—throwing high for an attempted force-out.

It was a jubilant team of Nats who barged into their dressing room following the game yesterday with three victories over the Athletics to show for their first three tests of the season.

"Wotta difference!" grinned Manager Bucky Harris. "Last year at this time we had three lickings, not three wins."

And from under the showers where the athletes were swabbing themselves with soap and suds came incontrovertible evidence of their joy. They had broken into song. The tune was not so hot, but the words were unmistakable—a loud rendition of "The Old Pine Tree."

Big Dutch Leonard was the recipient of sustained backslaps from his mates following his shutout victory over the A's in his debut for the Nats.

"Let up, fellahs," he finally pleaded. "You didn't want to win that one any more than I did."

Manager Harris advised his players that they would have no off-day today despite the open date on the schedule. The Nats will stage a regular practice session at Griffith Stadium before entraining at 4 p. m. for New York and a three-game series with the Yankees over the week-end.

Elon Hogsett, side-arming lefthander obtained from the Browns in the Ed Linke deal last winter, will make his debut for the Nats in the series opener at New York tomorrow. Hogsett doubtless will be opposed by Lefty Gomez, despite the fact that Gomez will have had only two days' rest since beating the Red Sox.

There was no joy in the Nats' dressing room when it was announced that Joe DiMaggio had signed and would report to the Yankees Saturday. Which means that he will miss only one of the Nats' three games at Yankee Stadium.

Zeke Bonura yesterday was presented with a floral tribute by the East Washington Optimist Club at its weekly luncheon. The big first baseman of the Nats was a guest speaker.

"There is no need of my kidding you fellows," said Bonura. "I can't make a speech like these politicians who pull long words out of the dictionary. I just talk about what I know and that is baseball. We have a good infield, a good outfield, a good catcher and three good pitchers. And we'll make trouble for every club in the league."

Original 'Casey at the Bat' Visits the Stadium

He used to be a ball player, himself.

He was the man who provoked no joy in Mudville on that historic afternoon 51 years ago.

He was Daniel J. Casey—the original Casey At The Bat—come to see a ball game with the silver-engraved lifetime pass presented to him jointly by the presidents of the American and National Leagues.

And in his mind's eye he saw his own famous strikeout that day in 1887 when, with the bases full, he whiffed and plunged Mudville into despair.

That was the day when "there was ease in Casey's manner as he stepped into his place" and "there was pride in Casey's bearing and a smile on Casey's face."

Mudville was Philadelphia and Casey's team was the Phillies, who that day were playing the Giants of Jim Mutrie. And the Giant pitcher who struck him out was Tim Keefe, Dan Casey related yesterday.

Ernie Thayer, a Philadelphia newspaperman, put the incident to verse and De Wolf Hopper made himself famous with his recitations of Casey's strikeout and Mudville's despair.

Daniel J. Casey, now 75 years old and retired, lives in Silver Spring, on the Colesville pike. And yesterday there was still a trace of "the ease in Casey's manner" as he watched these moderns play a game of baseball much as he used to play it.

He found more batting fame in his strikeout than he ever achieved by hitting a home run, Daniel J. Casey was saying yesterday.

"I never was supposed to be a home run hitter," he revealed. "The fact is I was a pitcher and pitchers then, like today, were not supposed to hit much. But a few days before we played the Phillies I had hit a home run against Boston. And the fans sort of expected me to hit another when we filled the bases against Tim Keefe in the ninth inning. I felt bad about striking out, but I never thought it would make me famous."

And as he said that there was, indeed, "pride in Casey's bearing and a smile on Casey's face."—POVICH.

"Casey at the Bat" and Connie Mack meet again—after 52 years. Daniel J. Casey, hero of the famous baseball poem, visited Mack in the Athletics' dugout and the pair recalled the opening game in 1886 when Casey, as a pitcher for the Phillies, faced Mack, who was then a rookie catcher for the Washington club.

Lassitude II Wins in Walk; All Other Entries Scratched

Col. Torr's Horse Wins In Rose Hill

4,000 See 6-Event Card of Middleburg Hunt; Dark Hope Wins.

Middleburg, Va., April 20.—Col. Windham Torr's Lassitude II, with Jack Skinner in the irons, paraded to the post in the Rose Hill, 3-mile timber race, and feature of the closing day of the spring race meet of the Middleburg Racing Association and was given the honors in this event. All other entries were scratched.

A crowd of approximately 4,000 persons, in a sweltering summer sun, watched the races from the grandstand—in automobiles or gathered on grassy knolls. Many had remained in this section from Saturday's event, when one of the largest crowds ever seen here was in attendance.

The two brush races furnished the best sport of the afternoon, making the distance in less time than last year's record. Mrs. J. C. Brady's Crooning Water, with J. MaGee in the irons, set a good pace in the Panther Skin, 2-mile brush affair and was only threatened twice throughout the race.

Crooning Water Leads.

At the start, Sandy Woods Stables' Little Hurd took the first jump with Crooning Water and the second time around Montpelier's Homesteader threatened at the same jump, but Crooning Water forged ahead and never relinquished the lead, coming in five lengths ahead.

In the Little River, 2-mile brush race, Mrs. F. M. Gould's Stir was the first away from the post. After the first jump, Mad Policy, owned by J. T. Skinner and ridden by E. Roberts, assumed command of the field, taking the jumps well and setting a fast pace. He held the lead until the last jump, when J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope, ridden by J. Gill, came to the front and came down the stretch and across the finish line several lengths ahead. Mad Policy took second place, with Rokeby Stables' Sea Chief capturing third. Vigilance and Sweepemup fell.

Only Two in Race.

Scratches in the Wanquepin, 1½-mile hurdle event and opening number on the program, reduced the field to two, but they furnished a good race. R. K. Mellon's The Stag, took the lead at the start but Anderson Fowler's Transporter took the first jump with the leader The two horses ran neck and neck until Transporter forged ahead and was a length and a half ahead at the last jump and was across the finish line five lengths ahead in 2 seconds better time than last year's event.

In the second hurdle race on the program, The Groveton, R. K. Mellon's good gray gelding, The Boaster II took the lead, was passed by Rokeby Stables' Dothair at the first jump, regained the lead at the fourth fence and never relinquished it. He came down the home stretch and across the finish line six lengths ahead. Dothair and Morris Clark's May Boy gave a thrilling race down the stretch for second place. Dothair finishing just a nose ahead. There were two spills—Gideon Ring, belonging to Miss Dale Heard, and Monk's Shadow, belonging to Mrs. Marion H. MacKenzie.

Sandy Woods Stables' Palm Springs and Mrs. Jane Fowler Bassett's Herroro made a thrilling run in the Covert 1½-mile flat race, with Herroro crossing the finish line just a scant half nose ahead of Palm Springs. W. B. Ruthrauff's Coppice took third place.

THE WANQUEPIN, 1½ miles over hurdles—Won by Transporter, owned by Anderson Fowler, ridden by E. Jennings; second, The Stag II, ridden by J. Byrne. Time, 2:42

THE GROVETON, 1½ miles over hurdles—Won by The Boaster II, owned by R. K. Mellon, ridden by J. McGee; second, Dothair, Rokeby Stables, ridden by E. Roberts; third, May Boy, Morris Clark, ridden by S. Banks. Also ran—Tapet, Singing Water, Quality Folk, Meriga, Caught, Casonova II. Fell—Gidion Ring, Monk's Shadow. Time, 2:44 2-5.

THE PANTHER SKIN, 2-mile brush race—Won by Crooning Water, owned by Mrs. J. C. Brady, ridden by J. McGee; second, Homesteader, Montpelier, ridden by J. McGovern; third, Little Hurd, Sandy Woods Stables, ridden by M. Clelland. Also ran, Lady Forum. Time, 4:00 2-5.

THE LITTLE RIVER, 2 miles over brush course—Won by Dark Hope, owned by J. W. Y. Martin, ridden by J. Gill; second, Mad Policy, J. T. Skinner, ridden by E. Roberts; third, Sea Chief, Rokeby Stables, ridden by J. MaGee. Also ran—Top Rock, Stir, Separater. Fell—Sweepemup, Vigilance. Time, 4:02.

THE COVERT, 1½ miles over turf course—Won by Herroro, owned by Mrs. Jane Fowler Bassett, ridden by J. V. H. Davis; second, Palm Springs, Sandy Woods Stables, ridden by D. K. Kerr, jr.; third, Coppice, W. B. Ruthrauff, ridden by R. G. Woolfe. Also ran—Passing Sun, Justa Par, Bosopi. Time, 2:38 1-5.

Phillies Beat Dodgers, 6-5

Stage 4-Run Rally in 9th Off Fred Fitzsimmons.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 20.—Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons fell apart in the ninth inning today after pitching near perfect ball for four frames, and the Phillies put on a four-run spree to beat out the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6 to 5.

The Phils hadn't had a hit off Fitz from the fifth to the ninth, and had tagged him for only five altogether. But in the last frame, with the Dodgers leading, 5 to 2, Herschel, Martin, Chuck Klein and Earl Browne singled in succession, and, when Max Butcher relieved him, Morrie Arnovich drew a walk, Pinkey Whitney tied it up with a two-run single, and Arnovich brought home the winning run on a wild pitch.

The Dodgers had gone out in front with three runs in the second, Long Tom Winsett's homer in the third, and another tally in the ninth. But Walters survived and went the route, giving up eight hits and fanning seven.

Eastern Defeats Episcopal As Loser's Pitchers Falter

Alexandria, Va., April 20.—Eastern High School's Interhigh champions capitalized on extra base blows and the wildness of opposing hurlers to hang up an easy 11-3 triumph over Episcopal High School here this afternoon, handing the Maroons their first loss in four starts.

Eastern used three pitchers during the contest, and two of them twirled shutout ball. Lefty Stockwell was by far the most impressive, twirling three innings of perfect baseball. He did not allow a hit, didn't issue a free pass, and not a player reached first base during his term on the mound.

"Rip" Carver, who succeeded Stockwell, was nicked for two hits in the fourth, but he settled down and twirled no-hit ball until the eighth, when he was relieved by Jim Lovett. The latter was touched for all of Episcopal's runs, the result of five hits and one free pass.

Eastern's nine-hit attack was led by Jacobs, who rapped out two clean singles in four trips to the plate. Bobby Carter, with two singles, topped the losers.

Those who saw Pacho floor Barney Ross, welterweight ruler, for counts of nine twice, and also send Tony Canzoneri, former titleholder, to the canvas for a nine count in Chicago will attest to the fact that the Mexican has plenty in his two fists.

Since the loss to Champion Ross, Pacho's managers, Jimmy Johnston and Charlie Johnston, have repeatedly tried to lure Barney back into the ring with the Mexican. But Sam Pian, Ross' manager, would have no part of him. Last year he turned down a $35,000 offer to have Ross meet Pacho in a title bout at Madison Square Garden.

Pacho, according to the Johnstons, might have been the world's champion today were it not for the fact that he suffered a badly cut eye in an "elimination" match with Ceferino Garcia, No. 1 challenger, last July. The victor of that match was to meet Ross on Mike Jacobs' Carnival of Champions' card. Pacho was to be alternate in the event Garcia did not fight Ross. Garcia beat Pacho on a technical knockout in the ninth round.

For a time it appeared that Garcia might accept a flattering offer to fight Carroll in Australia, but took the Ross championship shot at the Garden, giving Barney a battle before losing.

the fact that the sure thing was being jeopardized by his absence. Any prolonged absence undoubtedly would have produced grumbling on the part of the players.

DiMaggio's position certainly appeared to be stronger with every succeeding Yankee defeat. Yet at a time when the Yankees' need of him was spotlighted clearer than ever, he signs. And the Yankees say he signed at the Yankees' terms. Believe that if you like.

If any member of the Yankees is entitled to resent Di Maggio's rapid rise into the big money class it is Lou Gehrig. For years, because he was overshadowed by the presence of Babe Ruth on the club, Gehrig was not a high paid star. His value to the Yankees during that period was every bit as great and important as is DiMaggio's value today, but it required Gehrig 15 seasons to reach the $39,000 class.

* * * *

And now, with only two seasons in the big leagues behind him, Di Maggio demanded $40,000, was offered $25,000. At his present rate of advancement he will top Gehrig on the salary rolls in another year In baseball, it is not "he who has" that "gits," but he who demands.

And there are baseball players who do not begrudge Di Maggio any amount that he is able to wrangle from the club owners. He should not be governed by what Gehrig draws. As one of 'em was saying in the Nats' dressing room the other day:

"That big Gehrig is a cluck. He should have been making $50,000 ten years ago, but he didn't have the nerve to ask for it."

Chief Thunderbird Will Oppose Italian Mat Ace Tonight.

He is Joe Savoldi, former Rambler fullback, better known in his college days as "Jumpin' Joe," who returns to his local mat wars in a feature match with Chief Thunderbird, the Indian from the Saanich Tribe, British Columbia.

Savoldi is lately returned from a world-wide barnstorming tour which consumed some two years. He admits he made plenty of money on this foreign invasion, says he didn't lose a single match, and that he is a 75 per cent better wrestler.

It is no secret that Savoldi was a disappointed y ung man because he had to leave on his trip without having emulated the feats of other mat titleholders who played on college football teams. Notable among these were Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth all-American; Dean Rutton, of Utah University, and Bronko Nagurski, Minnesota's all-American, who now claims the title with "Crusher" Casey.

Savoldi hopes to clean up the American wrestlers, take on Jim Londos, the "international" titleholder and Nagurski and Casey. Jumpin' Joe has split even with Londos, and Promoter Turner, provided Savoldi wins tonight, may hook up the two in a "rubber" match this summer at Griffith Stadium.

Thunderbird never has been beaten here, having won some 10 matches. With his multicolored plumes and Indian blanket, the Vancouver Redskin is a colorful figure in the ring.

In other matches, Chief Sanooke, 325-pound Indian from the North Carolina reservation, faces Juan Olaguivel, the Spaniard; Bhu Pindher, Hindu importation, meets Tony Milano, the Italian, and Victor Weber, a newcomer, opposes Tony Siano, former Fordham All-American.

First bout is at 8:30.

Bucs Collect 20 Hits Off St. Louis Hurlers for 2d Win.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, April 20.—Paced by Arky Vaughan and Al Todd, each with three hits in five times at bat, the Pittsburgh Pirates smothered the St. Louis Cardinals today, 9 to 4.

Five St. Louis pitchers tried ineffectively to stop the 20-hit attack. No Pirate went hitless.

Natie Mann Kayos Hans Haverlick

New York, April 20 (AP).—Natie Mann came back to New York tonight for the first time since Joe Louis dynamited him, and stopped Hans Haverlick, the Austrian champion, in the third round of a ten-round bout at the Hippodrome. Mann weighed 193 to his rival's 184½. Abe Simon, 252-pound Long Islander, flattened Al Hart, 220-pound Philadelphia Negro in 2:31 of the second round of their six-round semiwindup which followed the main go. The referee didn't even bother counting the Quaker City boy out but dragged him to his corner and let it go at that. About 2,000 fans witnessed the program.

Grand Slam Scores Smashing Victory in Havre de Grace Feature Race

Walter Haight

Although the total wagering never will be known, the clash of War Admiral and Seabiscuit on May 30 is likely to set a new high for betting in this country. I don't mean the money put on the line with the Belmont bookies on the day of the race. They probably will have all the dough they can handle, but the bulk of the betting will be between individuals.

HAIGHT.

Unlike a fight or a ball game, ordinary races involve a number of horses, making for complications as far as betting is concerned. The boys argue the merits of this horse and that and then place their wagers with the bookies or in the mutuel machine. However, this two-horse race offers everybody and his cousin a chance to be right or wrong, definitely, barring, of course, the remote possibility of a dead heat.

As a betting proposition, the big clash is a natural. With the race more than a month away, everybody seems to have a definite opinion. I have yet to hear a person hem and haw about the subject. He either is a War Admiral man or a Seabiscuit man. There are few if any fence straddlers. Everbody seems to want his selection known so that he will be able to say, "I told you so" after the race.

While a majority will back their judgment with the coin of the realm, everything from lollypops to permanent waves will be wagered. It only takes two to start an argument and two to give more than rooting interest in the race.

I don't believe the race would set any betting records if it were staged at a mutuel track. It offers too much of an opportunity to escape the "take" of the track and the State. Why get in line to buy tickets when your friend standing next to you would give you the same action? In the case of a War Admiral husband and a Seabiscuit wife, the money could be kept in the family.

If the suspension of Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger is in effect on the day of the race, his absence will be enough to make the race an even-money affair. War Admiral, now a slight favorite, would lose some of his backing if the Louisville veteran was not in his customary place aboard the Man o' War colt. Owner Samuel Riddle already has fortified himself for such an emergency. He has Wayne Wright in line to pilot War Admiral if Kurtsinger is on the ground.

In the opinion of many turfmen, Wright is a better rider than Kurtsinger. However, Charlie naturally knows the horse and his mannerisms better than Wayne.

I expect Kurtsinger to be in War Admiral's saddle. I don't expect Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable to stand in the way. Kurtsinger is under contract to that barn. However, I believe Riddle and Widener will clear matters for the jockey in time for the big clash.

In horse racing, as in most other things, the feminine angle is always interesting, and the Preakness is not without the color and sparkle which the fairer sex lends to an event, particularly an important sporting spectacle. Perhaps one of the greatest stories ever written about a horse race was one entitled "Seeing Nellie Home," the work of a Baltimore newspaper man at the time the great filly won the Preakness stakes in 1924. The story was reprinted in all types of publications and is still hailed as one of the great color stories of the American turf.

Incidentally the mention of Nellie Morse's victory in the Preakness brings to mind the fact that only two fillies have ever won the great Maryland Jockey Club classic. Rhine Maiden was the first to capture the event and succeeded in doing so only after 23 of the opposite sex had retained the honor from 1873 until 1915 when the E. F. Whitney filly nosed out Half Rock and Runes for first money. Ever since then, with the exception of Nellie More's victory in 1934, there have been numerous feminine hopefuls, all of them unable to stand the onslaught of masculine superiority.

Wins $1,500 Handicap in Game Drive

Comes From Behind for Victory; Miss Tiptoe Takes Finale.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 20.—Showing some of the speed that made him a pre-Kentucky Derby favorite two years ago, Grand Slam scored a smashing victory today in the running of the Pheasant Club Handicap, a $1,500 feature race.

Entering the stretch on even terms with the last horse in the field of five, Grand Slam fairly ran out from under Jockey Al Shelhamer in his spirited dash for the imaginary wire. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Fiance found the task too much and lost by a head margin. For the second time today, the judges asked for a picture and for the second time the negative showed the winner scoring by a head.

Grand Slam, fourth in the Harford Handicap after winning at Bowie, had a strong backing in the crowd and paid a $4.90 mutuel in the role of favorite. He turned in good time of 1:12 2-5.

A crowd of 11,000 witnessed the program with ideal conditions prevailing.

High Hedge, Finance and Winning Chance did the principal early running while Grand Slam was finding his racing legs in the rear of the field. However, once the final test approached Grand Slam had the punch.

Two cheap platers staged a thrilling battle for first honors in the sixth race with Zinnia, a $4.80 favorite, taking down the chief money. A neck off the daughter of Zev was Ancelot, the second choice. Zinnia and Ancelot began their duel going to the first turn and hardly a half length separated them at any stage. Ancelot had the best of the early running, but Apprentice P. McDermott put Zinnia to the whip in the stretch and she gained a slight lead which she held to the finish. Saxopal was third, four lengths in back of the leaders.

Jockey C. Critchfield, who piloted Ancelot, will have the remainder of the meeting to think about the races. The stewards found him guilty of rough riding in the stretch and suspended him.

HAPPY VOTE forged to front at once, shook off repeated challenges of HIBLAZE and just lasted to stave off DAY IS DONE'S stretch bid, while under punishment. DAY IS DONE, slowest to begin, improved position steadily on outside, moved up to leader boldly, but hung. HIBLAZE pressed the pace, but weakened in final stages.

GHOST FLYER came around horses gradually to improve position entering stretch, swerved into GOOD ODDS, knocking the latter off stride midway of the stretch, for which he was disqualified. GOOD ODDS, shuffled back after start, was closing with rush when fouled and was wearing down GHOST FLYER after regaining stride. SATIN MARVEL was hard used running with GAY AMAZON and weakened. GAY AMAZON was tiring when forced to be pulled up when GHOST FLYER bore over. OUR CHUCKIE was squeesed back while racing forwardly on inside.

Wheat Prices Advance With Export Sales

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 20.—Suggestions of crop failure in Italy, together with notable revival of North American export business, served to make Chicago wheat prices average moderately higher today.

Late estimates were that 1,000,000 bushels of wheat, chiefly from the United States, had been bought for shipment to Europe. An equal amount of corn was also reported as taken to go abroad.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were unchanged to ¾ up, compared with yesterday's finish; May, 84@84¼; July, 82¼@82⅜; corn unchanged to ⅛ lower; May, 59¾; July, 61½; oats also unchanged to ⅛ off; rye unchanged to 1½ advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

Steel Output Is Unchanged At 32 Per Cent

Declines in Some Districts Were Offset by Gains in Others.

New York, April 20.—Ingot production continues to follow the irregular course of recent weeks, and this week's rate is estimated at 32 per cent, unchanged from last week, says Iron Age today in its weekly survey of the steel industry.

"Declines in some districts, notably at Pittsburgh where production is 28 per cent against 30 per cent a week ago, are offset by increases elsewhere, one of 10 points having occurred in the Wheeling-Weirton area. There was also slight improvement in the Cleveland-Lorain district at Youngstown and Buffalo, while elsewhere changes, if any, were inconsequential.

Rail Loans May Help.

"Even if the Government's new spending program is approved by Congress in substantially the form recommended by the President, it is not likely that the steel industry will receive any important business stimulation for some months, owing to the time that will be required to get various projects in motion. The proposal to lend funds to the railroads for equipment rehabilitation may bring results at a somewhat earlier date, but there is a question as to how many railroads will avail themselves of the opportunity to borrow money for equipment purchases when they have so many idle cars standing on track. The inquiry of the Southern Railway for 5,000 freight cars, on which bids will be received April 30, is an indication, however, that some roads may need equipment. These cars, if purchased, will take 60,000 to 65,000 tons of steel.

"A fresh outbreak of labor troubles besets the automobile industry just as it is beginning to emerge from its first quarter slump. Assemblies gained about 1,000 cars last week and sales are on the upgrade. Steel purchases are still being held at the barest minimum, consisting of carloads or a few hundred tons where normally at this season they would run into the tens of thousands of tons.

Lack of Buying.

"Lack of automobile and railroad buying are, in fact, the chief factors in the poor showing the steel industry is making. Building construction is taking steel in fair quantities, though much below that of a year ago. The farm implement and tractor industry, the oil industry and tin can manufacturers are responsible for a good share of current orders.

"Structural steel lettings during the week, at less than 9,000 tons, were below the recent weekly average, but new projects of about 14,500 tons came into the market for bids. The only sizable award was 4,450 tons for a section of the New York-Queens Midtown Tunnel, and in an inquiry for 7,000 tons for the same project makes up nearly half of the jobs out for bids. Others are 2,500 tons for a State industrial school at White Hill, Pa., and 1,000 tons for a plant for the Southern Board Co., at Jarratt, Va. The United States engineer at Los Angeles has ordered 2,255 tons of sheet piling. The 16 cargo ships on which the Maritime Commission is taking bids will, if built, call for 56,000 tons of plates.

Stocks Have Mild Rally Which Fails to Restore All Early Losses; Bonds Firm.

New York, April 20.—On a turnover of around three-quarters of a million shares, a little better than yesterday, stocks lost more ground, but in the late trading some improvement over the early worst took place. United States Government bonds were firm and commodity markets were steady. Dollars found further support, probably from the same cause that is now deflating the share market. May wheat closed half a cent higher at 84 cents a bushel.

At the opening of the Stock Exchange the trading gave every indication of duplicating the performance of yesterday. Prices were down half a point on the average, and by noon the principal issues were barely holding at 1 to 2 points below the previous closing. The pressure of liquidation did not appear to be heavy at any time, nor was the desire to buy at prevailing prices ardently held.

Rally Falls Short.

In late afternoon a rally nevertheless took place, without much increase in sales volume and with a hardening of prices that was so gradual that it was barely noticeable over short periods. The rally was encouraging principally because this was the first time this week that the market had shown any interest in advancing. However, the earlier losses were not entirely recovered and closing prices were generally lower.

Airplane stocks were indifferent to the early trend and most of them sold higher, helped by knowledge of well-filled order books and expectation of British buying of planes. Some of the group made new high prices. Douglas and Glenn Martin were the favorites. Rail equipment stocks had their worst day in a week or more, understandable because no money has yet come to sight for use of the railroads in buying equipment, any more than has any traffic that would make additional equipment desirable. The largest losers were the chemicals, metals, steels and farm implements.

New Course Needed.

In some quarters confidence is felt that Congress will this time refuse to accede to the President's demands for enormous spending power, but that the purse strings will be held more tightly. In other places there is no great belief that Congress will fight to the last ditch for sweet economy's sake, or even for the sound principle that the best way to recover from depression is to save and not to spend money. Meanwhile, the fight for revision of taxes is being well carried on, and if supplemented by avoidance of wild ideas on pump priming, the wiping out of the undistributed profits tax, cure of the worse defects of the capital gains tax, and some relief from general taxes will go far toward restoring business confidence.

More than that is needed, but whether it is obtained depends on the whim of one man. He may yet be compelled by the seriousness of the depression and the doubts over the November elections to change the course. Mere coming about from the port to the starboard tack won't do. The ship shortly will run aground on either tack.

Direct Loans.

Fragmentary descriptions of the RFC direct lending department at work on help to small businesses are enough to make it clear that the taxpayers are in progress of giving away many millions of dolars, although no pumps are going to be primed in that maner. The delicatessen dealer may be hard pressed for rent, but from now on he wil have less difficulty in securing the funds. The banker, mindful of the fact that he is lending money for which he will be held accountable, might not make the loan, although he is at his wits' end to find means of employing his idle funds. The horde of clerks employed by the RFC are thinking of something else. They are anxious to make a big showing in total "help" to small businessmen, and they already have given broad hints to the prospective borrower on the proper password. All the borrower needs to say is that he will "expand" his business and "hire more men."

Corporation Profits.

Net income of the first 75 industrial corporations to report for the March quarter aggregated $38,852,000. This was a decline of 30.5 per cent from the first quarter of last year. Although the rate of decreases has slowed up from early estimates the final results will be well below 1937. Seven utility corporations showed a drop of 13 per cent in the three months' period.

Puts and Calls.

Put and call prices have narrowed a shade in the last few days. Option brokers report more demand for calls than for puts and more interest in straddles. Chrysler options are quoted 4 points either way and General Motors 2 either way. Puts on Steel are 4½ under the market and calls 4 above. Westinghouse is 12 and 8, United States Rubber 2½ and 3, General Electric 2 and 1½, Anaconda 2 and 1½, Telephone 12 and 8, Santa Fe 3½ and 9, Douglas 3½ and 3, and Bethlehem 6 and 5.

Electricity Production.

New York, April 20 (AP).—Production of electricity in the United States for the week ended April 16 declined to 1,957,573,000 kilowatt hours, a loss of 1.7 per cent from 1,990,447,000 in the preceding week and 9.9 per cent below 2,173,223,000 in the same week a year ago, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Neimyeer Named Bullion Firm Head

New York, April 20 (AP).—Cortlandt W. Handy, the third generation of his family to head the internationally known firm of Handy & Harman, leading brokers in silver and gold bullion, relinquished the position of president of the firm today, becoming chairman of the board.

Handy, who is 49, and who has been president since 1927, will continue as the senior executive officer of the company. Part of the administrative duties, however, will pass to the new president, G. H. Niemeyer, 55, who has been with the firm 38 years.

The Handy & Harman firm, which sets the New York commercial price for silver every day, dates from 1867, when the original firm was organized to deal in gold and silver bullion, specie and bonds. In 1901 it branched into the fabrication and refining of precious metals. During the World War it acted as agents of the United States and British governments in effecting silver exports, handling exports of 290,000,000 ounces to India alone.

B. & O. Carloadings.

Baltimore, April 20.—Carloadings on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the week ended April 16 totaled 35,747. For the same week of last year the total was 53,011. Last week's loadings were 1,363 over the previous week of this year.

Gifford Holds A.T.&T. Report Is 'Misleading'

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 20.—Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., repeated to stockholders at their annual meeting today in stronger language his April 1 criticism of Federal Communications Commissioner Paul Walker's "one-man" report on the investigation of A. T. & T.

Gifford described the report, in which Walker had said telephone rates could be cut 25 per cent "without interrupting existing net earnings" as "incorrect and misleading." He said:

"The record of the investigation is a record, not of impartial investigators, but of partisans and prosecutors. The information assembled is neither accurate nor comprehensive."

Despite general slowing up of business, Gifford told the stockholders, "we continue to gain in the number of telephones. During the first two weeks of April we have gained 14,000 telephones.

"With wages and taxes higher, current earnings are somewhat lower. Bell system earnings for the three months ending February 28, 1938, were at the annual rate of $7.76 per share. Earnings for the 12 months ending February 28, 1938, were $9.31 per share."

He said taxes for the Bell system were running about $9,000,000 higher for 1938 than in 1937. Bell system taxes, he said, are over $9 per year per telephone and more than $7 per share of common stock. The current tax bill of some $145.000.000 a year, he added, is about $60,000,000 greater than in 1930 and is equal to over one-third of total payroll expense.

O'Shea Reveals Students' Plan Of World Peace

Says Catholic Federation Will Not Indorse Any War.

World peace through the application of Catholic principles, without indorsing any warring faction in Europe, the Far East or elsewhere, is the goal of the Catholic Student Peace Federation, its newly elected national chairman, Patrick O'Shea, of St. John's College, Brooklyn, asserted last night.

"Most of our members are affiliated with organizations which have taken sides in the Spanish war," said O'Shea, a junior who some day hopes to become an expert in international law.

"But as an organization we are dedicated to peace. We express no sympathies with any warring nations or factions in a strife-torn world."

Effective methods by which O'Shea advocates the Catholic youth in the organization will carry their gospel of peace will be through study clubs, pamphlets, mass meetings and general education.

"We are fighting our way toward a world state," said the 20-year-old Queens youth, who has won honors as a student in law and sociology.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents the Coolidge Quartet and Frank Sheridan, pianist, Wednesday night in the Coolidge Auditorium. Program: Quartet in F (Maurice Ravel), Pianoforte Trio in F, Op. 18 (Camille Saint-Saens), Pianoforte Quartet No. 2 in G minor, Op. 45 (Gabriel Faure).

One surmises that the position of honor on last evening's program of chamber music by French composers was accorded to the Ravel quartet as a memorial tribute to the Voltairian spirit who was so recently taken by death, and in the selection of the concluding work one can also see the recognition of the fact that Ravel was the devoted pupil of Gabriel Faure. Such a juxtaposition could not have been accidental, and the credit for so sympathetic a gesture should go to William Kroll and his associates.

The complexity of Ravel's musical personality is but the manifestation of his incessantly active and curious mind. His fundamental affinity with the French classical composers was frequently masked by his darting wit, and his seriousness hidden beneath a caustic irony. Ideas were often for him the counters in a fascinating game of dexterity which he played for the astonishment and delight of his auditors. His sophistication prevented profundity of thought, and the refinement of his taste led him to prefer the conciseness of epigrams to the long periods of rhetorical eloquence.

His only string quartet is an epitome of his essential qualities, revealing the purity of his melodic lyricism, the delicacy of his harmonic vocabulary, the intricacies of his rhythmic sense, and the penetrant swiftness of his humor. Although it came early in his list of compositions, it foreshadowed all that was to come. The manner of its performance last evening missed some of the subtleties, particularly in the second movement, but the reading was for the most part sensitive and vital.

There was disappointment for some who had looked forward to hearing the A minor pianoforte trio of Edouard Lalo, whose chamber music is practically unknown in this country. Whatever was the reason for the change in the program, one cannot complain that the substituted trio of Saint-Saens is hackneyed. Rarely heard, it was welcome as an unfamiliar item from the voluminous output of a versatile writer.

If ever there was a cosmopolite in music, it was Camille Saint-Saens. His interest in all styles and periods of composition militated against his originality with the result that he never succeeded in expressing his individuality. This F major trio is an excellent example of his facile ease. Entertaining and lively, it is like an amiable monologue which touches lightly on many topics.

Gabriel Faure's G minor pianoforte quartet was the most forceful and significant work on the program. Impassioned in mood, rich in poetic inspiration and tinged with Oriental color, it has a firmness of structure that gives it impressive weight. Its stylistic qualities are balance of parts, clarity of line and finesse in thematic treatment.

Although Mr. Cole Porter saw fit to lift a chorus of policemen to eminence in his latest musical comedy, recently at the National, "You Never Know," it was really in Gilbert and Sullivan's 50-year-old operetta that the police were first taken on a musical joy-ride.

Mr. Porter gave us his chorus of policemen in a smart Paris apartment, but from a sparse set on the Rialto stage last night an audience which comfortably filled the theater heard the first version of this idea.

Links Prize To Mrs. Haas

Kenwood Group to Meet; Loving to Play.

A group lesson from Cliff Spencer and Blind Bogey event featured the second ladies' day of the season of the Beaver Dam linkswomen yesterday at the Landover course.

Mrs. Albert Haas, Mrs. George Luce, Mrs. M. A. Dent and Mrs. William Kerr were the winners. The play for the Ladies' Golf Committee Cup is the next event on the schedule, carded for Sunday.

Kenwood's committee that will select the professional to replace Wiffy Cox may get together this afternoon or tonight to make a final decision.

Whether they will meet tonight or not, the new pro will be known by the week-end.

Benny Loving, assistant to Wiffy Cox at Congressional, received his sectional transfer papers from the P. G. A. yesterday, in time to send in his entry for the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. tournament at Old Point Comfort, tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

Loving will greatly strengthen the field as he has been playing fine golf of late and will probably be the most formidable of the District entrants. Due to the moving in, and the fact that the club's Opening Day is scheduled for Saturday, Cox will be unable to make the trip. He finished in the money last year.

Bob Burns Says—

It's a wonderful thing to have a goal to hit for, but it would be a lot nicer if everybody could be happy after they reached their goal.

I knew a fella whose family had always been poor and it was his ambition to become a millionaire. He says "I'm gettin' sick and tired of being looked down on by the millionaires." He went to work earnestly and schemed and saved until finally I heard he had acquired a million dollars.

Not long after that I met him and I says "Well, now, are you happy since you became a millionaire?" and he says "No, multi-millionaires snub me."

Daladier Seeks To Win People To Fiscal Plan

Treaty With Italy, Closer Relations With U. S. and Britain Also Aims.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 20.—Premier Daladier intends to build up France's national morale before going ahead with plans to borrow money from the people.

He is convinced that adjustment of the nation's foreign relations and internal economic problems will bolster public confidence to a point where there will be plenty of money available for treasury and national defense needs.

It has been the routine practice for new French governments, during the past few years, to come out with schemes for loans the minute they took office. Daladier previously had estimated the national defense program and the treasury would need 35,000,000,000 ($1,106,000,000) francs to carry them through.

Treasury's Strain Eased.

The mere knowledge that the government can borrow 10,000,000,000 ($316,000,000) more from the Bank of France, combined with the growing confidence in Daladier's cabinet and Minister of Finance Paul Marchandeau, reportedly eased the treasury's immediate strain.

Daladier's program to build up national confidence and then float a single, internal loan to cover all national defense needs developed, his associates said, in line with the following objectives:

In foreign affairs—An immediate Franco-Italian agreement, closer alliances with Great Britain (particularly in so far as military and naval affairs are concerned), and a joint Franco-British maneuver designed to induce closer relations with the United States.

In internal affairs—Quick conclusion of a new agreement governing collective contracts, a series of decree laws designed to limit strikes through government control of voting in factories affected by labor trouble, an increase of certain taxes and lowering of others, revision of customs duties, and other financial and economic decrees.

Decree Laws Mapped.

The premier instructed all ministers except Georges Bonnet, foreign minister, to co-operate in devising necessary decree laws. They will be presented to Daladier before May 1.

Daladier planned to devote his energies mainly to foreign affairs—expediting Franco-Italian negotiations and going to London late this month to talk with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Officials were noncommittal about projected approaches to Washington, but the recent appointment of Jules Henry as chief of the foreign office staff was regarded as a tip on French aspirations. Henry is well known in Washington, where he formerly was charge d'affaires and counselor of the French Embassy.

Military Authorities Study New Wingless Autogiro

Underwood & Underwood.

Washington aviators Tuesday previewed the new wingless Kellett autogiro, an odd-appearing craft said to be capable of taking off and landing in an unusually small area and of hovering almost stationary in the air. Military authorities, who have organized a giro school at Patterson Field, are studying the craft. Picture shows John Miller (left), Kellett Corporation chief test pilot, explaining some of the ship's features to E. E. Harwood, transport pilot.

Doctor Stumbles Onto Four Tombs With Own Name

Australians Seek U. S. Trade Pact

By the Associated Press.

Australian government representatives visited the State Department yesterday for a preliminary discussion of a possible trade agreement between the United States and Australia.

They were J. F. Murphy, Australian secretary of commerce, and Edward Abbott, controller general of customs.

Australia recently placed herself in line for negotiations with the United States by removing discriminatory treatment of American products which had caused her to be placed on the United States' economic blacklist along with Germany.

Hounds Carry a Fine Of $2,500 to Village

Jerusalem, April 20 (AP).—British troops and airplanes today killed five members of a large Arab band which authorities held responsible for an attack on a police post last night in which an Arab constable was killed. Because police dogs followed the trail of the raiders into Beisan, a collective fine of $2,500 was imposed on the town.

220 Foreigners Sent From France In Drive on Spies

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 20.—The French government today struck to stamp out espionage.

Two hundred and twenty foreigners were ordered to leave France immediately. National and local police were told to make a thorough cleanup throughout the country. The government said the move was "to safeguard the interests of national defense and assure public security."

Police declined to give the names or nationalities of the foreigners expelled in the opening drive. They said, however, that "they would be undesirable in any country."

Interior Minister Albert Sarraut told the cabinet his ministry was drawing up a new plan to escort undesirables to the frontier to prevent evasion of expulsion orders, and that measures were being taken to tighten border control of incoming foreigners.

Surete agents said a number of foreigners arrested in recent years for espionage in the Maginot line region had been ordered to leave the country before they were arrested, but, due to the lack of control of foreigners, had remained in France.

Italian-French Treaty Parleys To Open Today

By the Associated Press

Rome, April 20.—French and Italian diplomats were ready tonight to begin threshing out details of a contemplated agreement whereby relations between the two countries would be re-established on a friendly, co-opative basis.

There were indications the Italian government intended to make various demands on France, but these were kept secret.

The controlled press, with the exception of the newspaper Il Tevere, maintained silence. Il Tevere intimated that the question of treatment of Italian nationals in French Tunisia—which was thought to have been settled in the Laval-Mussolini agreement of January, 1935—might come up again.

The paper said Italians had been mistreated by French military and police forces recently.

Jules Blondel, French charge d'affaires in Rome, awaited his final instructions from Paris tonight, and it was considered likely negotiations with the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, might begin toomorrow, even though it is Labor Day in Italy.

Disobey Parents On Church, Soviet Children Advised

Moscow, April 20 (AP).—Soviet children were authoritatively advised today to disobey parents who attempt to send them to church next Saturday with the traditional Easter cake and cheese for priestly blessing.

The official newspaper of the Young Communist League said that such an order would free the child of obligation to obey his parents because it would violate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of conscience, which applies to children as well as to adults.

Turkish Temblors Kill 300, Raze 20 Villages

Ankara, Turkey, April 20 (AP).—Three hundred were killed and 20 villages were leveled by violent earthquakes Tuesday in central Anatolia, reports today said. It was feared causalties would be much larger.
